THE TROUBLE OVER.

The Strikers in the Cœur d'Alene District Have had Enough of It.

SOLDIERS TAKE POSSESSION OF THE MINES.

Cause of the Difficulty.—"Scabs" Compelled to Leave.—Miner's Arrested.

The Trouble Said to be Over for the Present.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 14.—Telegrams received by Major General Schofield this afternoon show that the labor troubles in the Cœur d' Alene mining district are at an end for the present. The rioters have dispersed and the State authorities aided by Federal troops are in full possession of the field. General Schofield said tonight that people who are complaining because soldiers have not arrested the rioters had a very improper conception of the position of the troops in the matter. He explained that they were ordered there merely to support the civil authorities in the restoration of order and are acting altogether under the governor of the State. They had no independent functions whatever, and absolutely nothing to do with any disorders that may have occurred before their arrival. The duty of the civil authorities is to enforce the law, and all the troops could do was to protect them in so doing.

EVERYTHING QUIET AT WALLACE.

WALLACE, Ida., July 14.—Everything is quiet here. The miners returned to the various mines last night and work on the various mines was resumed this morning. The Granite was visited by a deputation of miners last night, and the nonunion men were told that they must leave the district. The best information obtainable is to the effect that the reports of the massacre at the Mission were greatly exaggerated, only one man being killed and he accidentally. The bridges between here and Mullan have been repaired, and trains are running to Mullan. An appeal is made for a Congressional investigation of the troubles.

Two companies of United States infantry and two companies of State militia arrived at noon and are distributed throughout the town. Wardner is almost deserted, except for the soldiers now occupying the place. All signs of trouble have disappeared. Everything is quiet and miners say the troops are welcome.

General Curtis of the Idaho National Guard says that he was advised by the governor this afternoon that martial law would be proclaimed and troops be distributed throughout the district, and lives and property be protected at the first sign of trouble. The military will work in harmony with peaceable citizens, and as soon as the county shall be restored to its normal condition the troops will leave.

ORIGIN OF THE TROUBLE.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—J. J. Hammond, president of the Bunker Hill & Sullivan Mining Company, who is now in this city, said today that he had received telegrams stating that everything is quiet in the Cœur d'Alene district. Hammond said the attitude of the company has not yet decided what course to take regarding the future working of the mines. Thousands of men have been made idle by ceasing a mill in making silver for government, and the situation was much to their disadvantage.

G. H. Hunter, who was sent by the executive committee of the Wallace Miners' union to prevent the importation into that section of nonunion men, said that while the origin of the present trouble could have been directly traced to the demand for an increase of wages, which was unnecessary, last year, the direct cause of the trouble was the revolt by the men against the hospital tax of $1 per month levied by the company, and which the miners claimed was not productive of benefit since to them at the time whenever needed. The union built a hospital at Wallace and adopted a rule that $1 per month should be paid to it, but the companies should be paid to the hospital. The Bunker Hill and Sullivan company refused to recognize the justice of this rule and a strike resulted in favor of the miners. Smith claims the reduction of wages then followed.

THE TROUBLE IN PERSPECTIVE.

SPOKANE, Wash., July 14.—A special to the Review just received says that the Cœur d'Alene country is now in control of the Federal authorities. Federal troops are in camp at nearly every important point. There was a general movement of troops this morning from Canada under the command of General Carlin. At noon today several companies from Sherman and Fort Sherman arrived here and immediately went into camp. Inspector-General Carlin is in command, with Captain Judd as second officer. The town is now under martial law and a proclamation to the effect has been posted in all conspicuous places. Strikers have been orderly and quiet since the arrival of the troops.

Another Review special says: Wallace was in control of an armed rabble all night. The status of the union at Wardner yesterday inflated the strikers with unusual excitement. Upon the arrival of the union men from Wardner yesterday many proceeded to get drunk. During the night the strikers held high carnival and ran things about as they pleased. This morning a number of scabs came down from the Granite mine to be paid off and leave the Cœur d'Alene. They went into the Wallace Bank to get their checks cashed, but a number of strikers marched rudely into the bank, hustled them out and orders them to leave town. They hurried to the depot and got on a train. The strikers then marched back to the bank and told the officials that if all the scabs were not out of town in an hour the bank would be blown up with dynamite. The excitement caused was intense, and the miners became more arrogant. Committees waited upon several people and told them to leave town. Among those called upon were the clerk of the Pastime Hotel, the manager of Rolly, Mason, Marks & Co., and other prominent people. Mayor Dunn dispatched a message to Colonel Curtis and troops were hurried into the town before all scabbers at reason had fled. The message was no sooner wired than one of the strikers came to the telegraph office and drawing a rifle on the operator ordered him to send no more messages to Wardner. The troops are now here and the people are thankful once more for the safeguards of society, which are never fully appreciated until they are gone.

THE RAILROAD INVESTIGATION.

Commissioner Veazey Wants to see the Stock Book.

CHICAGO, July 14.—Evidently the Interstate commerce commission has determined to find out if possible the exact relation between the Illinois Steel company and five railroad companies.

Commissioner Veazey today adopted a new plan of procedure, making a formal demand on Vice-President Sterling of the Illinois Steel company for the stock books of that corporation. Sterling's counsel declined to permit the books to be inspected.

"Then you refuse to let the commission see the books?" inquired Commissioner Veazey, after the conference of the lawyers, railroad men and Steel company.

"The conclusion was reached that it would be unwise to let the books be inspected."

"Then," said Veazey, "I'll subpœna you, sending to produce the stock book."

This caused a sensation and right on top of it came an order making it imperative upon the auditor of the railroad companies to yield the secretary's books for his inspection. Another consultation resulted in the decision by the railroad people to postpone action.

At the afternoon session the first case called was the complaint against the Grand Trunk, East Saginaw & Michigan and Wabash roads charged with paying given lower rates than those stated in the tariff sheets to foreign and domestic points. Tom Bell witness was Dr. Davis Brown, freight agent of the Chicago & Grand Trunk. The witness absolutely declined to answer a question in regard to the stock ownership. The next witness was Sumner Hayden, freight agent of the Wabash. His attorney advised him to refuse to answer the commissioner's question where he obtained the nonunion road no jurisdiction to institute such an inquiry. Other witnesses were placed on the stand with similar results.

Chairman Veazey said after adjournment that efforts would be made to compel the witnesses to answer questions and to produce the books of the roads. If they decline they will be in contempt and punished accordingly.

The Interstate Commerce Commission may take direct issue today with railroad officials who refuse to answer questions on the investigation of alleged discriminations in favor of any company. President Stimson, Vice-President Wossing and Secretary Keen of five roads in Indiana, Illinois and Iowa are in contempt for refusing to produce books containing information sought for.

Chinese Identification Certificates.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—The Examiner this morning prints a long article stating that Chinese certificates of identification are being disposed of here in violation of law. The article states that the paper in the possession of a certificate purchased from H. Y. Chonee, a Chinese lawyer, who agreed for the sum of $100 on delivery of the certificate, to produce a couple of friends under the name of law of any Chinese who might desire to land. The Examiner cites a sufficient number of cases to show that it is a common practice for Chinese who might desire to land, The Examiner cites a sufficient number of cases to show that it is a common practice for Chinese who might desire to land, The Examiner cites a sufficient number of cases to show that it is a common practice for Chinese who might desire to land.
