IN MINING CIRCLES.

An Important Meeting Of the Exchange This Afternoon.

A GOOD ATTENDANCE EXPECTED.

The Rules and By-laws Have Been Revised—Work of the Exchange—Gips and Spurs.

The committee appointed at last Thursday's meeting of the stock exchange to revise the rules and by-laws of the organization, got down to it in earnest and completed their work some two days ago. It is understood that radical changes, looking to the better management of the organization, have been made, and the meeting scheduled for 4 o'clock this afternoon will no doubt be largely attended as each member present at the last meeting pledged himself a committee of one to use his utmost endeavors to secure a good attendance today.

It goes without saying that the stock exchange has played a very important role in the recent history of Utah mining, and many a good property has been brought to the front through the medium of its stock having been called up the bulls and bears in the pit, thus placing a value upon it equivalent to its just worth. The fact of the real importance of the exchange has been more fully demonstrated, too, since the closing of its doors for a brief vacation.

The general expectations are that the exchange will resume business on the first of the month, but whether it will be in the Brigham Young Trust Co's building on Commercial street, or elsewhere, is not yet known. Some talk has been indulged in favorable to the leasing of the old People's theater on the same street, but nothing definite has yet been decided upon. The main question before the members at present, however, seems to be that of finances, and the only expenditures way to relve that problem is for each member of the exchange to step up and pank down his Sheldon amount as covered upon each coin time ago. Then they will not only show that they are in touch with the objects of the exchange by work of mouth, but they will also demonstrate clearly that their loyalty and support extends farther than that—even to the very depths of their purses and pocket-books.

FROM SILVER CITY.

Work at the Swansea Mine—Activity at Several Other Properties.

(Special Correspondence of the News.)

SILVER CITY, July 20th, 1896.—The Swansea Mining company are giving employment to over twenty men and are working two shifts. There are three men constantly working in the ore mine and the hoist is continually moving, bringing up first class ore. The above company commenced this week's work by shipping today three carloads of rich galena ore, and will continue to make shipments during the week.

The Dragon Iron Mining company made a shipment of six carloads of ore this morning.

The Yankee Girl property is looking up in fine shape and lots of good pay ore is in sight. The mine deposited one carload of rich ore last week and will continue to make regular shipments every week.

Silver City is looking quite a boom, like little camp, and the Yankee Girl has now commenced to contribute her share of mineral. This will put another feather in the cap of Silver City's prominence.

A large ore sack arrived here for the Montana Mining company and the new hoist is under construction. The people of Silver City speak very highly of the Montana property and it is expected to develop into a good paying concern.

It was reported some few weeks ago that the South Swansea company were going to erect a hoist, but as yet very little has been accomplished in that direction. It is hoped the South Swansea will get a move on themselves, as their neighbor and namesake has got a good start of them and it will take active work to catch up.

The Four Aces which caused a turbine in the city a couple of months ago, is monopoling some good ores and it is reported that there are large bodies of mineral on this property, but they are as yet shipping very little. The company has a good many tons of galena in the ore bin, and it is expected it will goes well at the mine that a shipment will be made this week.

The new Excelsior hotel which was completed several weeks ago has been nicely painted and well furnished and it is now full of boarders and guests.

Gips and Spurs.

Secretary Airs of the Mercur some on from the property last night.

The Mammoth has declared a $20,000 dividend which will be paid on August 1st.

Joseph H. Farish, a prominent mining expert is here, with a view to looking into some of Utah's bonanzas.

A strike of ore yielding as high as $7.80 in gold is the top, in a recent discovery in the Hillside property at Mercur.

"Everything is looking nicely at the mines," said Judge Sheridan who returned from the Sheridan properties last evening.

Mr. Hugh J. Cannon of the Sterling Mining company owning properties in Nevada, is in the city to attend the funeral of his brother, Abraham H. Cannon. Mr. Cannon has nothing new to report, but says things at the mines are progressing very nicely.

Charles M. Heber, the representative of an English syndicate, who has been out this way for some time past, attempting to negotiate a deal for the purchase of the De Lamar, Nevada property, leaves for England's shores today. Mr. Heber failed in his purpose here, and although he offered several millions for the property, there was a gamble at some $500,000 which could not be bridged over, and so no sale was the result.

A Venerable Couple.

On Monday about fifty children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Mother Saville gathered in Liberty park to commemorate the anniversary of that lady's birth, she having just passed the eighth mile stone on life's journey, many were the good wishes and congratulations extended by relatives and friends on the occasion. The honored lady was born in Devon, in 1816, and came to Utah in 1871. Prior to her death she will be interred beside in Bishop Stenhouse, Herts, England. Mary's early and lasting labors remember her liberality of Father and Mother Saville in the land. Elder Savile, if spared to live until October, will see the eighth year of his age. The venerable couple have the wishes of many friends for continued health, prosperity and happiness.

AMUSEMENTS.

MIKADO AT GARFIELD BEACH.

Promptly on time the beautiful strains of Gilbert & Sullivan's opera, Mikado, floated out upon the evening breeze at Garfield Beach last night from a chorus of singers occupying the improvised stage that had been erected for its production. Many colored electric lights were distributed about the auditorium and Chinese lanterns of unique design were suspended overhead, producing an effect at once pleasing and novel. The cool breezes from lake and mountain, the gentle lull of the waves of the lake as they tumbled on shore and the silver rays of the moon over all, lent a charm to the occasion that must be seen to be appreciated.

