The workmen today found a curiosity in the shape of a pipe, imbedded in the earth some six feet from the surface. The pipe is about four inches in length, with Indian characters cut thereon. It is supposed to be over a hundred years old. It will be given to Mr. Cleveland.

SUCCESSFUL STRIKES.

Organized Labor Not Injured by the Failure of the Debs Trouble.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 13.—The working committees of the international brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners are in session here preparing for the international convention which will meet here next week. Secretary P. J. McGuire, of the brotherhood, says that organized labor has not been injured by the failure of the Debs strike.

"Because the strike ended disastrously you must not suppose that strikes in general have failed. The strike of the coal miners was a success, I think. In many places it prevented a fall in wages; in other sections the men gained an absolute increase. In New York the garment workers won in their strike against the infamous sweating system.

"A week ago last Tuesday our men in New York to the number of 1,500 declared a strike against what is known among the carpenters as the 'lumping system.' This is practically the sweating system applied to our trade. Instead of a contractor taking a building as a whole the floors were given out to one man, the doors to another, the sash to a third. These petty contractors required the carpenters under them to take the work by pieces. The prices were cut in order to obtain work. In some instances the men were required to work 12 to 15 hours a day to make a living. The better class of contractors objected to the system as strongly as we did. Yesterday three-fourths of the employers came to terms.

"Our policy is to avoid general strike, since they injure innocent as well as the guilty. When a contractor is injuring us we declare a strike upon him in particular and not upon all contractors. It is to our interest to assist the better class of contractors. We find that by avoiding general strikes that we are able to advance our interests most surely."

Typhoid Fever Follows Drouth.

DAYTON, O., Sept. 13.—Drouth has left an epidemic of typhoid fever throughout all the upper Miami valley.

At Piqua one day this week, eleven corpses were awaiting burial, most of them from the prevalent fever. The same day deaths were reported from all over Miami county. Mrs. Emma Morgan died in Troy, leaving the two oldest of her eight children ill with the fever.

THE WORK OF FIENDS.

A Saloonkeeper's Wife Assaulted by Negroes.

AKRON, Ohio, Sept. 13.—Three negroes, two men and a woman, called at the house of Saloonist George Woehlkuster in the heart of the city this morning and demanded breakfast. Mrs. Woehlkuster, badly frightened, prepared a meal. Later the men returned, broke in the street door and going to Mrs. Woehlkuster's room beat her insensible and assaulted her. She was bound, gagged and thrown into a cellar. Carpets and bedding were saturated with oil and the house fired. Except for the timely discovery of the flames, all trace of the crime would have been obliterated. Mrs. Woehlkuster's condition is critical.

Colored Republican Convention.

DENVER, Sept. 13.—Ineffectual efforts were made in the Republican state convention, which reassembled this forenoon, to break the slate headed by A. W. McIntire, nominated for governor. For auditor, Clifford C. Parks, of Glenwood Springs, was nominated, receiving 505 votes to 204 for E. L. Fenn. For attorney general, Gen. Byron L. Carr, of Boulder, received 541 votes, Chas. S. Libby, of Chaffee, 223. Both nominations were made unanimous.

The most bitter fight of the convention occurred over the selection of candidate for state superintendent of public schools. Mrs A. J. Peavey, of Denver, was nominated by acclamation after the friends of Judge Warren D. Knapp and Prof. W. A. Haggett had withdrawn their names. Judge Knapp was then nominated for one of the regents of the state university, but refused it. W. E. Darley and C. M. Griffen were nominated for regents.

The fire is fierce and the wind strong. Trout Creek, Mich., on the south shore is in imminent danger. At Iron Belt, Wis., on the Wisconsin Central, several buildings are burned. At Wakefield an unknown miner was killed by the heat. Four hundred million feet of pine is being burned in Gogebic and Ontonagon counties.

A Child Kidnapped.

THOMPSON, Conn., Sept. 13.—Thompson, a town, one mile south of here, was excited today by the report that Cleveland Ward, the ten-year-old son of Ferdinand Ward, ex-banker and financier of New York, had been kidnapped from the home of his guardian, Frederick D. Green. About 8 o'clock two men seized the child and got him in a carriage. They then drove north toward Webster, Mass. Mr. Green notified the police of all surrounding towns by telephone and then started in pursuit. About 11 o'clock a message was received here from Webster announcing that the men had been arrested there and the boy recovered. Ferdinand Ward has several times tried to get possession of the child.

The Centennial of McKeesport.

