AGRICULTURAL.

NUMBER 3.

ON SOWING SEED AND CROPPING.—Before cropping the ground on city lots, the cultivator should lay out separate parts for the various kinds of seeds that are to be planted. By allotting off ground in this manner every thing will come into its right place as the season rolls on; though radish, lettuce, spinach, small salad, and the like, should never be allowed to take up entirely any space of ground for the season; such seeds may be thickly sown through other main crops, as peas, beets, &c.; by sowing a few seeds in this way a regular supply may be obtained during the season without occupying entirely any part of the ground.

Cucumbers and melons may also be considered as secondary crops, and planted between the rows of early peas, which will be spoken of in due season.

Where the ground is very weedy or has been badly cultivated, it will be well to put in a good portion with wheat, oats, corn or potatoes, or anything that is readily watered and cultivated; by this routine of cropping and by giving extra culture to that part planted with the smaller kind of vegetables, the cultivator will profit.

I recommend sowing in drills or rows as a general rule, as the most convenient, and best adapted to this country; hoeing, irrigation, &c., are greatly facilitated by this system.

Sowing broadcast may do very well on rich, clean land, that requires neither culture nor irrigation; but, when culture is necessary, sowing seeds in drills is much the best.

The distance between the rows must be regulated in proportion to the growth of the vegetables. For most roots, as beets, carrots, &c., 18 inches is a good distance, and for cabbage—from 2 to 3 feet; peas—from 2 to 4 feet.

From several years experience I have invariably seen that planting seeds in rows too close together is not good; when vegetables are crowded too much they can neither be hoed nor watered so readily as when planted at a more convenient distance; nor is the crop so good as when plenty of space is given for the plants to grow to their proper size.

It is better to sow seeds thicker in the drills and have the rows a good distance apart than to sow thin in the drills when the rows are too close together.

THE VALLEY GARDENER.

Manilla.

Manilla, the capital of the island of Luzon, the largest and most fertile of the Philippines, is a moderate sized city, very regularly built. The houses are low, and erected so as to resist the earthquakes, which are so common in these islands. To me the city appeared dull, silent, and melancholy.

The churches are all prodigiously wealthy; when they are ornamented on festival days, nothing is to be seen in the sanctuary but gold and silver. The chief altar, its pillars, statues, lamps, candlesticks, and even the seats are of solid silver; the ornaments and sacred vessels are also very splendid.

Everything in Manilla has the appearance of grandeur and magnificence; the innumerable vessels anchored in the harbor prove it to be the most important commercial mart in these seas. A noble stone bridge thrown over the river which runs through the middle of this capital, unites what may be called the city of war to the city of trade.

The houses are built of cut stone, and surrounded on the first story with balconies, protected by sliding sashes of mother of pearl; these afford the inhabitants an agreeable promenade in wet weather.

The streets are straight and wide; in the evening they are covered with multitudes of vehicles hastening to take the usual drive round the fortifications. The population is estimated at 130,000 souls; but in this calculation the suburbs are inclined.—[Ex.]

PATIENCE WITH CHILDREN.—One of the great prerequisites for the successful training of children, at home or in the school room, is Patience. Every teacher, whether the mother or an hireling, will find her labors made easy by the constant exercise of this cardinal virtue.—If they let patience have its perfect work in their own hearts, it will be visible in all their conduct, and exert a salutary influence upon the minds of the young, in whose future well-being they feel a deep interest.

There may be hours when, perplexed with care and worn out with undue labor, the mother may feel the risings of impatience in her heart; but let her not give way to this baneful emotion, but nip it in the bud before its fruits become visible in acts of which she may afterwards bitterly repent.

Let no unkind word or hasty blow be given in anger, lest the remembrance of it should prove a poisoned arrow to their bleeding heart, when those loving eyes are closed in death, and the head which nestles on her bosom is pillowed in the grave.

Children are won by kind words; but cross looks and harsh tones deter them from seeking our sympathy or giving us their confidence. The mother or teacher should regard the sports of childhood as a blessing, join in their innocent amusements, and draw from thence some useful lesson for their future consideration.

They should learn to look up to her as a friend in whom they can confide, who will bear patiently with their childish follies, and in kindness seek to improve whatever may be amiss in their manners or morals.

But should they turn a deaf ear to her teachings, and scorn her instructions, seeming inclined to follow the evil promptings of a sinful and perverse heart, she has then need of a double portion of patience to support her in this great trial, and enable her at last to overcome evil with good, and bring them, by the force of precept and example, to walk in wisdom's pleasant ways. By kind, be firm and patient, and hope on till the desired result is obtained.—[Ex.]

THE SAN JOSE WELLS.—Of Robinson's great artesian well, some four miles from San Jose, the Telegraph says:—

The operators penetrated the earth to the depth of 248 feet, letting down the whole distance a double tube seven-inch pipe. Last week, at the depth stated, a most powerful stream of water was struck, which gushes up the pipe with almost inconceivable force.

The top rim of the pipe is elevated about 18 inches above the surface of the ground, and some idea may be formed of the strength of the current and the quantity of water discharged, from the fact that the water is thrown five feet ten inches in a perpendicular column above the rim of the pipe.

Mr. Gould estimates the quantity of water thrown from this well to be about eight times as great as is discharged from Mr. Bontempt's well, which has hitherto been regarded as the largest stream of artesian water in the valley.
