TRUTH AND LIBERTY.

NO. 212. FRIDAY, AUGUST 3, 1894, SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH. VOL. XXVII.

SANTO SENTENCED.

The Assassin of Carnot to Die By Guillotine.

GREAT EXCITEMENT IN COURT.

A Fellow Prisoner Gives Testimony Which the Murderer Strongly Contradicts.

LYONS, Aug. 3.—At the conclusion of the trial of Caserio Santo, the murderer of President Carnot, the prisoner was sentenced to be executed by guillotine.

There were few people around the palace when the trial of Santo, the assassin of President Carnot, was resumed today. The prisoner seemed even more defiant than yesterday and took his seat with a mocking smile upon his face. Le Blanc, a fellow prisoner with Caserio at Marseilles, testified that Caserio told him he intended to kill President Carnot, probably at Lyons, where the chief magistrate visited that city.

"That is a lie," interrupted Caserio, excitedly. "I never told you so any one else anything about my plans."

Le Blanc continued, "Caserio confessed to me that he was desperate, ready to die."

"That is untrue," shrieked Caserio."

"Have witnesses?" asked Le Blanc, turning to the prisoner. "I ask to see after you had made that remark, 'but was it would be said to kill President Carnot? I saw him in Paris surrounded by troops and police.' You answered, 'we will be known by 10.'"

There was great excitement in the court while the prisoner and Le Blanc were speaking to each other. Later Le Blanc said:

"Caserio told me he had often seen King Humbert in the streets, but he added that to kill him it would be necessary to have a different stock from that street, as he would be surrounded by soldiers."

"That is a lie," shouted the prisoner; "I was not chosen to kill President Carnot. Moreover, absolute liberty at Lyons, private conversation."

The proceeding attorney reviewed the details of the trial and summoned the jury not to hesitate to do their duty. M. Dubreuil, for the defense made an appeal for the prisoner.

At noon the jury retired and after an absence of fifteen minutes announced a verdict of guilty without extenuating circumstances. The presiding judge, M. Brentlac, pronounced the sentence of death by guillotine. Caserio exclaimed "Vive la revolution anarchie."

The prisoner was immediately hurried towards his cell. As he left the court room he cried, "Courage, comrades! Viva la anarchie!" In spite of the prisoner's defiant attitude, his countenance was pronounced, M. Dubreuil gave notice of appeal and added that the presiding judge's charge to the jury at the opening of the session, be entered on the records.

Clam Eating Contest.

ROCKAWAY BEACH, N. Y., Aug. 3.—William H. Newsome and Harry Colins, two women here, had a clam-eating contest last night. As a result both men are very sick and Colins may die. The men have long been rivals in the line of athletic clam eating at Rockaway Beach. After much debating a match was arranged for a purse of $25. Clam Opener O'Brien began work upon the stone bowl of little necks in front of him. The man who ate the greatest number of clams won the prize. Both contestants eyed the clams greedily. They ate a dozen or so with a keen relish. Then their efforts became labored. At the sixty-second clam Colins's stomach revolted. The beaten man was laid to be removed to a hotel, where a physician was called. Newsome declared seventy-two clams, got $25 and was declared the champion of Long Island.

PETER JACKSON, THE LONG LONE.

Peggy Jackson Claims to be the Mother of the Pugilist.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 3.—Peggy Jackson, residing here, claims to be the mother of Peter Jackson, the nigger pugilist. She has for eighteen months been living with her son David. She is seventy years old and the mother of sixteen children, all gone or dead save James, Bernard and David. The old lady thinks from the pictures of the prize fighter that he is her son. While living in W. Va. she had a son leave home when only sixteen years old. She said he went to Pittsburg, thence to England, and the last she heard he was in Australia. She says he exhibited pugilistic traits when small. Aunt Peggy's husband Bolomb died ten years ago on the eastern Virginia. He belonged to Chatman T. Sargent. The old woman has a Bible in which the birth of Peter is recorded Sept. 10, 1854. This corresponds with his reputed age. Jackson's biographers claim he is an Australian, but he says he is a southern born man.

