to take a final look over the ground. Some of the executive officers of the Colorado company are scheduled to arrive in a few days for the ostensible purpose of signing up with Col. Wall and thereupon taking possession of this valuable Bingham territory. It is learned that under the agreement reached with Mr. Jackling, Col. Wall is to retain a one-fifth interest in the mine. The consummation of this deal means much for the camp of Bingham, and among the things planned, is the erec-tion of a gigantic mill.

The attorney of the San Francisco board of trade, on behalf of some of the general creditors in this city, peti-tioned the United States circuit court today to declare the company an involontary bankrupt.

The petitioners are designated as "Sundry creditors," whose credits to the Copper King Mining company are stat-d to amount to $500 or more, but in reality they stand to lose the greater part of $55,000 due them, for the fact is that the mining company's liabilities, as far as known, amount to more than $614,000, against which there stands in the way of assets property valued very liberally at $275,000.

The property of the company consists of a copper mine in Fresno and a smalt-er in Contra Costa county. Among the chief creditors is Christopher Furness, of England, who has invested over $500,000 in the company,

OF COURSE HE SMILED.

St. Louis, Mo .- A little Illinois militlaman, a lad of about 19 years, taught Maj.-Gen. Corbin of the United States army, who was in command of the great military display, a lesson in dis-cipline Thursday. It was at the re-viewing stand where the president was witnessing the parade. Gen. Corbin and his staff drew up on horsepack in the space allotted to them near the stand. After a while the general dis-mounted and concluded to go upon the reviewing stand. A short cut was across a roped space guarded by the Hinols soldier. Corbin attempted to duck under the ropes, but the soldier stopped him. Mai.-Gen. Corbin of the United States stopped him.

From Witcheraft to Science,

A century ago the work of the modrn surgeon would have been denounce by the theologians, who then ruled mankind, as audacious intrusions into the exclusive jurisdiction of God. Two enturies ago, or, at the furthest, three, he man of science who would take out the viscera of a man, cut out their disease, and put them back, would disease, and put them back, would have been fortunate to escape the stake or the block. But the audacious inva-der of the secrets of the body, the beneficent healer who, with his phial or his knife, lessens the miseries of hu-manity, diminishes or destroys pain, prolongs life and smoothes its pathway to the secret bits is now the man to the grave-this is now the man who appeals most strongly to his fel-low-beings. For him and his training the captains of industry are pouring cut their millions, building him colleges and laboratories, endowing professorhim as the man of power and influence at a time when wealth is accumulat ing and when men are not decaying. More and more, very likely, we shall see the strong men of the college classes choosing medicine, although the time has not yet come for domination ver the lawyer who is now engaged in etiling the direction and the form in which the captains of industry shall carry on their development of the world's wealth. The time seems to be coming, however, when the indefinite prolongation of human life, and the destruction of the enemies of human health—a work which almost suggests the creative power-will be the task that will call for and will receive the service of the best training of our coleges and universities-that is, when he appeal of medicine and surgery will be addressed inevitably to the best a every college class, just as once the call came from the ministry, and then from the beach and bar and senate house.—Harper's Weekly,
