Wool Growers, Attention!

Prof. J. W. Sanborn, writing from Logan, Utah, March 31st, requests the publication of the following:

To the Wool Growers of Utah:

The organization of the agricultural exhibit for Utah at the World's Fair came into my hands last year too late to secure wool for exhibit, and it became necessary to gather as specially possible the wool clip of this spring to properly represent the Territory at the exposition. Wild sheep are indigenous to Utah mountains, the mother home of the sheep. Utah ranks with the very first wool-growing sections of the continent, and the very best fleece that We have should be shown in Chicago.

This is to urge upon those who possess hearty fleeces of nice wool to save one or more for this purpose. They should be wrapped up with premium, 1 cotton sacks or paper, packed in boxes without grease, and shipped by freight to N. A. Empey, Esq., executive commissioner, Salt Lake City.

On the box should be placed the contents, the name of the donor, the breed represented, the weight of the fleece, age of fleece, and age and sex of sheep.

Be so kind as to notify me at Logan of the number of fleeces forwarded. Those will be carefully handled by experts and shipped to Chicago as soon as they are collected.

Very respectfully,
J. W. SANBORN,
Chief Agricultural Department, Utah World's Fair Commission.

AN AIR OF MYSTERY.

The Police Say That Mrs. Wallace's Wound Was Self-inflicted.

Between 11 and 12 o'clock on Saturday night the inmates of the American National bank building on East Temple street were startled by a pistol shot and the shrill cry of a woman for help. Officer Schultz rushed into the building and was met by Mrs. Wallace, the laundresses, who excitedly told him that he was just preparing to retire for the night, when an unknown man knocked at her door and informed her that he had a message from Prof. Andre. She opened the door slightly, she says, when the stranger dashed in upon her and dragged her across the floor and threatened to shoot her if she make any outcry. Notwithstanding his injunction, however, she screamed loudly and the fellow drew a revolver and fired, the ball taking effect in the fleshy part of the left arm. Then her assailant robbed her, she claims, of her car ring and $40, but left her gold watch, chain and other jewelry.

The police say that Mrs. Wallace tells an imaginary story. Captain Donovan does not hesitate to assert that she shot herself. He found a small 38-caliber revolver in her dressing case which had just been fired and when he exhibited it to her she quickly and rather indignantly exclaimed "That isn't the gun that shot me."

A doctor was called in and dressed Mrs. Wallace's wound. No serious results are anticipated.

Correspondence Deseret News.

LAKE CITY, April 1st, 1893.—In the winter of 1852 I helped to dig the foundation for the wall around the Temple block, Father Cahoon having charge. I also worked faithfully helping to prepare for the foundation of the Temple and thought then that I could shovel as much dirt and throw it as high as the next. On the 6th of April, 1853, I was present at the laying of the corner stone of the Salt Lake Temple. The day was clear, pleasant and balmy; heaven seemed to smile upon the work that was done or begun, and I have had no doubt in regard to its completion. President Young in his remarks spoke to the following effect: Some may see will the Temple ever be built? He gave the people to understand that the building of the house to the Lord was just as much their duty as it was his, and remarked: "Whether it is ever built or not I have seen it stand there."

Yours, W. W. TAYLOR.

STUDENTS' SOCIETY.

Lecture by Dr. Talmage on "The Sin of Blasphemy."

