Davis Stake Conference.

The quarterly conference of the Davis Stake convened at Kaysville on Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 11th and 12th, 1897. There were present on the stand on Saturday, President Joseph F. Smith of the First Presidency of the Church, President Lorenzo Snow of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, the presidency of the Stake, High Councilors and a majority of the Bishops.

On Saturday morning Elder John W. Hess, president of the Stake, gave a brief sketch of the labors of the Stake presidency; he said that during the months of November they had held ward conferences in all of the twelve wards in the Stake, besides other meetings in each one—first, with the Bishopric, seeing if they were working in unity; second, with the Elders' Quorum; third, with the ward in which meeting they instructed the different quorums in regard to their duties; they also had every acting teacher expected his labors amongst the people; third, a general meeting of all the priests was held in which all of the ward authorities were presented and sustained; fourth, a meeting of the Stake in which reported the Stake in good condition with a marked improvement among the people. President Snow then addressed an excellent discourse, the subject being man's relation to God. President Joseph F. Smith read the 19th psalm: "O Lord, thou hast searched me and known me."

On Sunday afternoon Elder Jos. H. Grant, first counselor in the Stake presidency, made a few remarks; he searched for the truth of the Gospel and he corroborated the report of Elder Hess in the morning. President Joseph F. Smith addressed the conference; he spoke of the war the Spirit of God enlightens the heart of the children of men; read from the Doctrine and Covenants, chapter 1, commencing at the 5th verse; he also spoke on foreordination, predestination and the free agency of man. Elder Ephraim P. Ellison, W. W. Willes, James T. Atkinson, Franklin D. Grant and Samuel J. Parrish were set apart under the hands of President Joseph F. Smith and President Lorenzo Snow as alternate High Councilors.

On Sunday Elder Jos. S. Clark, second counselor in the Stake presidency, Elders Thos. F. Rossiter and John W. Hess addressed the Saints, speaking on the various duties of a Latter-day Saint, and exhorting all to live lives of righteousness. Elder Wm. O. Lee reported the condition of the Y. M. M. I. A. in the Stake; he said the Stake superintendency were sinking the different wards in the Stake and they were trying to set the young men to take a greater interest in the meetings. Elect Ellsworth Smith, Stake superintendent of the Y. L. M. I. A., reported the associations in good condition, and they were building upon more interest in the same. Elder Joel Parrish, president of the High Priests' quorum, reported that a majority of the members were alive to their duties. Elder Nathan Porter, Stake superintendent of Sunday schools, reported the Sunday schools throughout the Stake as being fully organized and in excellent condition. Bishop Jos. H. Egan of South Bountiful, Bishop Richer of East Bountiful, Bishop F. Batten of Kaysville, Bishop J. M. Nyebert of Farmington, Bishop L. E. Layton of West Layton, Bishop L. Cook of Syracuse, Bishop A. P. Porter of Centerville, Bishop L. M. Grant of West Bountiful, Bishop L. H. Hoagland of East Layton and Bishop Orlando Hadlock of Clinton, gave brief reports of their respective wards; they all testified to the truth of the latter-day work, and expressed a determination to perform the labors of their office and calling to the best of their ability.

Alternate High Councilors Joseph Smith of Centerville and Thomas D. King of Farmington were presented and sustained to be set apart as regular members of the High Council, to fill the vacancies caused by the honorable release of John Ellison and James H. Gallacher.

On Sunday afternoon the Sacrament was administered and the general authorities were presented and unanimously sustained.

Conference adjourned for three months to meet at East Bountiful.

JOHN J. SMITH, Clerk.

CATTLE DIPPING.

Experiments Conducted For Destroying the Texas Fever Tick.

Texas is fighting upon her own ground the terrible little tick which is now believed to spread the cattle fever. Dr. Victor Norgaard, chief of the division of pathology in the bureau of animal industry at Washington, is conducting experiments at the expense of the owners of the great stockyards at Fort Worth. The method adopted is to swim the cattle through a large tank containing a mixture which it is hoped will destroy the ticks so them. The St. Louis Post-Dispatch gives an account of the experiments, which will be of great value to the cattle trade and a diagram of the dipping apparatus.

The Post-Dispatch says: These experiments are made by dipping the cattle infested with ticks into a cathartic preparation, "either equivalent to that manufactured by a New York company. To properly make these interesting tests required the building of special pens and chute and a large vat, to contain the chemical for dipping.

There are a number of these new pens and vats, all located in the quarantine division of the yards. From the pens a wide chute leads to a smaller pen near the head of the dipping vat, just large enough to contain about 100 cattle. This pen converges to a narrow chute about 20 feet long that leads directly into the vat. The vat proper is 20 feet long and 8 feet deep. It is of considerable width at the top, but narrows to about 2 feet at the bottom. It is built of cypress and is air-tight and lies mostly beneath the surface of the ground, only a few feet of the walls projecting above. When ready for a dipping, the vat contains about 6 feet of fluid.

The actual work of dipping the cattle is interesting. The cattle need were brought from south of the present quarantine line and were tuberculin tested guaranteed. The cattle were unloaded direct from the cars into the pens and by the feeding of southern cattle. They were then driven by way of a chute into the pen at the head of the vat. From this they were driven through the narrow chute, one at a time, on to a metal covered trapdoor that lies horizontally with one end projecting over the vat. This door is fixed on a horizontal pivot, and when the animal crowded the far end his weight would bear it down and before he would know it he would plunge head first into the chemical bath below.

The animal is completely submerged by the fall into the six feet of fluid and upon rising cannot escape from the involuntary bath without swimming over 20 feet in the other end of the vat, where the animal is an inclined plane provided with footholds. At the top the steer is allowed to stand for awhile and drip, when the gate is opened and he is allowed to go with his fellows into pens prepared for their reception. These pens are inclosed, and the cattle in each are carefully examined at certain intervals after being dipped and notes taken. They are driven back to the vat and redipped if found necessary.

So far it does not appear that the experiments have proved a decided success, the end in view having been only partially attained. A large number of the ticks on the cattle experimented upon have, however, been killed and the rest are more or less affected.

Experiments are now being continued, with the addition of West Virginia black oil, which, it is promised, will destroy all the ticks.

In addition to making the experiments relating to Texas fever Dr. Norgaard will from time to time while in Fort Worth give examples of the process employed in inoculating cattle to prevent blackleg. This disease has been the cause of great mortality among cattle in widely separated districts of the United States. In some of the southern and western states especially the annual losses from this disease are said to be so great as to equal or exceed the losses of cattle from all other causes combined.

A "single vaccine" has been prepared in the pathological laboratory of the bureau of animal industry and tested on a large number of calves in Texas, and the results warrant the conclusion that this vaccine is a satisfactory remedy. It is desired, however, before distributing this vaccine to stock owners in general to obtain a record of several thousand successful vaccinations. For this purpose a quantity of the vaccine will be distributed to such persons as may desire to make preliminary vaccinations and report the result to the bureau.