During the performance of the opera the audience listened attentively and frequent bursts of applause were heard as some favorite air was rendered in a pleasing manner. Much of praise can be said of the performance and with the rounding off of the corners that are always present with first performances, a presentation equal to any we have had here of this popular opera will be given. Miss Truss made an ideal Yum-Yum both in her singing and acting, and she dressed the part admirably. Miss Howard also made a splendid impression in her rendition of the part of Pitti-Sing; she has a pleasing voice and stage appearance. Miss Lucas Peyton did well the small part assigned her. Miss Mabel Cooper as Katisha sang in splendid voice, but dressed the character a little too well, particularly her facial make-up. Mr. Thos. Ashworth sang sweetly the role of Nanki-poo, but would do well to dust his wig and give a more natural expression to his face. Morant J. Thomas as Pooh-bah was good.

Dewey Richards as the Mikado acted the part with becoming dignity, though he hardly handled his voice with the vim necessary to the expression. Robert Stenhouse as Ko-Ko was a hoot in himself and though laying no particular attention to his lines, succeeded in creating considerable merriment. The chorus did some excellent work and deservedly received the applause of the audience. Taken altogether the performance was a satisfactory one and the Garfield Beach management should receive the patronage their enterprise deserves.

AT THE GRAND.

A vaudeville and demonstrative gallery together with a full house downstairs indulged in melodrama last night at the Grand.

The Police Patrol starts out with a sale blowing yarn of murder scene and keeps up the pace throughout the subsequent four acts with an occasional song and dance interspersed to relieve the tension.

Some very creditable scenery together with the introduction of a corral wagon and a milk white team of horses have the effect of adding to the realistic production of the play. The players, as a rule, perhaps need to better advantage from heretofore; altogether the drama will undoubtedly play to good business this week. Mr. J. J. Pearson as the excitable Patrolman acquitted himself creditably. W. J. Josey as Artful Joe made a better impression low comedy character than he did in his former efforts as favorite lead. W. A. Brummel as the villain was fair while J. LeMoyne and Dollie Foster received the attention of the audience for their singing and scenery with the balance of the cast filled their respective roles with fair success. The Police Patrol is decidedly realistic in one of the Bill Adams below the Grand scenes for the balance of the week.

LITERARY NOTES.

McClure's Magazine for August is to be a midsummer fiction number, with stories by Octave Thanet, Stephen Crane, Clinton Ross, E. W. Thomson, and Annie Eliot. Stephen Crane's story will exhibit the force of his successful novel, The Red Badge of Courage, given an old man, but still capable of a fine act of bravery. Clinton Ross's will deal with Perry's historic fight and victory on Lake Erie, and Annie Eliot's will depict a nightmare episode in a Yale and Harvard boat race.

AS TO HIS POSITION

On the Millin County Bench, Mr. Christopherson Explains.

THE DRAINAGE CANAL BUSINESS.

Joint Meeting of the Commissioners and Canal Officers—Matters Referred to the Surveyor.

"I wish you would explain through your paper my position on this millin county business," said County Commissioner Christopherson to a representative of this paper this morning. "You were, of course, here yesterday when Mr. Lynch gave his reasons for not having taken the oath for the second time at the time he did his regular work. Now, in regard to his appointment as county assessor to do the work at this time I desire to say that I think the county assessor is to blame for not having reported to the board of county commissioners his intentions in this matter previous to having set his men to work on the census. He should have reported to us who the appointees were and how much compensation was expected. But in view of the fact that these men have been appointed by the assessor for some time and have performed a great part of the work, and with an understanding with Mr. Lynch that they should receive $4 per day, I voted yesterday to confirm the assessor's appointments and fix the compensation at $4 per day. Another fact which caused me to vote as I did was the assessor's assurance that the work would be completed by the first of next month and that the total cost would not be more than $1,100 for the taking of the census.

"While the county attorney says it is his opinion that the deputies appointed to execute the work of taking this census were not to be considered as regular deputies, I must say that I differ with him. I consider them to be working upon the same footing as regular field deputies, to have compensation the commissioners a short time ago fixed at $4 per day. I was in favor of getting the work done cheaper, but after these men had been performing their duties with the understanding that they should be held as regular deputies and receive the same pay, I did not think it right to break faith with them."

DRAINAGE CANAL.

County Commissioners and Canal Officers Hold a Meeting.

The board of county commissioners held a meeting this morning with the presidents of three canals located in the valley south and west of this city and through which the county is desirous of constructing a drainage canal to remove the mineralized water from the bottoms and thus and increase the values of lands in that vicinity. County Surveyor Josephs has surveyed three district drainage lines and presented the plans to the meeting this morning. After a lengthy discussion as to the merits of such canal the whole matter was referred to the county surveyor, who was appointed a committee of one, with instructions to ascertain through personal investigation the cost and best means of acquiring a right of way over all three routes. The first canal, says Mr. Josephs, will cut off from the chain of lakes out in that region the source of water supply, but will not entirely drain the lakes, which cover about 1,000 acres of land. It will, however, drain all the land south of the lakes. Canal number 2 will drain the land to the north and south of the lakes, and although shorter in excavation will be more expensive than that of number 3 on account of the more difficult excavation work. Canal number 3 will drain all the land even to an extent three or four miles south of the lakes, and by cutting the canal deep enough will drain the lakes dry.

Mr. Josephs will prosecute his work as fast as possible and will make his report to the commissioners as early as he can get his data together.

Simon Holer vs. H. H. Clark et al, receiver of the Union Pacific Railway Co., occupied the greater portion of the day. He was crossing the Union Pacific track, west of Provo in October, 1895, when he collided with a freight train with the result that his horses were killed and his wagon damaged, and his wife were also somewhat injured. He claims that the engineer failed to whistle or ring a bell to notify plaintiff of the approach of the train, and also that the railway company negligently allowed a clump of brush to grow near the track at the place of the accident, which prevented plaintiff from seeing the approaching train.
