Have You a Home?

If not it will pay you to investigate the advantages of Forest Dale before buying elsewhere. We have our own water system; water piped in most desirable cast iron pipes, and the ownership of the water, including the extension of the pipes past your door gives purchasers in Forest Dale little if any more than laying the mains in most cities. The advantage this affords will be readily seen, for the water belongs to the residents each purchaser of a lot being allowed his proportion of the capital stock of the Forest Dale Water Company and it rests with them to fix the water rates charged. The expense of running the system is very small, and after the first expense of laying the mains is paid the rates need not be more than one-tenth those charged by Salt Lake City.

Have You Saved Anything?

Some people have been waiting for years for land to reach bottom prices. In the meantime they have paid rent, and if they have made any improvements or done any work on their residences, the improvements have been made, or the work done, for their landlord. Many other people have built homes, and while those first mentioned have been "waiting for something to turn up," have paid for their property and now own the house that shelters them.

Don't Get in Debt

unless you feel assured you can get out again. But if you have money saved, buy a home. If you have an income, buy a home. It pays to have an object in view, and there is no more worthy object than procuring a home for those dependent upon you.

My clerks, at room 332 Constitution Building, will give you prices and show you the property.

DESERET EVENING NEWS.

SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1894.

TO UTAH'S WORKERS.

Address by the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing Society.

THE TERRITORIAL FAIR OF 1894.

All Hands Should Join in Making the Exhibition the Great est and Best Ever Held.

To the People of Utah Territory:

The Directors of the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing Society have announced the Territorial Fair for 1894; and notwithstanding the temporary financial depression they have the most unbounded confidence and faith that it will prove a gratifying success. The enterprising citizens of Utah have shown to the numerous exhibits to which we have recently contributed and this Territory can and will do herself justice in all that she undertakes. The World's Fair, Midwinter Fair and the Industrial fairs have proved hard upon each other, yet our Territory was not found wanting in any particular.

TWENTY-ONE YEARS OLD.

Now comes the Utah Territorial fair, which is of greater immediate interest to us than any of the others, because it will not be the product of a city, or of a county; nor will it be an exhibit gotten together for outside use, but it will be the whole Territory's exposition, showing our progress in agriculture, manufactures, mining, art and education.

It is the aim of the society to bring together at its twenty-first exhibition, this year—the year of its manhood—an exhibit of home products surpassing in excellence anything yet seen in this Territory. And why should we not succeed in this aim? We have the experience of our own twenty late and of the great international exhibitions, and we can profit by the lessons learned. Of course it would be useless to attempt to imitate, even on a small scale, an exhibition which cost twenty millions, or one which cost several hundred thousands of dollars; but with the means and spaces our command it is possible to raise the standard of excellence, materially increase the number of exhibits, and make the Fair more educational in its character by paying greater attention to order and classification.

But the success desired cannot be brought about by the directors alone. It rests with the people. It must have the support of the stock raiser, the farmer, the miner, the artist, the school and the fancy worker. They must bring together their products and we appeal to them at this time to keep the exhibit in mind and prepare their exhibits so that in October they will be ready to make a satisfactory showing. Do not leave it until the Fair is opened, for it will then be too late.

SPECIAL PREMIUMS.

One of the greatest helps to the Fair is the custom of our merchants and citizens of offering special premiums for articles of home production. With our limited means we feel as if we could scarcely succeed without a continuation of this generosity so willingly manifested on the part of our citizens. It is particularly needful at this time when so much is being urged in behalf of our home manufactures. Besides, the directors desire to make the department of the Fair overwhelming constitute of the present "home goods" agitation.

LIFE MEMBERSHIP.

One of the by-laws of the society provides that persons may be admitted to life-membership upon payment of the sum of twenty-five dollars, and a certificate of such life-membership shall be issued to them by the secretary, which certificate must entitle the person named thereto, at any time, to be admitted himself and also to make active at the exhibition of the society, without extra charge. In earlier years, when money was scarce, the privileges of life-membership were sought by most of our prominent citizens, but of late very few names have been added to the list. The directors desire to call the attention of the people to this matter and urge the purchase of these life certificates. They are living monuments of honor, and show the holder's concern in Utah's enterprises. The funds derived from the sale of these certificates are used in offering premiums to exhibitors of home products.

A STIMULATING AGENCY.

