WILLIAM'S SPEECH.

Closing the Ceremonies Attending the Opening of the Canal.

A BRIEF, FEATURELESS ORATION.

French Newspapers Say It Does Not Express the Emperor's Real Sentiments.

KIEL, June 21.—The great jubilee, which practically wound up the ceremonies of opening the Baltic-North Sea canal, took place this evening in the much-discussed structure representing the old German warship Hansa. About 1,000 guests participated in the entertainment. The banquet hall was a facsimile of a large vessel of ancient construction as was in vogue in the seventeenth century.

The French admiral, Menard, sat on the emperor's right, and the Russian admiral, Skrydloff, sat on the left. At the conclusion of the banquet the emperor said:

"It is with delight and pride that I look around this brilliant festal gathering, and in the name of my high allies of you all heartily welcome.

"We express our heartfelt thanks for the good feeling which we have found on the completion of the work, which was begun in peace, and in peace was finished, and today opened to general traffic. It was not in our day that the idea of uniting the North sea to the Baltic by a canal was first mooted. Far back in the middle ages we find allusions and plans to carry out this undertaking, and in the last century the Elder canal was built, bearing glorious testimony to the productive power of that age.

"But this was only intended for small vessels, and did not suffice for present needs. It was reserved for the newly-created German empire to complete the greater task. My ever-lamented grandfather, William the Great, it was who rightly perceiving the importance of the canal for the advancement of the national prosperity and the strengthening of our defensive power, was indefatigable in giving his assistance to promoting the plans for building a thoroughly serviceable waterway and removing the manifold difficulties in the way of accomplishing. With pleasure and full confidence the federal governments and the Reichstag followed the imperial initiative, and vigorously applied eight years to the work, which, as it advanced toward completion, constantly excited more interest to a greater degree. Everything that mechanical science, in its highest development, was able to render, everything that zeal and pleasure could do, everything that solicitude for the workmen engaged in the construction, in accordance with the humane social policy of our empire could command, was given to this work. The structure, therefore, may inform with proud duty high allies over a successful work accomplished.

"We have not, however, labored for our own home in this alone. In community with the great civilization of the German people, we open to the peaceful intercourse of the nations, one with another, the locks of this canal, and it will be a source of joyful satisfaction to us if its constant utility shall bear witness that the intentions by which we have been guided have not alone been undivided, but have also proved fruitful in advancing the welfare of the peoples.

"The participation in our fêtes of the powers whose representatives we see amongst us, and whose splendid ships we today admired, I acknowledge the more readily, as I believe I am signs in perceiving therein the complete realization of the efforts we have always directed toward the maintenance of peace. Germany will range its work inaugurated today as the one of those accomplished in the service of peace, and will esteem herself fortunate if the canal, in this sense, further strengthens our friendly relations with the other powers."

At today's repository the young son of the prince regent of Brunswick was on duty with a stay guard from a company of the First regiment of the guards. The emperor's tutor was with the imperial lad, as was Prince Henry's little son.

CONCERN OF THE FRENCH PRESS.

PARIS, June 21.—The newspapers generally regard Emperor William's speech as inspired by a desire to be agreeable, rather than expressive of his real sentiments.

The Delegal declares that it is necessary to the realization of the wishes expressed by the emperor that France and Germany should be reconciled, and that the question of Alsace-Lorraine be settled.

The Solil remarks that in spite of the pacific tone of the emperor's speech, serious persons remark that peaceful festivities have sometimes preceded terrible wars.

The Gaulois, referring to the same subject, says that Europe does not believe that peace is the sole object of the opening of the Baltic and North Sea canal.

According to La Paix, Emperor William desires peace, but the Europeans alone can give universal peace to the fatherland of nations.

The Soleil remarks that the peaceful language of the emperor is incompatible with the dispatch of a warship to Crete on the anniversary of the battles of Waterloo.

According to the Gaulois, the simplest method of securing peace is to dismiss or instruct what she owes to war, apparently referring to Alsace-Lorraine.

The Petit Journal expresses the opinion that in spite of the utterances of Emperor William at Brunsbuttel, reasons of economy should have been considered at Kiel, and warships.

The Gaulois replies that Germany does not exist even that there is no Alsace-Lorraine question.

Insane Chinese Certificates.

BUTTE, Mont., June 21.—Government officials, state, city and county and other officials, raided the Chinese quarters last tonight, and found a complete outfit for turning out fraudulent certificates for Chinese. It is supposed that about 500 of these bogus certificates have been issued and sold to Chinese in various parts of this country and China, at figures ranging from $50 to $100 each.

It is the most important discovery of the kind ever made in the United States. Valid Chinese have been arrested. The treasury department at Washington has been at work on it for months.

TO FIND PEARY.

An Expedition Ready to Start for Greenland Today.

NEW YORK, June 21.—The World will publish a statement made by Mrs. Josephine Peary, to the effect that the Greenland Polar will leave Brooklyn Saturday, June 22nd, carrying the members of the Greenland scientific expedition of 1891, to Mt. Johns, N. F. There they will meet the steam barkentine Kite, Captain John Bartlett, and will sail for Greenland about July 1st. The expedition will be under the direction of Edmund Stedman, of Washington, D. C., the brother of Mrs. Peary, and the party will be composed of Professor Heilo D. Salisbury of Chicago university, Professor L. L. Dyche of Kansas State university, Theodore Nilson, of Philadelphia, and Dr. John E. Welsh, of Washington. The expedition has two principal objects in view. First, to reach Anoretsuary Lodge, Hayes bay, on North Greenland, in order to communicate with Dr. Peary, his companion, Hugh J. Lee, of Meriden, Conn., and his servant, Matthew Henson, Second, to afford the scientists who accompany the expedition opportunities to study geological specimens and plants of the country, as well as the flora and fauna of the region to be visited.

