The dancing party in the study room of the new High school building last Saturday evening was one of the most enjoyable social functions in the history of the school. The students are appreciative of the excellent hall for social gatherings turned over to them by the board of education. The maple floor seemed fairly to resound with gladness as they tripped the light fantastic. There were fully 100 couples in attendance. The ball was given by the school orchestra for the purpose of giving the football team a little financial aid. The members of the All Hallow football eleven of Salt Lake were the honored guests of the evening. Dancing was continued till nearly midnight. All those in attendance pronounced the entertainment one of the most successful ever given by the students of the High school. The patrons and patronesses were Mrs. and Mrs. J. O. Cross, Miss Susie Rayburn, Miss Edna Martin, Miss May Kyle and other members of the faculty.

DINNER FROCK OF LIME GREEN AND GOLD.

Lime is a new shade of green which is somewhat like Nile green, though much colder in tint. The simplicity of this lime green satin dinner frock is its chief charm, the bolero bodice suggesting a little satin jacket over a waistcoat of lace. The lace in this case is a heavy Venise pattern darned with green and gold threads and the narrow gimp trimming on bodice and sleeves is also in pale green and gold. The skirt is extremely graceful, fitting the hips closely and then flaring outward in full folds, which are caught in below the knee by a sloping shirring over a cord.

HUGE SHIRRED CROWNS ON DRESSY HATS.

Every home milliner this year should take a lesson in crown making. All the large hats have big crowns of shirred material and the making of a shapely shirred crown is not so easy as it seems. The velvet must be laid over a foundation of light crinoline or capanet to keep the crown from falling in in a sloppy fashion. This hat is a felt hat in light mustard color, with bronze velvet crown and facing and a yellow and brown paradise algrette set on under a flat velvet bow.

In Woman's World

Pineapple Pancakes—Make a good batter, using a half pound sifted flour, three large eggs and a cupful of milk. Have ready a well-buttered sheet-iron fryingpan, and pour in about three tablespoonfuls of the batter. As soon as brown on one side reverse and brown. Take up carefully, put on a hot service plate and cover with pineapple preserves. Over this put a second cake, then more pineapples, and so on until all the batter has been used. When ready to put on the table, cut in segments like a pie.

Pineapple Sherbet—This is made from the grated canned pineapple. Add a pint of water to a pint of the pineapple and cook 15 minutes. Strain through cheese-cloth, add a teaspoonful of gelatin that has been soaked in a quarter of a cupful of cold water, the juice of a large lemon and a cupful of sugar. Strain and freeze. Serve in glasses after the roast or before the game course at a heavy dinner as an aid to digestion. A bit of the sliced pine can be put on top of each glass.

Pineapple Sauce to Serve with Ice-Cream—Put a cupful pineapple juice in a cupful of granulated sugar and cook 10 minutes. Add the well-beaten yolks of two eggs and whip over boiling water with an egg beater until foamy. Take from the fire and whip again with the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs.

Pineapple Pie—Line a pie plate with a good crust and fill with a can of crushed or grated pineapple mingled with one cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of softened butter, the well-beaten yolks of two eggs and lastly the whites of two eggs beaten stiff and folded in.

If preferred, a teaspoonful of cornstarch dissolved in a little water may be added to the pineapple with the yolks of the eggs, and the whites of the eggs reserved for meringue. After the pie is baked, whip the whites of the eggs stiff with two tablespoonfuls of sugar, pile lightly on top the pie and set in a coolish oven to puff and color a golden brown.—The Delineator.

To turn up evenly the bottom of a skirt for hemming, try this method: Place the end of a yardstick on the floor close to the skirt and at the top of the stick place a pin in the skirt; move the yardstick little by little around the body, placing a pin in skirt at top edge of stick each time it is set on the floor. After going thus all around the skirt, lay it on a bed and place one end of the yardstick at the line of pins, and at the lower part of skirt, place a pin as far from the end of the yardstick as desired around in this manner, then turn the hem at new line of pins and baste it. This method insures a perfect-hanging skirt and makes it possible to hang a skirt on one's own person unaided and without difficulty. I would be glad to have this useful hint reach the many homemakers who read your most excellent magazine, for it will mean so very much to them in saving of worry, labor and time.—Home Department, in the National Magazine for October.

What to do next! It is a big problem, isn't it? And to the girl on the eve of graduation, it is a problem that assumes appalling proportions. Yet really, if we look it straight in the face, it isn't such an awful question, after all. By we, I mean girls of average intelligence—not geniuses seeking careers, but girls who either by choice or necessity decide to earn their own living in some way.

It is ignorance of the requirements and of the advantages and disadvantages connected with the various phases of professional, business and home life that seems to be the cornerstone of perplexity and the cause of failure in many muses. You must take time to study the different occupations and thus decide for which you are best adapted. Here is a chance for the college-trained girl to show her appreciation of the merits of thorough investigation, not mistaking inclination for ability by persuading herself that what she likes to do is identical with what she can do.

The sooner the artist by choice realizes that she is a housekeeper by ability, the better it will be for pride and pocketbook. The first thing, then, for the college girl in choosing an occupation, is to find out what she can't do; then, by the eliminative process, to decide for what line of work she is best fitted, considering temperament, training, home conditions and opportunity in general.

C. R. Kluger, the Jeweler, 1068 Virginia Ave., Indianapolis, Ind. writes: "I was so weak from kidney trouble that I could hardly walk a hundred feet. Four bottles of Foley's Kidney Remedy cleared my complexion, cured my backache and the irregularities disappeared, and I can now attend to business every day and recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy to all sufferers as it cured me after the doctors and other remedies had failed."
