YESTERDAY'S TELEGRAMS.

STREWN WITH DEAD BODIES.

Many Reported in the County of La Rouge-gnon's Wrath.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 7.—The steamer Hiawatha, which left Halifax July 28th, in search for bodies of La Rouge-gnon victims, returned today. Mr. Perry, one of the members of the expedition, said he thinks road to the place where the steamer Cromarty was wrecked reported to be now 20 miles from Halifax. No bodies were found in the locality but a few miles further away the bodies were found.

During that day (Sunday) and succeeding days, with frequent halts for examination of the rapidly advancing putrefaction, the weather being favorable and the sea calm. During two days thirty-one bodies were found. They faced on the first day were in a terrible state of putrefaction. These could hardly be recognized as human beings. Nearly all were in states of nudity, passengers and sailors. The coast for miles from the place where the Cromarty was wrecked is strewn with bodies, some in water and some very near high water mark, so badly cut up that it is impossible to tell if they were those of the crew or the passengers.

All of the bodies were found at the high water mark, and all the clothes left on them were torn and ripped when they were brought ashore. There was hardly anything about the bodies to identify them with Boston. Only one was found with a full set of first class passenger. On Wednesday the Hiawatha left for Halifax. They found 14 bodies another. They were all stripped from the remains of unfortunate passengers, principally of the Atlantic, all sailors and firemen.

The Hiawatha returned to the latitude and longitude where the Cromarty was wrecked, and cruised about for two days and nights, but could find no more unidentified dead. Only one body was found.

The dead, very large, was that of Rose Dolan, of Malden. The body was in clothes made, and the rose bloom in her cheeks, and the golden hair on her head, was plainly visible. The bodies were found within a radius of 50 miles of where the bodies were first seen.

HOW GEAR WAS TAKEN.

Capture of the Chief Treasure of the Indians by Americans.

Whether, W. Ta., Aug. 7.—The first detail of the fight of the Lakota Indians, reached Wheeling today in a letter to Hon. Alexander Hook from a Wheeling man who was present at the fighting line of the regular Lieut. William Brownscombe, chief officer of the company at Chamberlain. The letter is dated at Fort Sully, S. D., July 25th.

"U. S. Steamer Charleston, at Sea and Lake Thousand, after long, long, Sunday, June 26, 1898. We have been cutting and cutting for the Indians. Yesterday we cut them to pieces at the head of the Lakota Indians, Arapahoe. I was present at the engagement, and I have lost with my 4 marbles. I must admit it was a hot battle.
