SHIPPING TO CHINA.

Logan Mills Furnishing Utah Flour to Mongolians.

HUNDREDS OF TONS SHIPPED.

The Thatcher Mills are In It for Business.—Shipment to this City.

Today a carload of flour made from Utah wheat is being unloaded at the local warehouse of the Thatcher Mill and Elevator company at the old school house just inside the Eagle Gate. The company's mills are located at Logan, and it is only a short time since that a branch house was opened in this city, as stated in the News at the time. Subsequent to this move, however, business has been pushed, and a goodly number of Salt Lake people have tested the high quality of bread made from Cache Valley flour.

The Thatcher company, however, have not been satisfied to keep within the home market, but have reached out for whatever sales could be made at a considerable profit. In the past the middle flour has been comparatively limited because the cost of freight was too high. Each year, however, has witnessed strides toward overcoming this difficulty, and this month the Thatcher company has made such a bound that they are able to find profitable market on the other side of the globe.

Some time since the company determined on sending a shipment of Utah flour to the chief commercial city of the Flowery Kingdom, and not yet accomplishing that purpose, China is a long way off, and freights were high, but by [illegible] effort a satisfactory rate was secured from San Francisco. When the railroads were contacted the Southern Pacific made a cut, and then the Union Pacific gave figures so reduced that the mill people got right to work and ship out several hundred tons of finest Utah flour, for which they will receive a price that will allow fair profit. Under the arrangement made, thirty carloads in the quantity to be forwarded on the first shipment from San Francisco Bay. What may follow is still a matter for more consideration, but the way cannot close the company will not neglect its opportunities.

Gathering Them In.

The crossarms for use on the new telephone poles, which have for weeks been lying scattered along the streets in readiness to put in position, are now being gathered up and taken to the telephone company's new quarters north of the Theater, where they will remain till the company commences to agitate string new wires. Retrenchment in the matter of expenses is in order with them as well as with other firms. Last week some fifteen men were laid off by this company and a few more this week, about twenty in all. There are now only about five men engaged on outside work. It is said a number of these laid-off workmen have received offers of work in Butte, Montana, where there is considerable telephone work being done, free passes being tendered those who accept the employment offered. It is thought, however, that the local suspension of outside work will not be of long duration, in fact it cannot be deferred long, as a number of the old poles on the street are dangerous owing to their decayed condition near the ground.

IN FROM BINGHAM.

Justice Quinn Says the Feeling is More Hopeful Now Than Ever Before.

Justice B. R. Quinn of Bingham was down from his abode among the mines today and was in a rather happy and hopeful mood. There was a stronger feeling of confidence in the camp, he said, than for some time past. A good deal of quiet and effective work was being carried on. He himself was employing a number of men at $2.25 per day each. The mines workers of Bingham are of the opinion that their interests will yet be saved and have accordingly resolved to stay by their prospect holes and employers to the last.

Wedding and Reception.

The friends of Attorney John M. Cannon and Zina Beaudin are preparing to bestow upon them a veritable shower of congratulations. The occasion of the demonstration lies in the fact that the happy young couple were married today. The ceremony took place in the Salt Lake Temple and was performed by Elder Angus M. Cannon, father of the groom. A noteworthy incident in connection with the union is that today was the thirty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of the groom's parents. Tonight the newly wedded pair will be given a quiet reception at the residence of the bride's father on Oak street in this city.

OLD FOLKS AT THE DEPOT.

A Mammoth Train and a Tremendous Crowd of Happy Aged People.

That was a picture heartbreakingly beautiful that was presented at the Union Pacific depot this morning. As early as 7 o'clock the old people commenced to arrive in street cars and carriages and on foot, some of the stronger ones preferring to walk to the train. The train, the splendidly organized committees were on hand with their sashes and pinned the red, blue and white badges on the breasts of the aged recipients. The train consisted of nine twenty cars, and was under the personal supervision of John Arnold, the veteran conductor. Every car was filled. The train was the biggest one of the kind that ever pulled out of a Utah depot and was propelled by two of the biggest and best engines in the Union Pacific service. Both were gaily decorated with flags and streamers and bunting.

As the train started for the Junction scores upon scores of handkerchiefs waved a brief farewell. An hour and a half later the "Old Folks" were the guests of the generous people of Ogden.

INDIAN TERRITORY MISSION.