The Students' Society of the Latter-day Saints' college met at the usual place on Friday evening, March 31. After the opening exercises a highly interesting and instructive lecture, "The Sin of Blasphemy," was delivered by Dr. James E. Talmage. After defining the term the lecturer stated that this sin was at present lightly looked upon, but in ancient days there was only one punishment severe enough for it—that of death. When the Lord stood on the top of Sinai He declared, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord in vain," and "Thou shalt have none other gods before me." He declares that He is a jealous God, but is, He is zealous in shielding the name and works of the blasphemy of man. For complaining against the feelings of God, Miriam, sister of Moses, and prophetess to the people, was stricken by leprosy, and for seven days was compelled to remain outside the camp of Israel. The people thought this crime so terrible that when Michael Abab revoked the vineyard of Naboth, and it could not be purchased for money, two men were hired to cry out in a great hour "Naboth has blasphemed the name of God and the king," and the people stoned him to death. Nebuchadnezzar in his pride said: "Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the honor of my majesty?" At the price the Lord was taken. He found that the great king should live in exile, and dwell among the beasts of the field till seven times passed over him. Christ himself was many times accused of this crime. When he healed the man sick for thirty years, and had been in divine power as Jesus would have seen him for what they considered blasphemy. At no low state, the only one on earth incapable of this sin, was called to the throne of the king. He was the king of Babylon, Belshazzar, king of Babylon, or taking the holy vessels of the temple and drinking from them, was stripped of all his earthly power and pride. Herod in the moment of his pride was smitten with a loathsome disease and perished a miserable death. We might go on in the narrative of events of past ages in which God has justly punished those who have shown themselves in any manner disposed to blasphemy. But we need not go back to past times for these instances. We now see the sick raised from their beds and their relatives about forth praises to the gods in drugs and medicines, truly blasphemous in its nature.

After singing and prayer the society adjourned.

AS TO WHEELS.

THE OLDEST WHEELED VEHICLE IN EXISTENCE.

A duplicate of probably the most ancient wheel vehicle to existence has been received at the World's Columbian exposition. It is a duplicate of a chariot that was excavated from the ruins in Egypt, and is now in the museum in Florence, Italy. The transportation department could not get the original, but had one made that in every particular is as perfect as the original. All expenses of the expense of the Exposition company, and will be exhibited in the vehicle division.

Of course there is no telling how old this car is, as it was buried in the ruins many years before Christ. It probably lay in the Lava beds for at least two thousand years. One strange thing about it is that everything is as perfect and free from decay as it could have been when it was first made. Even the rawhide strings that support the footboard have not decayed. Another curious feature is that the wheels are not materially different from the wheels used at the present time. The spokes are tenoned into the hollow tire same as they are done at the present time. Of course there is no tire on the felloe, but the spokes instead of being driven in the hub, as they are made at the present time, were glued in, forming a solid piece. The spokes are sawed out of large pieces of wood, so that the ends of the spokes are long, and when glued together, form the hub. The axle is of wood, turned round, making a very good arm, and the wheel is hung on by the ordinary linch pin.

Probably the finest display of modern vehicles at the Exposition will be made by the well known firm of Studebaker Bros. Mfg. Co. at their factory, the largest in the world, they are now building a line of work for the Columbian Exposition, which will rival in magnificence any vehicle display ever made.

The Salt Lake branch of this establishment is making a fine display of novelties during conference week and visitors are invited to look over their stock.

The Nancy Hanks fully with few wheels and pneumatic tire is shown, also a full line of wagons and buggies at prices that are right.

WOVEN.

Ben Hogan will give his grand picturesque exhibition of Wonders of the World, including Hawaiian Islands. A huge lake of fire. The ever changing shades and colors for beauty and grandeur, are indescribable, showing the crater in course of eruption. The volcanoes are so true to nature that the various colored fires are seen belching forth in all their awful grandeur and convey a realistic and vivid impression. This is the finest scenery of the kind ever placed upon canvas. Also the statuary in the Vatican at Rome, Naples and Jerusalem. Paris and New York City by night. Conference Notice.

The fact that the Temple Gates will close at 8.30 a.m. during the dedicatory exercises of the respective stakes, should not confound the people that for the regular conference days it is necessary to be on hand early. The Rio Grande Western train from Payson, Spanish Fork, Springville, Provo, Lehi, American Fork and intermediate points, arriving at Salt Lake at 10 a.m. is sufficiently early for all purposes, it is the intention of the Rio Grande Western on the special days allotted to the various stakes to run 'bus special trains which will arrive in Salt Lake not later than 8 a. m. These trains will distance all competitors. The people should watch for the schedule. Street cars will take you from the R. G. W. Depot to the Temple Square without change.
