BREVITIES.

How to meet a bankrupt; Take no note of him.

What is the only pain we make light of? A window-pane.

Men, like books, have at each end a blank page—childhood and age.

Agriculture has assumed a new phase in Nebraska. The farmers are all planting forests.

Lower California, 750 miles long and from 30 to 120 miles wide, has a population of less than 20,000.

The London Times thus begins an editorial: "Now that Italy has come by her own, would she be so kind as to take back her organ-grinders?"

The old lady who used to dry her clothes on the equinoctial line has gone to Greenland to get the north pole to draw cistern water with.

"Are you near-sighted, Miss?" said an impudent fellow to a young lady who did not once choose to notice him. "Yes, at this distance I can scarce tell whether you are a pig or a puppy."

It is said that the Pope fainted recently, and was, for some hours, thought to be dying. He is said to be very much struck by the Roman proverb, which says: "No Pope reigns longer than twenty-five years."

An Irishman decapitated a turtle, and afterwards was amusing himself by putting sticks in its mouth, which it bit with violence. A lady who saw the proceeding exclaimed: "Why, Patrick, I thought the turtle was dead?" "So he is, ma'am, but the crather's not sensible of it."

Bismarck declines personally to confer with the English Ambassador at Berlin, but refers him to a subordinate, because he is not accredited in a "first-class" manner.

A beautiful Jewess attended a party in Philadelphia, where she was annoyed by a vulgar impertinent fellow.

"And you never eat pork, Miss M.?" he asked tauntingly.

"No, sir; our religion teaches us to avoid everything swinish, physically and morally; therefore you will excuse me for declining to have any more words with you."

A map agent, who canvassed Wilmington, Ill., bored a man named Daley until the latter told him that he would subscribe for sixteen maps for himself and friends, if the agent would take trade for them. To this the agent agreed, and Daley, who is an undertaker, immediately expressed to the agent's home, in Michigan, a very large coffin, with plate enclosed; also a bill of $42, giving credit for sixteen maps, $41 50, and asking for a remittance of the balance. The agent did not trouble him again

The late Bishop Doane, of New Jersey, was strongly opposed to temperance; and his sideboard was loaded with brandy, wine &c. On one occasion, Rev. Mr. Perkins, of the Sons of Temperance, dined with the Bishop, who, pouring out a glas of wine, desired him to drink with him. "Can't do it Bishop. Wine is a mocker."

"Take a glass of brandy, then?"

"Can't do it, Bishop. Strong drink is raging."

By this time the Bishop becoming somewhat excited, remarked to Mr. Perkins, "You'll pass the decanter to the next gentleman?"

"No, Bishop, I can't do that: Woe unto him that putteth the bottle to his neighbour's lips."

A man and his wife were sitting at breakfast the other day: the husband was trying to read the paper while his wife was lecturing him on his dissipated hours. He suddenly looked up from his paper, and said, "Here is a perfectly correct sentiment. A writer in this paper says, 'The best capital to begin life with is a capital wife.'" "That's very true, dear" replied the wife, smiling, in order that her remark should elict a compliment; "but where can you always get them?"—"In the deaf and dumb asylum, of course."

A decent looking Irishman, stopping at an hotel to warm himself, inquired of the Landlord, "what was the news?" The Landlord, disposed to run a rig upon Paddy, replied:

"They say that the devil is dead!"

"An sure" quoth Pat, "that's news indade."

Shortly after, Pat stalks up to the bar, and, depositing some coppers, resumed his seat.

The landlord, always ready for a customer, asked him what he would take.

"Nothing at all," said Pat.

"Why did you put down this money?" asked his host.

"Och, an' sure, sir," said Pat, "it's the custom in my own country, when a chap like you loses his daddy, to give him a few coppers to help pay for the wake!"

A friend writes us:—In the village of Henderson, I was introduced to a buxom school girl of 14 years, who possessed the following name: Dionysia Boadicea Jeffalindia Jacobina Christiana Bucklana Caledonia Susannah Emily Wyart Wilkinson Moore Wynne. This young lady is a cousin of a young man of that village who, in the short span of his life of 22, has done and suffered the following things: He has had over a hundred personal encounters; has shot mortally three men; not mortally eight; is now resting under seven bail bonds; has been through the war from the beginning; married, buried an infant daughter, and separated from his wife, who is now going to school; and is now living on his father's substance, in possession of a fine pair of boots, a spavined horse, a Mexican saddle, a silver watch, three revolvers and a Derringer, and $1 in specie. All this he told me himself, with much satisfaction. He expects to attend the Waco races, but does not expect to lay heavy wagers.