McKEESPORT, Pa., Sept. 13.—This city is today celebrating its centennial. Governor Pattison of Pennsylvania and McKinley of Ohio participate in the ceremonies. At the McKeesport line the Demmler tin plate works has erected souvenir city gates of tin plate. Here the governors were welcomed by the mayor and the reception committee.

Walker, Worcester, Mass.; senior vice president, Miss Anna Schmid, St. Louis; junior vice president, Miss Gladys Foster, Kansas; chaplain, Miss Lena Stevens, Massillon, Ohio; treasurer, Mrs. Ida J. Trustees, Anna Moore, New York; Minnie Trescott, Ohio; Nellie King, Ohio; Cora Pike, Massachusetts; R. Evelyn, Monroe, O.

Went Ashore in the Storm.

ALPENA, Mich., Sept. 13.—An unknown steamer barge went ashore in last night's gale at Northpoint. Her signals were seen this morning and the tug Ralph has gone to her assistance. There is a heavy gale and a heavy sea running.

Slew His Betrayer, and Acquitted.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 13.—G. N. Hanson, president of the Citizens' Bank and Trust company, on trial since Monday for killing J. B. Wert, who, he claims, ruined his wife and destroyed his domestic peace, was today acquitted by the jury.

THE DEBS TRIAL.

His Fiery Speech in Favor of a Boycott.

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—The government attorney in the Debs case today asked that President Debs and the other defendants be called upon to testify. The defense objected, and Judge Woods allowed the matter to pass without ruling.

Joseph Elbers, night clerk at the Leland hotel, testified that he delivered numerous telegrams to Debs and the latter read them in his presence. Wallace Rice, a reporter, who as delegate from the local union was present at the A. R. U. convention, told of the scenes during the consideration of the Pullman strike. Witness said Debs made a fiery speech urging the boycott and declaring that he would rather see the A. R. U. go to wreck in so righteous a cause than drag along uselessly. Howard, Rice said, opposed ordering the boycott.

Manager Mulford of the Western Union produced a message from Mrs. Leland Stanford to Debs, dated July 2, asking him to grant permission to the trainmen to take her private car to San Francisco.

Miss Becker, telegraph operator, testifies that Debs replied to Mrs. Stanford that the trainmen would take her car through.

This was the first evidence that Debs personally sent messages relative to the strike.

Mr. Walker announced the government case closed with the exception of the production of the Pullman contracts.

The defense refused to outline its testimony.

The Old Lady of Threadneedle.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The governors at the Bank of England at the half yearly meeting today declared a dividend of 4 per cent. The reason for the reduction is the decrease of profits, said to be due to the unprecedented increase of the reserve and the low value of money. Since February 28 the net result of the Baring liquidation has been a reduction of £1,075,000, making the liability £2,491,[illegible] and the debt due the bank £2,4[illegible]. It is believed no loss will fall upon the guarantors.

A WAR FOR CIVILIZATION.

Russia, Japan, France and Corea Against China and England.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Pom-K-Soh, a young nobleman of Corea, who for eight years has been exiled from his country, is in the city, bound home at the request of the king of Corea, who desires his counsel and good offices during the war.

Mr. Soh has had many thrilling experiences. He has been over thirty times sentenced to death. Kim Ok Kiun, with whom he fled to Japan originally, was murdered by hired assassins sent from Corea not long ago.

Pom-K-Soh was attached to the Corean embassy at Washington in 1884. A year later his party was overthrown and he was recalled with Kiun.

They had not been long at home until their enemies began to harrass them and finally Soh and Kiun fled the country, escaping death by the merest chance, while many of their companions were massacred.

They went to Japan where Kiun was assassinated. Pom-K-Soh returned to this country, entered Malgers college, where he remained two years. Since then he has occupied various positions and a few days ago King Yi, of Corea, sent him a cablegram asking him to come home, after eight years of exile.

Pom-K-Soh says Ye Sung [illegible], the minister of Corea now here, is a man ill-qualified for the place.

"His close friendliness for the representative of the Chinese government in Washington," he said, "has excited the wonder of all other foreign representatives there. The minister knows that he can't continue in office if the progressive-independents continue to triumph in Corea, and he wants to go home.

But he can't do that without the consent of the Corean government, which he has not had. That is the reason, more than sickness, that he has been postponing his trip. The proper place for him is in Washington attending to the business of his country. But he fears that he will be dismissed. He does not want that, but would rather resign.

