A man named Anthony Barry, said to have been from Sacramento, was killed by a train at Yuma, Arizona, Monday.

The 16-year-old son of C. Myers, was accidentally set fire to his clothes Sunday afternoon at Los Angeles, and died Monday from the burns which he received.

The Arizona territorial penitentiary contains more inmates at present than ever before in the history of the institution. It will contain 225 men when there have been convicted of violating the laws of our land.

A stage line from Baker City to Prineville, Oregon, has been established. The stage leaves Baker City at 7 o'clock on the Ranger and Mail Prineville via Ranger and Mail Springs Monday, Wednesday and Friday, returning Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

John Krelg, a respected citizen and prominent business man of Santa Rosa, Cal., committed suicide by shooting himself Monday morning. Business reverses led him to take his life. He leaves a widow and two children.

L. C. Rogers of Umatilla, Oregon, has made arrangements to import large quantities of corn from Nebraska and water it twice from of which he has a large number. He expects this means to turn out a superior quality of pork.

An unknown man, supposed to be a tramp, was found dead on the railroad track at Mammoth tank, on the desert, Arizona, on Monday. He had been in the vicinity a passing train, probably during the night. The coroner did not find an inquest, but sent word to try the man whose he was found.

Thomas Conrad, who resides on a ranch on Pine creek, Oregon, suspected a trespasser the other day in novel way. He was driving the family row and coming to the creek he continued to this across the stream the cow's hoofs. The cow "bunked" Conrad fell off, with the painful result.

J. O. Brenders, of Deming, New Mexico, who was absent a short time on account of sickness in his family, Wednesday, tell from the train near Chapman and received a blow which proved commodious of the brain. He was taken to the hospital at Las Vegas. The injured man cannot possibly recover. It is supposed that he slipped on his hands in the cabooses from the top of the train and by an unexpected motion of the train lost his balance and fell to the ground.

The eightieth students of the California state institution for the deaf and blind gave their annual entertainment Sunday afternoon in assembly hall of the institute, at Berkeley, Cal. Not a seat was vacant in the concert room for some time before the opening chorus, and they were reluctantly compelled to turn away from the entrance, crowded nearly country. The program was unusual excellence, rather more difficult than those offered in previous years, showing that the students are progressed musically within the year. All of the forty and odd blind girls at the institution took part in the entertaining their visitors, and as a result the present afternoon was thoroughly enjoyed.

Despondent over his failure to obtain employment, Simon Hesse, a German, 22 years of age, attempted to commit suicide early Monday morning by hanging himself from a timber leading over a tank-well at the pump-house on Reservoir hill, San Francisco. He had one end of a small rope tied to the timber, the other about his neck, and then swung himself off the coping of the well. The rope broke, and he fell a distance of fifteen feet to the bottom of the well, nearly upsetting his cabin. Having failed in his attempts to end his life, and becoming frightened by the thicker darkness he prevailed in the well, Hesse began to shout lustily for help. His cries were heard until about 7 o'clock, when Mrs. Margaret Allman, who was some distance from the reservoir, heard his shouts for help and notified the men who went to his rescue. It is stated that his reason for attempting to commit suicide were that he had been four months without work, or no place to sleep, and had been without food for several days.

Almost every day when the afternoon train passes over the curved bridge on the Carquinez road, Cal., a number of small boys which into the pipes overhead and mingle their cries and screams with the roar and sizzle of the engine as it dashes across the now raging waters of Santa Rosa creek, by the Santa Rosa, Cal., Press. One day the train hands were startled, but little have almost failed to notice it, the other afternoon the usual performance was repeated, soon to the amazement of a lady passenger, who, alarmed at the cries, looked long at the bridge as soon as it had crossed, to see what was the matter. She was rewarded by seeing the figure of a boy lying directly across the track, quickly notifying Conductor Cogan the train was stopped as soon as possible and carefully backed for a quarter of a mile, each shoulder a boy having a tailed leash. When the train had nearly reached the prostrate form up it jumped, and applying its hands to its nose in a very ludicrous fashion scampered into the brush that lines the creek bank at this point.

Adam Finnery walked into the Webster house, Oakland, Cal., which is kept by M. Hara, his father-in-law, Monday afternoon and asked for Ella Yates, one of the boarders, announcing that he had come all the way from Pueblo, Colo., to kill him. Miss Yates is pretty Finnery, who married to her against her will, leaving her penniless. Then he asked for Mrs. Hara, his mother-in-law, saying that he might as well kill her while he was at it. She fled to a friend's house. Finnery then left Miss Yates, who fled in a place of safety. When the police found Finnery he was asleep in the house. John Yates, who married the lady, will be sent for as witness. Race of this incident is an unusual one to recall. Finnery has never seen Yates in his life, but has been bitterly jealous of him for years. Three years ago, when Mr. and Mrs. Finnery were living on a ranch at Santa Rosa, the wife decided to visit her parents, the Haras, in Oakland, and while there she became ill. She sweetened her time and neglected her husband. The latter learned that while his wife was in Oakland Yates had shown her some attention, and had taken her to church. It caused him and was the cause of several quarrels. A year ago he came south for Yates, and the Haras say he would have shot him but for his brother-in-law. The Haras were sent to Colorado remedy and Monday's visit was a complete surprise to their relatives. Yates, who is employed in one of the Southern Pacific tickets, is a refugee. He denies that there is any cause for Finnery's anger.

Horses Kick
is self-evident. It is their most vigorous form of protest against the abuse of bad bits that are worse than torture. Bucksnorts often use such bits in ignorance of the danger that is sure to follow.
This is what happens. One part comes out where it should be cutting, the other goes into the tender flesh, tears and bruises the flesh and leaves the bit in the wound.

Shearing Process
