COST OF REPAIRING STREETS.

Superintendent Greenwood's estimate of the cost of repairing the streets of the whole city based upon a length of 600 feet long by 40 feet wide, amounts to $1,000 per block. This includes the City creek gravel pit, a distance of not more than twelve blocks, would be $400 per block. Cost of cutting down the north and heating in the center would cost about 200 per block. If the gravel could be hauled by one and thirteen on Eighth South and Fourth West, the cost would be reduced about one half or $[illegible] per week. I find upon investigation that there are three zones in which sidewalks have been ordered and not built. The O'Hearn property on State street, between Second and Third South; Talbot property on First South between Second and Third East, and the Congregational church property on First South. In all cases, the delay has been caused by improvements on the property, but the walks are now in process of construction.

LEVERS EXTENDED.

The same official reported that he had extended levels over all that portion of the city from Canyon road to the Fort Douglas reservation, and between South Temple and Fourth street; that he had prepared profiles showing street and sidewalk grades covering that part of said District lying east of and including F street. He recommended that the work be extended so far north as Eighth street. Committee on streets.

PITTSBURGH PLACE MAPS.

The same official reported that maps of Pittsburgh Place had been filed in his office, and asked for information with regard to approval of the same. Attention was called to the fact that the streets in said subdivision do not conform with a street in that part of the city. Committee on streets.

SHOULD BE ADOPTED.

The same officer represented that in paving State street the tracks of the Rapid Transit Company would be laid with a view to permanency and the crossings with the Salt Lake Company were not being laid with proper reference to the center of the street, and that it seemed necessary that something should be done to make the proper adjustment. Committee on streets with power to act.