"If this war continues Russia will espouse the cause of Japan. Japan, be it understood, is not fighting for conquest, but the spread of Western civilization. This is what China is fighting against. Should Russia be drawn into the fray, I anticipate that England will aid China. Then France will aid Russia and Japan and Corea. I don't think that Germany or any other country will aid England and China, and I am satisfied that we will conquer in the end.

THE WAR AS SEEN BY TOURISTS.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 13.—Tourists arriving on the Empress of China were in Corea about three weeks and came right through the battleground of the Oriental nations in a Japanese steamer.

Mr. Fee denies there has been a battle of any consequence at Asan. "The Japanese," he says, "are camped on one side of the river and the Chinese on the other. And periodically all day long while he was there they were doffing their hats to each other with mock politeness and exchanging sarcastic compliments and salutations. There had been but little skirmish. The Chinese wanted to improve their position and the Japanese resented it, wounding a number of Chinese and chasing them off. None were killed.

As far as he had heard, the Chinese had the best of it. Most of the fights had taken place on the water. He saw one Japanese steamer with her decks swept clean.

A Chinese and Japanese man-of-war had met off Seoul and the Chinese had run up a white flag. This the Japanese took for a flag of truce and sailed up within a few yards of the Chinese, when the latter let fly her whole cannonade broadside and disabled the Japanese at the first volley; but as the Chinese was proceeding to take the disabled boat in tow two Japanese men-of-war hove in sight and the Chinese skipped. The papers are not allowed to publish the accounts of the battles, but one can hear all about them from other sources.

A TWO DAYS' BATTLE.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 13.—Rumors have reached here that a battle was fought between the Chinese and Japanese near Kair Cheng, Corea, about September 2. The native newspapers of September 10 say the fight lasted two days and was still undecided when news was forwarded to the native press.

Chinese papers of September 12 announce that General Yeh, the Chinese commander, reports having gained a victory over the Japanese. It is supposed here, however, that the Chinese have met with reverse at Ping Yang. Floods in Corea still prevent the Chinese troops from crossing the Imchin river to attack the Japanese entrenchments.

Another report current here says that the Kirina division of the Chinese army has crossed the Kalla river and is now building the city of Subing while awaiting the advance of the main body before attacking the Japanese right flank. No reliable news, it may be added, is obtainable here in regard to the progress of the war.

The Hupao reports that the Chinese admiralty has determined to order to Pei Yang from the Yang Tse coast all war ships of a certain tonnage and armament. The Hupao adds that a number of torpedo boats from the squadrons at Foo Chow, Canton and Nanking will also be ordered to Pei Yang.

Intriguing enemies of Viceroy Li Hung Chang have reported to the throne the presence at Tien Tsin of Pei Lun, the viceroy's son-in-law, banished in 1884. The throne has ordered his return to exile.

Satolli Does Not Know It.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—When asked about the reported intention of the pope to direct his return to Rome and elevate him to the rank of cardinal, Monsignor Satolli made the following statement:

"The apostolic delegate has not received any letter as to the recall to Rome. He thinks the news given is at least inexact and he does not know anything of this matter."

DAVIS'S EXECUTION.

It Will Surely Take Place Tomorrow in Utah County.

HE SLEPT WELL LAST NIGHT.

But Was Not Informed of the Governor's Refusal to Interfere in His Behalf Until This Afternoon.

Enoch Davis, the wife murderer whose hours on earth are now so very few, did not pass a sleepless night in his lonely cell at the penitentiary last night.

On the contrary, the information comes from the "death watch" who was stationed over him that he slept soundly and quietly, firm and unwavering in the belief that before another twenty-four hours passed he would hear the welcome words that should commute his death sentence to life imprisonment.

It was not until this afternoon that he was informed that he must die tomorrow. That message was conveyed to him by United States Marshal Brigham and dispelled from his mind the delusion that he would be granted a lease on his life.

The marshal broke the news of his impending fate to him as follows, "Davis, it has gone against you. The Governor says the law must take its course."

"Well, marshal," came the prompt reply with extraordinary coolness from Davis, "that was not our fault; we couldn't help it, could we?"

"No, we could not," responded Marshal Brigham. It was beyond our power."

"Certainly it was."

"Now, Davis, you have not got a very long time to remain here, and if I can do anything to make your last hours pleasant just suggest it and I will do all I can to accommodate you."

"Well, then, marshal, let me have a lot of good whisky. I have drank everything from a mint julep to a stone fence, and know what good whisky is."

To this, the marshal replied, "Dr. Witcher will be with you all night and you can make your wants in that direction known to him."