THE CHINESE LOAN.

May Be Secured by American Capitalists, If They Want It.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 21.—Officials of the Chinese legation say that the American capitalists who are negotiating in China to secure a loan of $20,000,000 taels, which China is about to pay to Japan, are by no means urging a vague or futile call, and that they stand quite as good a chance of securing the loan as any other money representatives.

There is more interesting speculation this week in the result of the loan, if it is secured by the American parties. It is said that the first result would be the shipment of an unprecedented amount of silver. But as China's bonds are payable in gold, the immense amount would be the thing back gold for the silver paid to Japan. It is pointed out also that the interest on the entire loan will not exceed $6,000,000 annually, so that the Chinese consuls receipts of $12,000,000 will really meet the interest charges and provide a sinking fund for the redemption of the bonds, which will probably run for twenty years.

TRANSCRIPTS FILED

In the Oregon Short Line & Utah Northern Receivership Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Transcripts were filed today in the United States circuit court of appeals here upon appeals which have been taken from the Oregon circuit court from a decree passed by one of the Union Pacific receivership suits, and pending in Oregon, to wit, that in which Kessler was asked appointing Joseph Fowler of the Oregon Short Line & Utah Northern Railway company's properties, extending from Wyoming to Oregon, with branches through Utah, Idaho and Montana.

Receivers' certificates, it seems, were issued to the extent of $1,000,000 to pay interest on the first mortgage, but the plan failed, and the road was worse off than sufficient to pay operating expenses and maintenance) to the amount of about $1,000,000, chargeable as a first upon the road, to all the American Loan & Trust company to pay interest due upon the properties.

The bondholders and stockholders of the company, holding liens in both first and second mortgages, protested against the issuance of certificates for that purpose. On the last the validity of receivers' certificates issued, not for maintenance, operation or repairs, but merely to enable a second mortgage to pay interest on the first mortgage, but the appeals are taken. Oliver Ames, Sherrill, and Sabine are of Boston, and the appeal, and the Oregon Short Line & Utah Northern Railway company. Another, it is stated that hearings cannot be had on the appeals until the fall term of the court of appeals.

CAMPOS NOT SHOT.

The Rumor Contradicted in an Official Telegram.

WASHINGTON, D.C., June 21.—Minister Dupuy de Lome of Spain today received an official telegram from General Aldama at Havana, saying that Martinez de Campos, commander of the Spanish forces, is quite well at Santiago de Cuba, and that the reports about his being shot are untrue.

LONDON, June 21.—A dispatch to the Times from Havana, says that the Spanish government is urging upon Canovas the necessity of increasing the army of occupation before December.

HAVANA, June 21.—There is no truth in the report that Captain-General Martinez de Campos has been shot by a Cuban spy, or by anybody else. He is in good health.

THOUSANDS DISAPPOINTED.

Great Race Prospect Until Sunset Revealed an Ass Race.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 21.—The week of a morning long this week there seemed a fine field of the Pennsylvania crew against their Ithacan rivals that as the men were getting away for the small hour four-mile race with the eights of Cornell and Columbia. Gone is the signals into being dissolved, the two crews determined to defer the contest until next Monday evening, or the Pennsylvania crew might need her wounded men and take part in the struggle for which each has been for years in preparation. Thousands of spectators, so we read say we came, because they were promised an the silver cups and there to every possible contingency, good sport, good sight, good time.

End of the Cole Feud.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—The Cole-Lick feud, originated in 1854, has come to an end. With the birth of Mrs. Cole's child, Fair estate in the Hawaiian Islands, the Cole and Lick families will be united. Mrs. Lick is the sole heir of the Lick estate, and the child is the only grandchild. All that now remains of the Lick estate is to be set aside for the support of the Lick Observatory, which is to be located on the property of the Lick family, on Mount Hamilton, in Santa Clara county.

When a Cow Has Tuberculosis.

This disease is indicated by a general falling off in condition of the animal. The skin becomes hard and the hair rough. If the lungs are affected, there is a cough, quickly becoming deeper, and the breathing is short and quick. If the bowels are the seat of the disease, there is alternate diarrhea and loss of appetite. If the generative organs are affected, the cow is always restless and furious, but does not show much pain. If the udder is affected, the cow is dull, and the milk, more or less when the other organs are diseased, and the milk is affected. As the disease increases these symptoms become more pronounced, and the emaciation is extreme. The breath is offensive and the cough more severe. The eyes appear to other as unusual brightness of the eyes, and a bluish spot beneath each eyelid, or the whole eyelid may appear red. In the second, by the disease for some time, the cow is in good condition, the disease is in a latent state. In this case the cow may be supposed to be healthy, and the presence of tuberculosis, which does not show itself in the form of the symptoms of the disease, is only discovered after the cow has been killed.—Kansas Farmer.
