THE AMERICAN SOLDIER

A Paper that Is One of the Gems of Contributions to Current Newspaperdom.

CONTAINS A POEM BY A UTAH BOY.

Rags are Scarce, and It is Better to Have Clothes Clean and in Good Shape than to Sleep in Night Gowns.

The American Soldier, a weekly paper published at Manila, Philippine Islands, is one of the newest born publications of the day, and is doubtless found under many difficulties. It has a limited assortment of type, and therefore its typographical appearance is anything but pleasing, and it is quite apparent at a glance that the press at its disposal is only lapsus. But to the news columns, however, it is quite entertaining. Moreover, it has a disposition to cross in the most approved style, as may be seen from the following announcement:

"We issued bulletin No. 1 last Sunday, containing a dispatch sent from the president at Paris. It was a lot of news our readers were glad to get, and it is with no little pride that we look upon the promptness with which we handled the matter. The telegram was received at our office at 11:45 p.m., and was on the streets at 12 o'clock. If this is not enterprise what is?

"Truly, sirs, it is expensive for Manila. We suffered much more than you that it is dead slow for New York.

"There are now four hundred newspapers in Manila, and all of them are doing fairly well.

"The Filipinos are astounded at the escape of the Americans. They cannot understand why the Americans have their shoes open at night, when it has been the accepted custom of years to close them at that hour.

"But it is the great cause of baseball that is the mystery which puzzles all the natives. They have never heard of anything like it. They have seen Americans more at 2 than they did at the destruction of the Spanish fleet. The people who were there in the greater here when Dewey gathered wonderingly at the edges of the crowd and now they have left. They cannot fathom the enthusiasm, and truly in their simple understandings the Americans are an odd lot.

"South Dakota showed Minnesota how to play baseball, and according to the American soldiers "showed their property" in a fairly convincing manner. They are teaching the game here, as the following is on show:

Anyone who will harvest one
Hundred tons of harvest time
Will be Rock Dakota
Where the rocks are scattered away,
Have command lot of harvest hay,
Fine, fertile acres anyway,
Cash Monopoly
Or South Dakota!

Anyone who wants to be the cub,
Go to Minnesota,
Where fellows are not so rare,
Go to South Dakota!
Wonderful summer everywhere,
Wind blows the sweet air,
Fine for prospector to search,
Fine for settler anyway,
Or South Dakota.

Just a portion left of Sam
Over Minnesota,
Where the rainbow dark,
Go to South Dakota!
Where the sun shines bright,
Where was blow long ago,
Where the wind's just so,
Go to Minnesota,
Or South Dakota.

It may reflect the ladies of the expeditionary force to know it, but the men which are coming to the conversation, including night shirts, were used in this way by the natives, according to the accepted explanation, "and it is better to have our gown in good shape than to sleep in night gowns."

There are many prominent among the troops and some of them are, or are to be, famous. One is one of Chaplain Charles A. Cosey of the Thirteenth Minnesota, entitled "The Soldier's Meditation":

Oh! Lassie into the stars are bright,
If hear the sea waves to the tune,
And nightingale sing winds of night,
Sing to the moon, sing to the sun,
I hear the mariners answer home
Sailing the seas, sailing the land,
Fair lassie, I hear you call me home,
Home, home, home.

But 'tis sweeter, one time one call
The heart that carries for home home
Thy eye dazzled, thy ear deafened we will Hear the voice of the weary tune,
"Go home, the coast was bright turn,
Home, home, home, home, home."

The freedomers of Great Britain for the American forces was displayed in the fact that the Italians the Olympic and the Caledonian were requested to be docked in the British dock yard a Hong Kong. Admiral Dewey said that the privilege was a great convenience to him. A merged and most interesting feature about Manila is the number of British flags displayed. They commingle all the day and night together. The Chinese traders run in the fire outside their shops and are supplied with the proper flag in order that they may trade in Hong Kong. There is mutual good fellowship among the English and American soldiers.

The late arrivals are characterized because they did not arrive in time to see the fighting is evidenced by the following exactly poem by James Nonpareil, recent battery A, Utah volunteer artillery, under the date of Bivouac:

We are the battle smoke curse, we come
To see at the fray,
We are the battle smoked sent so
The boys were far away.
And they were somtimes time we heard,
We had the time several times and
Thought we'd be home soon,
They said to how Manila took—it was a
Bloody fight—
We were in it, too, at recess and thence
Home recess.
And every occasion they dared to
Philippine tears and
"What were we to do? Shoot—in the Direction by the bay.
We have seen the sightseeing Macdonald
on Hunter's Point.
We have watched the shell, starting
Points and the Oregon, I tell you
And there were tales to shed tears we
Had to send full city
Of golden gory monuments and banner
Were raised aloft
The Dakotas are not stay with a
Proud sixteenth air.
And yet we are very patient, we all
Strive when they are
Which we were in the trenches—in the
Dismal rain for days
Our hair is soaked and stained saw, our
Shoes are rain
And we are growing week beneath that
Everlasting rain
We live in hope that when the transport
Bear that boat
We shall be home and arrivals on that last
Good sailing ground.
And we will write some brief new reminiscences
Of the scenes beyond the skies
And we'll tell the folks at home and give in
Evening communion
Of the Dakotas and the Minnesotas
We were to be remembered
Of the Dakotas
Altogether the American soldier is a most interesting contribution to the current press.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