The explanation seemed entirely satisfactory, and when Davis was asked how he slept last night he said, "splendidly and I shall sleep well tonight, too."

He then asked that he be allowed to see his attorney and Mr. Eugene Traughber, a local newspaper man who has been writing up his case for a number of eastern journals. His request was granted and these gentlemen are in consultation with him as the NEWS goes to press.

He has eaten almost voraciously for some time past and looks in the pink of physical condition. This morning he was given a bath, a new suit of clothes and a clean shave, and as a consequence he presents a better appearance than at any time since his prison life began.

When Mr. Brigham parted with him he shook hands, smiled and said "Good bye."

"Good bye for the present," said the marshal. "We will meet again in the morning."

"Yes, I suppose so, Davis," and the marshal again said good bye and took his departure.

During the day final preparation has gone gradually on and now all is ready for the execution. The announcement is made from the marshal's office that the train carrying the doomed man and the officers designated to accompany him on his last earthly journey will leave for the south over the Union Pacific at 7:45. It is expected that three of Davis's brothers and two of his sons will be present at the execution. They are due here on this evening's train and if they desire, may be permitted to consult with the prisoner in his cell tonight.

There is now no earthly power that can save Davis from being shot to death and the indications are that before the first edition of tomorrow's NEWS has gone to press he will have paid the penalty for murdering his wife by yielding up his own life.

While the NEWS readers may expect full particulars of the execution just as quickly as the information can be obtained by telegraph or otherwise, still they need not look for unnecessarily harrowing details or the sensationalism which some so-called newspapers so much delight in. The NEWS will aim to give a plain, straight story of the execution, and nothing more.

Late this afternoon it was learned that his brothers and sons had stopped over at Provo and that they will therefore not see him until tomorrow.

WAS AN INNOCENT MAN.

Bore Absolutely No Resemblance to Any Kind of an Arsenal.

When the police arrested J. J. Cushing on Tuesday night and charged him with burglary and having shotguns and revolvers in his possession to an extent that caused him to resemble a walking arsenal, it appears that they made a serious blunder, as it has transpired that Cushing was not the man wanted at all, that he had no disturbing irons hidden or in sight either his own or those of another.

After Cushing had passed twenty-four hours in jail the real culprit was last night arrested and taken into the presence of Chief Pratt, to whom he made a complete confession. The result was that Cushing was discharged, and he feels rightly that he has been grossly outraged by being published as a suspected criminal. So far as the NEWS and the item it did so simply on the strength of what the police court records showed and on information received from the officers. It seems to be fully shown that Mr. Cushing had no connection whatever with the case and this paper is anxious that justice should be done him in giving the facts to the public.

Today he was discharged from custody and J. H. Williams, or Guy Walker, as his name appears on the trial docket, must answer to the charge of burglary instead of Mr. Cushing. Nearly [illegible] worth of guns, knives, razors, fishing tackle, etc., were found in his possession, all the property of M. R. Evans, the well known gun and sporting goods man.

GOT LOST AND PERISHED.

Mart Peck, a 14-Year Old Boy, Meets a Dreadful Fate.

Left a Sheep Camp Near Kanosh, Millard Co., and Was Caught in a Storm, and Later was Found Dead.

Special Dispatch to the NEWS.

KANOSH, Millard Co., Sept. 13.—Mart Peck, a 14-year old boy employed to herd for Anthony Paxton of this place, has been missing for a week, and no trace can be found of him. He left the herd on Thursday last, September 6, on horseback, to come to town, since which time he has not been seen. He was caught in a heavy storm, and his horse has been found dead. The saddle had been taken off and laid under a tree, but there were no signs to be found of young Peck in the neighborhood.

Whether he wandered and perished or made his way to some habitation and remained there is unknown. If anyone knows of his whereabouts they would confer a great favor by at once communicating with Anthony Paxton, at Kanosh, Millard county.

The boy came from Provo, but it is understood his home was not there. When he left the camp he was dressed in a light shirt and blue overalls, brown hat with narrow rim, brown denim coat. He was of slim build, and average height for his age.

ANOTHER REPORT—THE BODY FOUND.

Special to the DESERET NEWS.

