TERRITORIAL ITEMS.

CULLED FROM LATEST EXCHANGES.

—Arizona has ten counties, and Pima is the oldest one of them all. It was settled by Europeans, and its early history makes up the annals of Arizona for more than 350 years.

—Persons have been seen stealing lumber from the new Tabernacle site in Ogden. This is a despicable action, and those who are guilty of it, to say the least, must be devoid of even the semblance of conscientious scruples.

—Early Thursday morning, Mrs. D. W. Woodman, who, with her husband was staying at the Depot Hotel, in Ogden, died of hemorrhage of the lungs. Mr. Woodman is a resident of Omaha, and he started with the remains of his wife to that place this morning.

—A verdict of manslaughter has been found against Edward Rehberg, at Boulder, Montana. He was arrested last fall, charged with beating his little girl Clara Rehberg, so cruelly that she died of her injuries. His sentence is 5 years in the penitentiary.

—The county seats of the different counties of Arizona, are as follows: Pinal County, Florence; Gila County, Globe; Mohave, Mineral Park; Maricopa, Phœnix; Yavapia, Prescott; Apache, St. Johns; Cochise, Tombstone; Pima, Tucson; Yuma County, Yuma.

—A terrible accident occurred at the Carbon, (Wyoming,) mines on Tuesday, by which Alfred Ball, a miner in No. 6 mine, was fatally injured by a falling roof in one of the rooms. He was not instantly killed, but lingered until next evening in great agony, when he expired. He leaves a wife and one child.

—The artesian well recently driven on the premises of W. G. Campbell, at Milford, Utah, is 198 feet deep and is now flowing at the rate of 8 gallons a minute, daily increasing. Mr. Jno. M. Murdock, whose place is about 8 miles below Milford, has also had a successful drive well put down a distance of something over 100 feet, the flow in that case being also about as in the first named well.

—On Oct. 19, the body of a man was found floating in the river two miles from Heron, Montana. An inquest was held and a verdict rendered of "found drowned." It also turned out that this is the same man that was found lying near the railroad track in an unconscious state and disappeared so mysteriously on the 1st of the month. His name is supposed to be James Welsh, and he worked for the railroad company at De Smet during September. The remains were buried at Heron.

—Some days ago Sheriff Baldwin, of Beaver, went to Fillmore and there arrested a fellow named Brig Tompkinson, on a charge of having assaulted and badly cut with a knife one Peter Sorenson at the Sulphur Mines, in Beaver County. Tompkinson was brought to Beaver, and was at once taken before Justice Fennemore for examination. Something was defective in the charge for after hearing the evidence, the J. P. discharged the prisoner, but had him immediately rearrested for ordinary assault, to which charge Tompkinson pleaded guilty and was fined $75, which he paid. It is said that Sorenson will carry the marks of his antagonist's knife on his visage as long as he lives.

—A married lady of Minersville created quite a sensation in that usually quiet burg one day recently by going to the district school and publicly thrashing one of the male pupils named Gilme, alleging that he had grossly insulted her boy, who was a pupil at the same institution. The instrument of flagellation was a stick used by one of the pupils as a base ball club, and it is said that the irate lady rather seriously injured the object of her wrath. Complaint of the assault was afterwards made before Justice Woods, but that official seemingly declined to take any action until the lady in question had herself and family removed out of his reach to a ranch in a neighboring county. When the school teacher was going to prosecute the assault in his presence is inexplicable.

—For some months it has been suspected by the officials of the Utah & Northern road, that some of their employes were assisting outsiders in systematically robbing the cars on the line of that road between Dillon and Butte. Recently some of the freight cars, Mike Costello, one of the shrewdest detectives of the Utah & Northern force, was set on the scent. He investigated [illegible] and concluded that the chief man in the robbing scheme was Billy Dean, for a number of years a locomotive engineer on the road. Dean was arrested on Saturday night, Oct. 16, at his house, in Silver Bow Junction and taken to the Butte jail. Over $400 worth of goods were found in his house in a false cellar. It is reported that other arrests will soon be made, including some prominent parties.

TEN YEARS A HUSBAND.

A LITTLE STORY WHICH MANY A SORROWING WIFE KNOWS BY HEART.

"Are you going to the lecture, Harry?" I said, as I saw my husband, one evening putting on his overcoat after tea.

"Yes," was the reply.

"I wish you would take me," I answered.

"Really, Mary, I think home is the proper place for a mother."

"But one of my sisters would look after the children. I do so want to hear this great lecture."

"Tell the truth, I have but one ticket," was the reply, as he went out of the door, "and I don't think I can afford to buy another."