In closing it will be unnecessary for us to argue in favor of the Fair as a stimulating agency for home manufactures. The great good derived from our exhibitions has always been impressed upon the minds of the people of this Territory, and all civilized nations now acknowledge the power and value of their exhibitions as aids to the promotion of industrial arts and in the development of natural resources.

By order of the board of directors of the Deseret Agricultural and Manufacturing Society.

JOHN R. WINDER, President.

GEO. D. PYPER, Secretary.

At Mill Creek.

The meeting at Mill Creek last evening to discuss the county high school scheme was well attended, and much interest prevailed. It is learned that the prospects for the establishment of a school of the character is quite probable, and that the school will open in September next.

A SISTER OF THE PROPHET

In Her 86th Year, She Still Resides in Illinois.

A Carthage Editor Interviews Her and Makes Remarks Regarding the Mormons While in Illinois.

The following is from the Carthage, Ills., Republican of May 10, and will be of more than passing interest to the Latter-day Saints, as it relates to the only surviving sister of the Prophet Joseph Smith and is instrumental which are deeply impressed in the history of the Mormon people:

A representative of the Republican recently paid a visit to the home of Fred Salisbury, residing some four miles northeast of Fountain Green, and was cordially received by that gentleman and family, as well as by his venerable and aged mother, Mrs. Catherine Salisbury, who is a sister of the Prophet Joseph Smith. On the 17th day of June next will mark the fiftieth anniversary of the massacre of Hyrum and Joseph Smith in the old stone jail at Carthage. The silver-crowned patriarch who will be 91 years old in July, bears a striking resemblance to her nephew, the present Joseph Smith, son of the Prophet, and president of the [Reorganized] Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, at Lamoni, Iowa. Some resemblance to the martyrs Prophet, as shown in some of the photographs of him, may be noted in the features of this venerable lady, but very little.

Mrs. Salisbury, as well as her son, was ready to answer any questions relating to their noted relatives or the early rendezvous of Mormonism in Hancock county.

"We have been interviewed by authors and newspaper writers," said Mrs. Salisbury, "but we have not always received justice in histories or published stories. All we ask is a fair representation."

Mrs. Salisbury also stated that her father's life and acts had been most cruelly misrepresented. She names the writer who visited a number of years ago by Mrs. Lucy Smith, mother of Joseph, which she says is the most authentic account of the Smith family ever published.

Mrs. Salisbury resided with her husband at Plymouth, in this county, during the Mormon occupancy. She with with her parents and brothers and sisters, save Joseph and Hyrum, first located near the present site of Macdonough, McDonough county, at the time the Mormons were driven out of Missouri. The major portion of the Mormons remained in Quincy two or three weeks after leaving Missouri until Joseph and Hyrum were liberated from jail. They then followed their leader to Nauvoo, where the "New Zion" was built upon these beautiful hills.

"I heard Brother Joseph's last sermon, delivered to a great multitude in Nauvoo," said Mrs. Salisbury, and a look of tender sadness lighted up those dimming eyes as she spoke. "In that sermon," continued the venerable lady, "Brother Joseph said that there was seated on the speaker's stand beside him those who were conspiring to take his life, and who would be responsible for his death."

Among the valuable relics exhibited to the visitor was a portrait of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, standing facing each other, dressed in the peculiar costumes worn by them as Prophets of the Church. "That is the position they assumed the last time I ever saw my brothers," said Mrs. Salisbury. "It left them on the Saturday (June 22, 1844) before the Thursday that they were murdered at Carthage. Brother Joseph took my hand, saying, 'Sister Catherine, as soon as this trouble blows over I will come down to Plymouth and make you a visit.' Brother Hyrum simply said 'Good-bye' in an impressive manner. I never saw them again in life. They were both very kind to me, and whenever there was a Church celebration or any big outings at Nauvoo they would always seek for me."

Mr. Fred Salisbury had no hesitation in saying that the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum Smith, while buried secretly and at night soon after the massacre, lie in the exact spot where they were then buried, viz: in the family burying ground a short distance in the rear of the old mansion house. The bodies were deposited in a wagon vault. "When Aunt Emma Smith—Joseph's widow, later Mrs. C. L. Bidamon—died in 1879, I think, she or we hope, Fred, Sammie, Dick and Alvin Smith and Don Bidamon, all her nephews, would be call upon to act as pall bearers. We buried Aunt Emma by the side of the Prophet. Of course there can be nothing left of the bodies of Joseph and Hyrum so deep, and so far down, that the Prophets were not there, as they had been disturbed."