He has been searching for his mother for years. She says he was born in Eastern Virginia. She still hopes that she will see her long-lost son.

MARVELOUS ESCAPE.

Passengers Saved From Death Wounded by Train Wreckers.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 3.—The most remarkable feature of last night's attempt at train robbery near Eureka, Mo., was the escape of the entire train and 150 passengers from absolute destruction. The desperadoes, undoubtedly accomplices of the felon with whom Express Messenger Ferguson had a fight, forced open a car of dynamite on the side track near Eureka and stole two big dynamite cartridges, intended for heavy blasting. Each cartridge was capable of laying in pieces tons of solid rock. They were placed by the desperate bandits on the rails, the intention being to destroy the train and plunder the richly laden express car and probably the passengers. When the train came down the grade the engine piled up in the cartridges there was a terrific explosion which wrecked the machine. The entire train was severely shaken, the windows broken and packages of letters thrown from the boxes in the mail car. The explosion was a great blow to the earth, broke the rails from the fastenings and flung the ties in every direction. It tore open one side of the dynamite car and exposed to view tons of powerful explosive, yet for some inscrutable reason the great mass, with energy enough to blow the entire city off the face of the earth, did not explode.

Several New Knotted Sensation to Their Attorney to Rescue the Victim.

Instead of being removed, the wire was wrapped about the tree. Last night Robert Rice leaned against the pole and was knocked senseless. His companion, Will Snowden, anxious to investigate, got the same kind of a close. Superintendent John Singleton, of the city electric light plant, was summoned, and while he was preparing to cut the wire down young Wright came along and recklessly took hold of the wire. He fell with the cry of "like the Rice!" Fellow employes, John Wallace and Mr. Singleton went to his assistance but they fell in a heap and Mr. Singleton's hands had to be sliced from from the prostrate man. Wright's body was turned to a crisp. It required ten minutes time to cut off the current of 2,300 volts and release the man.

Tariff Conferees Feel That a Conclusion Must Be Arrived At.

SUGAR CAUSES MUCH TROUBLE.

Blank Proposes to Place Sugar On the Free List and Raising Revenue by an Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—The tariff conferees appear to have reached very nearly the point at which either an early agreement will be reached or a decision to report disagreement. The Senate conferees apparently have arrived at the conclusion that there has been already sufficient exchange of views upon the general line, and that the time has come when the direct issue must be raised. It is stated that a sugar schedule has been prepared which the Senate will accept. The schedule, it is said, still provides for a differential duty on refined sugar and in other particulars maintains the protective features of the Senate schedule.

Representative Blank has introduced a resolution instructing the committee on ways and means to report a bill placing all sugar on the free list and for the raising of $100,000,000 revenue by income tax. Blank was consulting the committee. "I have not suggested Mr. Wilson, nor anyone else, but have acted in my own behalf in submitting the resolution. My purpose is to place it if there is any doubt on that the general tariff bill will fail."

The committee on improvements, reporting on O'Meara's resolution for aids for the lighting of the city for a term of three years, submitted that they could not see their way to bind the city in a three-year contract, and it was conceded the city could not keep up its present expenditure and it was not sure but the lighting of the city may have to be partially abandoned at the expiration of the present contract. FELL TO HIS DEATH.

A Fatal Accident at the Mouth of Ogden Canyon.

Robert Crawford Found cold and Lifeless and His Companion Seriously Injured.

Special to the NEWS per Direct Telegraph.

OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 3.—An accident which resulted in the death of Robert Crawford, an old soldier, and in which James Packrell, of Eden, was seriously if not fatally injured, occurred at the mouth of the Ogden canyon last night. Crawford accompanied by his employer, Packrell, brought a load of hay to Ogden yesterday afternoon. After disposing of it, at which time it was dark, he started homeward. On reaching a point in the road where it divided he took the wrong road, which led to a clearway of about forty feet, down which they were buried in a mass to the road below. Mr. Crawford is supposed to have been killed instantly. Packrell who was this morning at ten o'clock unconscious had wandered about a mile and a half up the canyon and taken shelter in a barrack where he was found. The discovery was made at an early hour this morning by a fisherman and at noon reported to the coroner who with a jury hastened to the scene of the accident. Yesterday found the team still hitched to the wagon which was badly demolished. Crawford was lying underneath, cold and lifeless. No inquest was necessary and the remains were conveyed to Ogden where they will be interred.

Packrell—Packrell has received considerable but remembers nothing of the accident. He is still in a critical condition.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

It Is Asked to Grapple With the Railway Funding Bill.

Extends an Invitation to the National Association of the Engineers—New Members, Etc.

The usual after-business-hours meeting of the Chamber of Commerce directors convened last evening, Vice President Adams presiding.

The chief local business consisted of a set of resolutions introduced by Mr. Fred Simon, protesting against the passage of the railway funding bill so far as it relates to the Central Pacific railway. The bill is now before Congress, and provides an extension of five years to pay the government mortgage, and the resolutions introduced are similar to those presented elsewhere by those who are opposing the extension. Mr. Simon explained that he was not desirous of doing anything to embarrass the Union Pacific, but that his efforts were directed wholly against the Central Pacific, now a branch of the Southern Pacific system, and which had never done anything for the benefit of Utah, though it had drawn a vast amount of revenue therefrom. The resolutions he proposed were as follows:

Whereas, The Central Pacific railroad is now before Congress petitioning for an extension for fifty years to pay an obligation amounting to about $100,000,000 owing by the people of the United States to the Central Pacific; and

Whereas, The Central Pacific railroad is bonded for $26,000,000 over and above this $100,000,000; and

Whereas, An entirely new road could be built for less money than the sum $26,000,000; and

Whereas, There is no further security whatever to the road itself for said debt of $100,000,000; and

Whereas, This debt of $26,000,000 is proven by government references largely now submitted against the Union Pacific railroad in consequence of the diversion of traffic to other roads controlled by C. P. Huntington and others; and

Whereas, The stockholders of the Central Pacific road, being said C. P. Huntington et al, are under the laws of the state of California personally liable for the debt of $26,000,000 and also to pay it, having given rise to an unusual manner at the expense of the people of the United States at present by government reports; and

Whereas, The citizens of this Territory are dependent upon said Central Pacific railroad for their transportation westward and are well informed as to its status; and

Whereas, A committee of Congress has reported a bill recommending extension of the debt of said Central Pacific fifty years and no security is given, but a promise of giving security is made; and

Whereas, The passage of such a bill will immediately relieve C. P. Huntington et al from personal liability and cause a loss to the people of the United States of $26,000,000;

Resolved, That the Chamber of Commerce of Salt Lake City, Ut., in representing the business interests of a large territory tributary to the Central Pacific railroad, are opposed to any further legislation, so far as the same may relate to the Central Pacific railroad. That an address of this Republic we respectfully request a committee to Congress recommending the funding of the Central Pacific railroad debt for fifty years.

Resolved, That we are opposed to any additional legislation affecting the financial status of Southern Californians, whose poor and unfortunate, though honest, brethren have brought disgrace and ruin to the payment of their obligations.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing be forwarded to our delegate in Congress, Hon. Joseph L. Rawlins, and that he be asked to oppose the funding "funding bill," so far as the same relates to the Central Pacific railway, with the usual vigor. And that a copy of the same be forwarded to the Senators of the United States, to members of both houses of Congress and to the press of the country.

A lively discussion followed, some of the directors strongly favoring the adoption of the resolutions, while others argued that it might be impolitic to do so at this time, and the matter was laid on the table, to be taken up again next Tuesday afternoon, to which time the board adjourned.