KANOSH, Utah, Sept. 13.—On the 28th of August Mart Peck, a boy 14 or 15 years old, went into the mountains northeast from Kanosh in company with Anthony Paxton Jr., who is disposing of his interest in the sheep herd to his brother Frank and John Chesley, the man with whom the boy came down from Provo. After a week's trial the boy concluded to hire to these men to herd horse near town and was to board with A. Paxton Sen. He was to remain at the sheep herd until Frank Paxton, came up in a few days to relieve his brother, but the boy was determined to come to town, which could be seen two miles from camp in clear weather. He made several attempts to get a horse and ride without saddle, and on Thursday, September 6, Anthony Paxton, seeing the boy's determination to come down before Frank arrived, let him take a horse, saddle and bridle, and escorted him to the top of the mountain, giving him directions about keeping the trail. The boy seemed very determined about having his own way in getting down. On September 8 Frank went up to the herd, and not more than ten steps from the trail he found the boy's horse lying dead. The saddle and bridle had been taken off and placed under a tree near by. He continued his way to the herd, expecting to find the boy there. He then rode to several other herds, trying to find the boy, and then came back to town and next morning, got a crowd out and went in search without success.

Next day, Wednesday, another large crowd turned out and by noon Hyrum Powers found the dead body of the boy about a mile from where the horse was found.

A storm cloud enveloped the boy and he got bewildered and was lost almost in sight of town in Cottonwood canyon. The body is well preserved and was brought to town.

An inquest was held before the justice of the peace, C. W. Watts, and George Crane, Melvin Rose and Jacob Hopkins, and a verdict returned in accordance with the above facts. The body was taken in charge by Mrs. Adelia Kimball and her corps of relief workers and suitably dressed, and funeral services were held at the meeting house. No one is blamed, but all regret the untimely death of the poor boy.

"BILLY" LYNCH'S WOUNDS.

They Are of a Very Serious Character and May Result in Death.

"Billy" Lynch, the prize fighter, who was shot three times yesterday morning by Thomas J. Hellier, a Cuban dermatologist, whom he was hunting with a revolver, is in a condition today which is so serious as to excite the gravest apprehension on the part of his friends, though he possesses a phenomenal constitution and great physical strength and may recover from the effects of the terrible experience brought about by his own folly.

Whatever of guilt or wrong-doing may attach to the "complexion specialist," say the police, he cannot be rated in the same list of disreputables as Lynch, whose career in Salt Lake has been one of continued lawlessness. There are others, however, who declare that he is no worse than the man who so nearly ended his life, and think they belong to the same class of sporting people.

Hellier's defense will be that he shot only in self-protection. He is still in jail and will doubtless be held until there is a decisive turn in Lynch's condition.

Nephi W. Clayton, James Jack and Frank J. Cannon filed the articles of incorporation and made affidavit that at least 10 per cent of the capital stock already had been paid into the hands of a treasurer for the corporation.

The property owned by the corporation is as follows:

The Cullen Springs coal mine property, comprising 120 acres on Grass Creek, with all appurtenances, including a boiler, engine, hoisting machinery, screens, scales, trackage, blacksmith shop, etc., subject to the right of way of the Echo & Park City railroad, heretofore belonging to Wilford Woodruff, George Q. Cannon, Joseph F. Smith, James Jack and Nephi W. Clayton.

Three hundred acres of land in section 28, township 3 north of range 5 east, valued at $1,000,000.

An undivided one-half interest in the south half of the southeast quarter and lot 4 of section 18, and the north half of the northeast quarter of section 19, township 3 north, range 6 east, in Summit county, valued at $2,000,000.

Nine hundred and thirty shares of the capital stock of the Salt Lake & Los Angeles Railway company, valued at $130,000.

One thousand and fifty shares of the capital stock of the Saltair Beach company, valued at [illegible].

Twelve hundred and forty-nine shares of the capital stock of the Inter-Mountain Salt company, valued at $124,900.

The stockholders named above are all directors of the company, and at a meeting held yesterday, subsequent to the filing of the articles, the following officers were elected:

George Q. Cannon, president; Joseph F. Smith, vice president; N. W. Clayton, secretary; and James Jack, treasurer.

The following executive committee was also chosen: Frank J. Cannon, N. W. Clayton and W. W. Cluff. This committee will have active charge and management of the business.

It may be here stated that a party of experts who came to Utah during this summer appraised the value of the properties named at over $1,000,000 in excess of the figures of the incorporators themselves. The officers are not yet in a position to give full details of the matter, but hope to do so at an early date. Meanwhile strong talk of a railroad to the coal mines is heard—a proposition that would mean the saving of nearly a million dollars per annum to this city in the matter of fuel alone. Other projects of like size and importance are in view. Altogether the probability is that the community will not have to wait long for an illustration of the benefits which this concentration of means and influence is expected to accomplish for the people of the Territory.