My husband and I had been married for several years. Before the marriage he had been unusually attentive, even for a lover, and if another gentleman spoke to me he was jealous. When there was a lecture or concert any where he always took me. If I was invited to a party he was only too glad to attend me. But now "parties are bores," he says, "he can't think why women wish to go to them." Then he was all affection. Now, he acts as if it would lower his dignity to show his love for me or my children, and if I offer him a kiss or a caress he is almost certain to refuse me. I can not complain that he neglects his more obvious duties. He gives me plenty of money for dry goods and, and is fresh talking of painting the new house. But he seems to think that a wife has no business in anything but housekeeping, and never needs change of scene or other recreation.

"What's the use of a woman," he says, "going about? Home is the place for her."

It may be so, but after a hard day's work I often feel as if a walk in the fresh air, or a visit to a neighbor's would be a real blessing. I said to him the other evening, when he was going out again:

"Won't you stay at home, Harry, to oblige me? Just this once I am so lonely."

"Lonely?" was his answer, "How can you be lonely with the children?"

"But they are abed, and recollect, I see no body day in and day out. Can't you do it—to please me—for this once?" I coaxed gently speak; it was as much as I could do to keep the tears from coming at his conduct seemed so cruel.

"The fact is," he replied, "I'm dead beat with working all day, and must go out to get brightened up a little. You women never make allowance for a man." And he went out quite crossly.

—Never make any allowances! If the husband is worried with business, and I do not doubt it, is not a wife worried with household cares? Are the servants, and children, and sickness, no trouble? And is a woman differently constituted from a man, so that the recreation which one considers indispensable for himself is of no service to the other?

Again the tears came into my eyes. Harry did not mean to be unkind; he was only thoughtless. But why had I lost my complexion? Can a woman live forever in rooms heated by hot air, never going out except on some errand, and then hurrying home as soon as the errand is done, without losing her complexion? Is it the climate or her mode of life that makes her old before her time? It was on my tongue to say these things but I repressed. I have learned that "silence is golden."

"How I wish I had something to read," I said yesterday. "I think if I had a new book now and then the evenings when you are out, Harry, would not be so long."

"Books cost too much money in these times," he answered my request. "I should think your sewing would amuse you enough. To get bread for his family and lay by a little for a rainy day is as much as a prudent man can do nowadays." And as he spoke he lit his cigar and went out.

Will men ever understand women? Will they ever see their own selfishness in its true light? These thoughts rose to my mind, as I reflected with a sigh that a tithe of the money which Harry spent on cigars would buy me all the new books I wished.

Yet Harry does not mean to be unkind. He saw his mother treated as he treats me, and he thinks I have no right to complain. Perhaps I have not. But, oh! how much happier I would be if things were different.

Are women only machines to sew, darn, sweep, dust, bake bread, take care of children and keep house? Have they no need of recreation? No higher nature than is starved by a life like mine?

There is no contention between Harry and me. But his love now is, or soon will be, a different thing from what it seemed before marriage. Is my fate the fate of all? Is every wife like me when ten years married?—Philadelphia North American.

THE RICHEST WOMAN.

SHE LIVES IN SOUTH AMERICA, AND IS A MIND OF QUEEN.

I notice an interesting paragraph in an English journal, which informs us that a Leith firm has just completed a handsome screw steam launch, which has been built to the order of Mrs. Cousens, a South American lady, who is reported to be the richest woman in the world. The launch, which is built of steel, is twenty-five feet in length, and is to be employed as a tender to her large yacht. (The large yacht is employed at present in the interesting but profitable trade of carrying coals from Lota to Valparaiso). It is elaborately fitted up in polished mahogany, and is to be dispatched forthwith by one of the mail steamers from Liverpool for conveyance to Chili.

Besides being the richest lady in the world, she also enjoys the singular privilege of being empress over a tract of territory called Lota, which lies some 200 or 300 miles to the south of the port. It may seem strange to speak of an empress in the heart of a free republic; but nevertheless the fact exists, and so absolute are her majesty's powers that there are few of her subjects who would be resolute and courageous enough to claim the possession of their own immortal souls, or who would not be prepared to deny that on the making of the place, a special arrangement was made with reference to coal deposits between the Divinity and the reigning monarch.

During her absence, the government is carried on much as it is in Ireland, by means of a Viceroy, with this exception, that while the Irish are not unfrequently rebellious and troublesome and actually lay claim to the right of having a slight say in their destinies, either in this world or in that which is to come, such a supernatural effort never enters the simple and uncomplaining minds of the population of this remarkable portion of God's footstool. And why should it be otherwise? The Viceroy, or boss Pasha, and his court has been so long accustomed to licking and cleaning the boots of their mistress and passing along their own in turn to their subordinates, who perform a similar but humbler task and keep the ball always rolling downward, that it would be at once a dangerous and unkindly action to persuade them that they are featherless bipeds and not dirt-eating automatons.
