A Rancher's Four-Year-Old Daughter Burned to Death.

THE CHINESE AND THE GEARY ACT

Murder by Counterfeiters at Sacramento, Cal.—Prince Roland Bonaparte's Visit to America.

John Roper, the New Mexico cowboy who shot and killed Sam Steele, a student at the agricultural college, three weeks ago, has been sentenced to be hanged April 18. Roper has a bad record, having killed at least two men before.

Two youthful burglars, Gene Bicknell and Ellsworth Bailey, broke into Pratt's stationery store at Prescott, A. T., but owing to their tender age and there being no reformatory institution in the territory they were fined lightly and liberated.

Mercer county's $3000 a quarter liquor license which went into effect recently had the effect of closing every one of the thirty-five open saloons in the county, but according to the local press, "white" and dark-alley resorts are springing up on all sides.

John M. Maloy of Nebraska, representing the general land office, has arrived at Santa Fe, N. M., from Roswell, where he has been engaged for ten days investigating the accounts of the missing receiver, Frank Lesnet. He employed an expert to open the safe and found the shortage to be between $10,000 and $11,000.

A frightful suicide was discovered near Prescott, Arizona, on Wednesday, in a ravine. The victim had been blown to atoms by giant powder and not a particle of flesh remained except the limbs. Pieces of the body were thrown a hundred yards. Nothing whatever was left by which to identify him. His clothing would indicate that he was a miner.

General Thomas F. Wilson of Tucson, United States district attorney for Arizona, a few days ago received a check from Meadville, Pa., for $1619 for his services in a case in which he was first employed as a young attorney in 1854. Three years later he turned his claim over to another attorney on account of leaving Meadville, and the case has just been settled. General Wilson receiving his long-delayed fee.

A private dispatch received in Los Angeles, Cal., announces that the second carload of oranges shipped to England by a local fruit company had been sold to Liverpool at an average of $2.75 per case. This carload was made up at Riverside as an experiment, previous shipments having gone from Azusa. The prices named will net the growers about $2 a box, which is a higher price than they can obtain in Los Angeles.

The four-year-old daughter of J. W. Kelley, a rancher residing four miles south of Weiser, Idaho, has been fatally burned while playing in a field where her father was burning stubble. Her clothing caught fire from one of the piles of burning rubbish. Her screams attracted the attention of George Dickerson, who hastened to her relief, smothering the flames with earth, but not until they had done their deadly work.

Cheyenne Leader: A dispatch has been received at the governor's office (addressed to Gov. Osborne) announcing that Prince Roland Bonaparte would shortly visit America and when here would visit the West in order to pursue scientific researches. The prince wishes letters of introduction and it was desired to know if the governor would be able to assist the scion of royalty. Private Secretary Hill replied that the governor would be pleased to do everything in his power to further the objects of Prince Bonaparte's visit to the West.

The roof of the new city hall at San Francisco has been a field of operations for thieves for many years. The ridge of the temporary roof are covered with lead, well beaten down to hold it in place, and if it is this metal, worth six or seven cents a pound, which attracts the thieves. At different times the lead has been cut, rolled up and carried away to find a place in the stock of some junk dealer. During the heavy rains of last week the roof was found to be leaking over the room occupied by the board of education. An examination was made by Architect Ross and Superintendent Hughes, who found that a piece of street lead, 8 x 4 feet had been cut out and carried away.

Although the Chinese in San Francisco are expected to register under the Geary act before May 5th, the last remains that only 125 of the pagans have been received to date, says the Chronicle. The heaviest registration on any one day was last Monday, when twenty-five hundred were issued. In order to keep the number of fraudulent certificates at a minimum Deputy Callinan is taking every precaution, and he thinks that the only heathen will be able to secure a set few duplicates. The photograph of each Chinese applicant is carefully pasted on the certificate, and then, as an additional safeguard, the seal of the revenue collector is stamped on the document so that one-half of the seal is imprinted on the photograph. Should an attempt be made to remove the photograph and substitute another then one-half of the seal will also be removed, and the Chinese will find it extremely difficult to forge the other half so as to imitate the official seal of the revenue office. The authorities think that this precaution of placing the seal on the photograph of the Chinese will prevent the sale and transfer of the certificates, except perhaps in the extremely rare case of two Chinese using what will be practically the same photograph, and identification marks are exactly alike. The revenue officers estimate that at least 20,000 Chinese should register in San Francisco before May 5th.

Louis Tedhunter, the nineteen-year-old son of Deputy Court-house Tedhunter of Washington, was shot and killed on Wednesday evening while attempting to arrest two counterfeiters at Sacramento, Cal. That afternoon Constable Tedhunter received a dispatch from the constable at Knight's Landing requesting him to arrest two men who were engaged in counterfeiting. The dispatch stated that the counterfeiters had surreptitiously left Knight's Landing and were heading for Sacramento in a small boat. Constable Tedhunter turned over the dispatch to his father, who is a deputy constable, and told him to keep a sharp lookout for the counterfeiters. Later Tedhunter, fearing that he might possibly encounter the counterfeiters on their way to the city, summoned his son and rode up the river. When near the mouth of the American river young Tedhunter espied two men rowing down the stream answering the description of the counterfeiters. They rowed toward the campers, and Tedhunter, Sr., hailed them ordered them to land. Both of them jumped up and demanded to see the deputy constable to throw them a rope. Tedhunter, Sr., handed to a rope which was attached to the stern of his boat, and as he did so one of the counterfeiters drew a revolver and fired at the occupants of the boat. Young Tedhunter immediately drew his revolver and took a shot at the counterfeiters. By this time the boats were almost against each other, and the counterfeiters aimed a shotgun which was in Tedhunter's hand and fired at the boy. The latter received the charge in the right side, and fell dead at his father's feet. After firing the fatal shot the murderer took a shot at the elder Tedhunter, but fortunately missed him. The counterfeiters then rowed to the Yolo side and escaped in the tules, searching parties are out and if the men are caught they may be lynched.

Conrad J. Smith, bookkeeper for Levy, Spiegl & Co., of Portland, Oregon, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded on Sunday night at the corner of Third and Alder streets by C. A. Gove, a real estate dealer. Gove then took his own brains out. The men were standing on the corner, indulging in a heated conversation, when suddenly Gove drew a revolver from his pocket and began firing. When Smith saw Gove reach for his weapon he started to run. Gove's aim, however, was accurate, and he hit Smith in the back, the ball lodging in the abdomen. After firing two shots at Smith he turned the weapon to his own head and fired. He fell and died in a short time. The street was crowded at the time, and the shooting drew an immense throng to the scene. Smith was taken to the hospital and Gove's body to the morgue. The deed was premeditated, as a large knife was found on the body of the dead man. He left a statement accusing Smith of assaulting his wife several years ago. Mrs. Gove is well-known teacher in the public schools of this city, and about ten years ago was elected county superintendent. The supreme court held that she was not eligible, and her honorable was appointed to the position.