"The reason why the bodies were moved," said Mrs. Salisbury, "came from the fact that a large crowd of men were offered for the bodies of Joseph. It was thought best at the time to have the burial private, and both bodies were placed in a brick vault to prevent their being stolen."

No subsequent person could receive any other impression from conversation with Mrs. Salisbury than one of sincerity. There can be little doubt that the Mormons have received very much undue criticism, and it is hoped that in some future time a history of the coming, the sojourn and the passing of these people to and from Hancock county may be truthfully and impartially written.

A GREAT RECORD.

Given by the World's Fair Jury to the Price Baking Powder Company.

Special attention is called to the announcement of the Price Baking Powder Company on another page of this issue. There can be no question of the high standard of their goods, as their purity and nutritive merit have long established beyond a shadow of doubt. The World's Fair record is one of which any company might well be proud.

SPECIAL EMOLUMENTS OFFERED BY THE KELLEY INSTITUTE.

It will doubtless be good news to the people of Salt Lake City and Utah in general to know that the Keeley Institute of Salt Lake is still open at the old stand (Hotel Dell) and inviting all the victims of the drink and opium habits. The good that has been accomplished through this Institution is too well known to need repeating at this time. Suffice it to say that out of 274 patients treated, only six of the number have relapsed. Such a record, remarkable as it is, does not expose the amount of good done. It cannot do so. Over the hundreds of men treated have returned to their homes, and are enjoying, in all and total redemption of the parents themselves. All that has been said before. With the commencement of the present year the management of this Institute at Salt Lake City has been entirely changed and the morale of the establishment is expressed James F. Woodman is proprietor, John Beck vice-president, Hiram G. Clawson, L. John Nuttall and H. M. McCallum are directors, Dr. Geo. T. Jacobs-Jones is Dr. L. G. Dorsey, late of the parent Institute at Dwight, Ill., and who resides at the Institute with his family, H. H. Knowlton manager, and A. C. Ivins cashier, with his family. The people who have been benefited directly and indirectly by this institution, and who know that the treatment is no longer an experiment and that nothing but good results from it for many years could keep it in business, are the parties to whom we look for their aid in the great work of reclaiming erring humanity, believing that the fruits of past labors should be sufficient evidence of the absolute efficacy of the Keeley treatment and the great good it may achieve, thus entitling the Institute to the good-will of the people of Utah. In contemplating the stringency of the money market and as a special inducement, the management offers to more patients coming then, results at the Institute free of charge. Board can be obtained in the immediate vicinity at reasonable rates. Anyone desiring information can either call at or address The Keeley Institute of Salt Lake.

Keep your beds and your mattresses, in short, your bedding, in a sanitary condition by using Cleveland's Sanitary Mattress Renovator. It is a new idea and a great success. It is a few cents per month. Ladies specially invited to call and see it in action.

SIGNS of the TIMES

NO SPECIAL IMPROVEMENT IN SIGHT. HOW SHALL WE MEET THE SITUATION?

When Senator Teller said a few days ago that he could not now foresee the result to which these present conditions were leading us, and perhaps it is well for the peace of mind that he could not, it set many people to thinking very seriously.

But fortunately the American people are not given to yielding to difficulties, but to overcoming them. We anticipated a great depression in trade and began some months ago making preparations to meet it by preparing ourselves to make prices lower than ever before and for doing business with less profit than ever before, realizing in times like these that the great attraction a merchant could offer. We have not lost off any of our old help, but have employed a large number of new, putting more and travelers in new fields, and largely increasing our mail-order department, and we are rewarded by receiving a large increase in the number of orders. In fact, our agents and traveling salesmen are doing a very satisfactory business.

We are now making a very clean, neat business suit for $14.50 and our $18.50, $19.50 and $20 suits look just as nice that Merchant and the one cost $25 and $30, while our prices on the very finest wheel are proportionately low.

GOOD ADVICE

Fire Insurance in Hard Times.

Having periods of depression, the property that often offers better for sale than in better times, prompts us to call attention to our policies, recognized as Standard throughout the Business. In a time like this, when so many are anxious to realize on their property, and so many are anxious to invest in good property, we feel that we can safely say, that a fire policy, in one of the leading companies represented by us, would be better money to invest in than in any other property. The Fire Insurance Business is now upon a basis that makes it safe to carry out the contract of insurance, and the business is conducted upon a more satisfactory basis than ever before. The Fire Insurance Business is the only business that has not been cut down in profits, and the only business that has not been cut down in profits, and the only business that has not been cut down in profits, and