The resolutions were fully discussed and action thereon was deferred until the special meeting to be held next Tuesday afternoon.

Another interesting item of the meeting was the request of the chief engineer of the fire department, James Devine, for an escort sailor from the channel to thrill the National Association of Fire Chiefs to be held there next August. Mr. Devine leaves tomorrow (Saturday) for Montreal, to attend the convention there. The chamber unanimously granted Mr. Devine's request.

J. W. Wheelwright esq. to Lt. Fuller stated that they intended publishing a new paper in the interest of the chamber and the new electrics' bureau, and asked for encouragement. The request was referred to a committee.

Twelve new members were added to the chamber's list, and the finance committee made a report.

HER HAIR WAS GREEN

A Society Lady of Salt Lake and her Murderer.

HER FEELINGS SURELY SHOCKED.

The Street "Spot" Was Applied and a Heavy Bludgeon Soft Will Follow.

As exceedingly novel cut for dress was will be placed on the docket of the Third district court within the next few days, but for obvious reasons the name of the parties are at present withheld. It may be stated, however, that the plaintiff is a lady of means, a spinster, about thirty-two years of age, good looking and a resident of Salt Lake. She is, moreover, the possessor of considerable property interests in the East. Discovering that her hair, of which she had a full growth, was beginning to show signs of turning grey, the lady visited a prominent hairdressing establishment in the city for the purpose of having it dyed. Brown was the color she chose as being the nearest approach to her own natural hair. She submitted to the operation necessary to bring about the desired result, and it did not work in the direction intended. Her money may be quite easily changed their direction. If a sense of indignation should the hairdresser's head was cut, for he "dyed" her hair and a prominent green green! Disturbing as another color in the movement, she was informed that her hair was slightly ruined, and there was nothing left for her to have the whole of it cut off. Reluctantly she consented, and at this setting the patrons almost as bald as that of a newly-born infant. Until there is a new growth a well-dressed wig must adorn the denuded surface. Heavy damages are claimed, though whether, after all, any monetary consideration can compensate the unfortunate victim for the terrible shock which her feelings have sustained is a question which she alone can best answer.

Officers on the Rack.

Not a few members of the police force are worried over the contemplated raid to be made on the 5th of their number. The men who will go have not yet been made aware of the proposed removal. At least half of them are wondering if they will be dropped, and would alone as soon be told so officially as to remain under the present suspense.

The same delightful state of ignorance exists among the firemen.

Chief Justice Merritt left by last evening's train for San Francisco, with the intention of proceeding thence to Alaska. He will be away for about three weeks.

A DASTARDLY DEED.

An Old Lady Struck Down by an Unknown Footpad at Midnight While on the Way Home.

An unknown footpad was guilty last night of a most dastardly assault on Mrs. Sarah Tate, an aged lady who resides in the northeastern part of the city.

Mrs. Tate was one of the visitors to Calvert's Park last night and was quite late in getting back. She waited at the street corner for a Center street car until she became impatient and then started to walk home, going over the hill by the way of the McCornick reservoir.

When near the corner of Center and Pierpont streets she felt the effects of a heavy blow from the shadow of a tree at the edge of the sidewalk, and a second later received a heavy blow in the back of the head, falling full to the ground and for the longest rendering her partially unconscious. Wounded and dazed she called for help and Messrs. Ware and Kimble, both of whom live in the immediate vicinity of the event, hastened to her side. The approach of these gentlemen and the screams of the woman caused the cowardly ruffian to take to his heels. He was soon out of reach and all efforts to locate him were in vain.

Mrs. Tate was assisted to her home where an examination of her injuries was made. There was a deep cut in the back of the lady's head, from which the blood had poured in a continuous stream until her clothing was saturated. Sergeant Kellogg, who lives near by, was called and assisted to the search for the cowardly thug, but failed to find the slightest clue as to his whereabouts. The victim is upward of sixty years of age. She is resting today as well as possible under the circumstances and no serious results are anticipated from her unpleasant experience.
