THE BEAVER MUDDLE.

Negligence of C. E. Norris, Ex-Clerk of the Second District Court.

The muddle in the affairs of the Second District Court, caused by the negligence of ex-Clerk Norris, is playing quite serious. Judge Baiter has been looking up some of the matters with a view to straightening things out as far as he has done under the circumstances. One case brought to him is to wit: Was the petition of Wells Norris, alias "Jack," for a writ of habeas corpus. Norris, says the Beaver Chronicle, was the man who murdered Howard Tanner, and who was sent to the penitentiary for the crime a little over a year ago, for a term of twenty-five years. The ground of the petition is that there is no record in the Second district court, where he was tried, that he was ever convicted of the offence for which he was sentenced. Mr. Norris, who was then acting as clerk, carelessly neglected to write the records of the verdict, so that while there is a record of the filed and the sentence, there is no record of conviction. If the writ is granted, Norris will disclose to himself once again, as there will be a record of an existing fact, one in jeopardy, which he will plead, and can plead a bar to any further prosecution of an even.

One of the main objects, however, of Judge Baiter's presence in Beaver before the regular term of court began, was to make a thorough inspection of the clerk's office. As he was known by everyone to be pained with the court, the clerk's friends were fain to make a confused, incomplete and unintelligible showing to Norris, that the judge felt that it was a matter of grief the portrayal that they should be looked after. The special clerk has repeatedly endeavored to have the office overhauled by a government inspector, which he felt was due to himself for taking hold of the office, as well as to the court and the public generally.

The judge expressed himself as simply astonished at the way the records of the court had been left by Norris. There was no register of actions, and the docket, filed and fee books were incomplete and so unreliable that they could not be depended upon for even the information they did contain. So important a book as the judgment record was not kept at all, while the judgment docket contained but more than twenty per cent of the judgments that have been rendered in the last four years, and of the judgments that had been paid, there are but a small number that have any record of satisfaction, leaving a judgment in most cases hanging over the party as a lien, notwithstanding it has been paid. Of the criminal judgments that have been paid, such as fines, there is not one that has been satisfied. There is no record that any of such fines have been paid or that the money has been remitted to the government.

IN UNION IS STRENGTH.

Agricultural College, Experiment Station and University.

Editor Deseret News:

The writer of this has no axe to grind in the Agricultural College and University question. In the culmination of pro and con, if we gain, we strive at what we wanted, if we lose the other party gains it. And each party will use its best logic and arguments for its purpose.

A republic must honor labor and not further tenantry and slavery. Hence, in the main, farmers must make their living by the work of their own hands. Only a few farmers, therefore, will be able to spend much time on scientific study, and solutions of scientific problems; but they must depend mainly upon the experiment stations as their helpmeet, in answering (as state expert) questions in unsolved problems of agricultural advancement.

At this time we want farmers that in all respects can fill their places as efficient citizens of our grand republic; that they may be able to represent themselves, and not necessarily be represented by others.

If I were a young man and in possession of the knowledge and experience I have now, I would prefer to attend and be at the Agricultural College, the University and the Experiment station solely, or rather, as near together as practicable, for a good many reasons too numerous to mention now.

Sister Johnson, of Holden, is Dead.

HOLDEN, Millard Co., Dec. 3, 1893.

Editor Deseret News:

I have been requested by members of the Johnson family of this place to have you, if you will kindly do so, insert your high esteemed paper, a short sketch of the useful and long life of Hannah Bevan Johnson, who departed this life November 8, 1893, at this place.

Sister Johnson was born December 11, 1816, at Hope Hay, Shropshire, England; was baptized into the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in 1840; married Robert Johnson August 28, 1841, in the same year sailed with our husband to America, arriving at St. Louis, Mo., in 1842; moved to Kanesville, Iowa, in 1851; started westward for the Valley September, 1852, and landed at Battle Creek on Pleasant Creek, Sept. 1st, 1853; in 1856 with our husband was called to Fillmore, where they remained three years, then moved to Holden, where she has resided ever since.

Sister Johnson was widely known as a devoted friend to the sick, a faithful and true to our friends to help when from her own and our whole family circle to sympathize with the afflicted and bereaved. She was a true helpmate and mother, she was an excellent housekeeper. She was so well loved by everybody, especially her sister good mothers, she has left a void to meet. She was a child of God and it was to her a joy to die. She was a true friend to the poor. The speaker was born in the same place with her husband and knew them well. She was highly esteemed by the neighborhood and called back on her death-bed the fine encomiums and words of commendation spoken to all in her behalf.

If this be worth a place in the News, use it as you think proper.

Your friend,

HENRY HUGHES.

Mr. Chas. Walter
10 Jay Street.

"The second year I was troubled with blotches and pimples on my face and body, which were so painful and disfiguring that I was ashamed to be seen. I tried various remedies, but they only made me worse. I at last decided to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and after taking a few bottles the blotches disappeared, and my skin became as smooth as any man's. I can recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all as the best blood purifier I know of." CHAS. WALTER, 10 Jay St., New York City.

NAILS.

At the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago. A model and diploma awarded. "Superior workmanship in technical method in manufacture, and quality of finished product; excellency and reasonableness combined with holding power in clinch. It allows the use of very small nails."

There is nothing beyond merited commendation in a horse nail, excepting the fact that it is made with the Putnam Nail Machine. "The method of manufacture," and "quality of finished product," Commissioner Smith, in their "authority," give reality to the expansive and comprehensive of the best nail machine in the world; in their enumeration, it will be seen that "holding power in the clinch" receives there as much the place in the harmonious and well-rounded.

By the use of such machinery, horse shoes are evident and more secure to the wearer.

This is not to state that the attention of the World's Columbian Exposition should be given attention as regards for a good horse nail and that was the "Putnam" exposition there was.