The Prospects Favorable.—Baptisms.—An Attempt at Mobocracy.

Extracts from letters to Elder Andrew Kimball, from Wm. H. Hendricks, Manard, Indian Territory, and Elder H. B. Lewis, Chickasha, Oklahoma Territory:

We are about as usual—health good and prospects favorable. We had a good meeting today, with an address by Elder Woodbury. All the other Elders are out in the field. Our Mormon school has closed for the summer, but we hope to open with better prospects in the fall; we will also have meetings weekly. Crops are very good. I wish I could express you a box of peaches grown on the trees which Elder West and yourself set out for us when you were here, but I am afraid they are too ripe. We had a fine mess of roasting ears the other day. If I could ship you a couple of dozen you would appreciate them. The corn is higher than one's head. Cotton looks fine about here, but poor on the bottoms. We helped Auntie Hicks to harvest her wheat last week; mine will be ready in a few days. The people in general are doing well, but money is scarce. Times are hard, but for the crooked movements are giving us on the money which we expect from the sale of that land near Oklahoma thinks of our people would suffer. Our chief and delegation returned from the East last week without a dollar, claiming they could not get more than 10 cents on the dollar from the banks.

Politics are raging high in the Chickasaw nation. I attended a meeting the other day and met several of your old friends. Prospects are favorable for some baptisms this summer. We hope some of our friends, former missionaries, will visit us this year on their way to the World's Fair; we will make them welcome. We expect quite a number from Saints to swell our number at the October conference. The boys in Oklahoma have baptized eleven persons lately.

WM. H. HENDRICKS.

OKLAHOMA.

You will remember the cyclone which passed over this country some time ago. Here we call them "Oklahoma twisters." It is beyond our power to describe the awful scene; cyclones were not known here until this spring. Some three months ago Elder H. M. Rawlin and I passed through that settlement which was afterwards devastated. We made application for entertainment nine different times, and each time we turned away. It was raining and very muddy; we walked on nine miles and secured shelter for the night. In the neighborhood where we were refused entertainment the people were well to do, owned large houses and barns, with comfortable surroundings, but could not keep the Mormons. My present companion and I visited that place a short time since and found a very different state of things. We did not ask again for entertainment, for there was none to be given, no door to be closed against us, for they were all destroyed or blown away, no people to refuse us shelter for they were enough. It made our hearts sick to view this terrible wreck. I called Brother Lowe's attention to the place where a large house had stood the temples of which were now in the spirit world. Allowing our imaginations to enter into the awful situation, we could almost imagine that we heard the groans of the wounded and dying. A glance at where once had been a prosperous town of over forty habitations was now but a pile of ruins—everything blown and torn to pieces, wagon beds spoked, tires fallen off, boxes in splinters, trees laid low, the bark and leaves gone, houses broken up, the wire tangled in the trees, and of what had once been the homes of human beings now scarcely anything left but the excavations. Oh, what a sight to behold! The cyclone came to the night attended by a fierce rain and hail storm. Imagine the suffering of those people, their shelter torn from them, left exposed and bleeding in the morning storm! We were only twelve miles from the scene, and two weeks later visited the place. I never want to see such a sight again. Among the most important events of my exploits in this new field has been to gain permission to preach to the Osages the first Mormon discourse in this Territory, and last, but not least, I shall lead the first converts into the waters of baptism.

ATTEMPTED MOBOCRACY.

When we were ready to go to the water, we were informed that a mob of about fifteen men intended to drive us out of the country that night. Our converts thought we had better put off the baptism, but we did not. After confirming the news we went to the post office. The "rogues" must have thought we were going to leave, for three men came and made inquiry as to our whereabouts. One of our number, who had just been baptized, talked with such power to the leader of the mob that he shed tears, asked forgiveness and dismissed the mob. While all this was going on we were being pleasantly entertained with organ music at the possession house. They told the people there would be a debate in the schoolhouse that evening, at the same time requesting Saints and children to remain home. They thought to trap us, but it did not work. God is blessing the efforts of our labors. Our health is good. H. B. LEWIS.

WITHIN OUR GATES.

W. C. Wallace of Alta and F. L. Cushing, one of Bingham, came down to this center of civilization by rail last evening. The Cullen captured both of them.

B. F. Jones, the Bingham City lawyer, came home this evening after a prospect at the hands of the Ogden bar and came out without being run down.
