How a Cattle Thief Got Off—Bride and Bridegroom Injured—Killed by a Snake—Incidents.

Melvin Abbott, the 10-year-old son of G. F. Abbott, a capitalist, was drowned at Redondo, Cal., Saturday afternoon. He was fishing on the wharf and fell into the water. The body has not yet been recovered.

An odd step in the movement for booming local industries, which has lately started up and attained much headway has been made at Sioux Falls, S. D. An ordinance has been passed requiring all peddlers and hawkers who sell goods not manufactured or produced in the state to pay a license of $10 a day.

Manti Messenger: J. J. Ross met with an accident at the Morrison coal mine on Tuesday night which resulted in breaking his leg. He was brought home to Manti and Dr. H. P. Morrey rendered medical assistance. The affair happened through the breaking of the cord that signals the engineer. On account of this a hoist was made when not intended.

Beaver Utonian: Notwithstanding the unusually dry and hot summer, the hay crop is the best for many years in quantity and quality, not one ton in our Beaver precinct having been injured by rain; the grain is well filled, and we are blessed with a good and abundant harvest, which was well garnered and threshing is on good headway. The fruit crop, particularly apples, is one of the best and heaviest we ever had in Beaver.

Nephi, Juab county, Miner: The Rose boys have bonded their mine in Little Salt Creek for ten days from last Monday for the sum of $15,000. The bond was taken by a Salt Lake syndicate represented by Duncan J. Frew and others. Copies of the agreement have been placed in the attorney's hands and the deal has all the probability of going through. Other Salt Lake men are becoming interested in the Little Salt Creek proposition and experts from there are now in the field looking the ground over.

A mystery surrounds the fate of the 4-year-old son of George Hill, a resident of Galt, Cal. On Thursday the boy accompanied his grandfather on a drive in the direction of Dry creek. The old gentleman got out of the buggy to open a gate, when the horse started on a mad run toward the creek. The horse was caught on the other side of the creek, but the child was not in the buggy and has not been seen since. The supposition is that the little fellow was thrown into the creek and drowned.

Wasatch county Wave: Thomas Broadhead, aged 17, met with a very painful accident Wednesday afternoon, on his father's ranch west of Heber. While engaged in hauling grain from the field to the stack he had to cross a ditch on the way and in so doing he was thrown from the load. In the fall his right arm caught on one of the sharp stakes on the rack, used in holding on the load, which passed through the arm about half way between the elbow and wrist, holding the young man a prisoner until he could climb upon the wheel high enough to enable him to pull his arm back up over the upper end of the stake. Dr. Aird was summoned who made the lacerated limb as comfortable as possible. The stake was made of hawthorne wood and was about an inch in diameter.

Vernon, B. C., has a sensation. Jack McKinnon, an open-hearted and generous butcher, the most popular man in the district, had been for some time earnestly considering with others the many big cattle steals that have taken place lately in that section. A large reward was offered and the community was thunderstruck recently when it was announced that a detective had run the cattle thief to earth, and it was none other than big-hearted Jack McKinnon. McKinnon was arrested and put in irons. On the third day after his arrest one of his numerous friends left a saddled horse outside the jail and managed to pass a file into him. When the turnkey came with the prisoner's supper, McKinnon had his irons filed through, and, pushing aside the turnkey, he mounted the horse and escaped. The authorities could get no help, for the people wanted Jack to get away, and he did. He is now safe in hiding on American soil.

Brigham City Bugler: "Sister, don't tell mamma; but I have seen our little dead brother and another angel and they told me I will die a week from today." Those were the prophetic words of Frusia Snow, whispered in the ear of her startled sister. One week from that day she died. Frusia was the fifteen-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius A. Snow of this city. She was a model girl. About two weeks ago she was in her father's vineyard. Here she accidentally stepped upon an ugly snake. Her fright was so great that she swooned on the spot. In falling, she dislocated her ankle and may also have been bitten by the snake. It was either a garter or water snake, neither of which is poisonous. From that on to the hour of her death at noon, Wednesday, Frusia suffered like a little martyr. The terrible nervous shock was followed by fever, to which she finally succumbed. Several hundred people attended the funeral services in the Fourth ward meeting house, Thursday afternoon. The mourning parents have the sympathy of the entire community.

Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Ralnsdon, of Bloomington, Idaho, were put aboard the northbound night train, says the Brigham City Bugler. The lady's legs were so badly bruised that she was unable to stand upon them; the man was stretched out upon a cot with a terrible gun shot in his back. The accident that thus made helpless this young couple occurred in Mantua, Sunday afternoon. In passing through the town, their wagon ran off one of the small bridges. Both occupants of the vehicle, together with a loaded shot gun, were thrown out upon the ground. The gun was discharged, shooting Mr. Ralnsdon in the right shoulder. The wagon rolled over Mrs. Ralnsdon's legs, all but breaking both of them. The wounded man displayed great nerve by leaping to his feet and rushing to the assistance of his suffering wife. The Mantua people gave the sufferers hospitable treatment. It seems that this was Mr. and Mrs. Ralnsdon's wedding tour, they having been married but a month.

Baker, Oregon, Democrat: Word reaches here today of the awful fate of an Indian baby about thirty miles from The Dalles one day last week. The Indians were upon the Des Coutre river picking berries, and as is their custom, the women were doing all the work, while the bucks were sitting around campgambling and otherwise amusing their lordly selves. One woman set her baby down in the brush so that she could more readily pick the berries, and when she had gone away some distance, along came an old hungry bear and immediately commenced to make a breakfast of the infant. The poor woman heard the cries of her infant, and thinking that it was being injured, picked up a butcher knife and rushed to its assistance, and upon nearing the spot from whence the cries were issuing, a most distracting sight met her eyes. There, where she had left the little helpless baby, was a huge, savage bear with the infant in its ugly claws and gnawing at the prostrate body. Only a minute's hesitation and the distracted mother heroically began the fight, but the bear was too powerful for her, and, although she fought as only a mother could fight under such circumstances, the burly bear was too much for her, and when she was rescued by the lazy Indian bucks, she was almost dead with fright and loss of blood. She had been torn about the arms and neck and was otherwise terribly lacerated. When the poor mother was restored the little child had passed to the great beyond, its body having almost been devoured by the hungry brute.
