INSPECTED THE JAIL.

Council Committees Visit the Old-Condemned "Black Hole."

THEY AGREE ON ONE THING,

And That Is, That Something Must Be Done Soon—Foul Foul Air and Many Prisoners.

The question of building a new city jail bobbed suddenly to the surface again this morning when the joint Council committees on prison and improvements appeared in a body at Chief Pratt's office and requested to be shown through the "Black Hole" concerning which grand juries for years past have apparently vied with each other in the selection of condemnation phrases.

The request was promptly granted and the municipal solons stepped from the jail yard over the threshold of the offensive structure with Captain Donovan as the pilot and Jailer Kimball bringing up the rear. The committee passed from one apartment to another asking questions of the "birds" confined there, and only tales of woe and suffering fell upon their ears. All members of the committee deplored the condition of the jail. They are unanimous in the opinion that the city should have a new one. But all of them do not think that the municipal finances now warrant the building of one. Clawson is still an advocate of remodeling the present city hall at a cost not to exceed $5,000 as soon as it is vacated, as per his resolution offered some months ago and referred to the committee on prisons, which will, says Chairman O'Meara, tonight report adversely upon it.

Mr. O'Meara says the committee will recommend that a new jail be erected at an estimated cost of $25,000. This will throw away the plans already adopted.

The present jail has really accommodations for only forty to fifty prisoners. Today more than seventy men and a few women are huddled together in the dark, cramped and foul smelling quarters and it is necessary to keep the desperate characters locked in dungeons of cells so small and damp as to savor of inquisition ages.

While the committee was at work within there was an quietly interested gathering without and many were the speculations as to what the result of the official visit would be. One gentleman more serious than the rest ventured to ask the question, "Do you really think they will recommend the erection of a new jail?"

The answer came quick and emphatic from another bystander. "Look and feel the doors on them and keep them in there until tomorrow morning and their report will be such that inside of six months we'll have a new jail, modern throughout."

DAMAGES CLAIMED $1,000.

An Action Brought Against Chief Pratt and Police Officer J. J. Roberts.

This afternoon, in the Third district court, Charles W. Vinson, through his attorneys—Messrs. E. W. Tullock and H. A. Smith—brought an action for damages against Chief of Police Pratt and Officer John J. Roberts in the sum of $1,000 and costs.

The complaint recites that on May 28th, 1894, while at a point about a quarter of a mile north of Beck's Hot Springs, outside of the city limits, while plaintiff was walking with another—then in the direction of Salt Lake, he was arrested by Roberts, acting under his chief's orders, and held in custody; that such arrest was made without the issuance of a warrant or the filing of a criminal complaint charging any public offense, and without probable cause. Along the street, plaintiff says, he was taken by force to the police station and imprisoned in the city jail from 8:30 a. m. till 2 p. m. of the same day; that the cell in which he was confined was "dirty, loathsome and alive with vermin," as the defendants well know. Upon arraignment he was released on his own recognizance. He May 31st, in conformity with the terms thereof, he appears for trial, but was finally discharged and set at liberty, indefinite being preferred against him.

Plaintiff avers that his arrest was illegal, malicious and wrongful, done beyond the territorial limits of jurisdiction of this city, and "had by the defendants for the sole purpose of injuring and defaming him." He says he has thereby been "held up to public ridicule and contempt, pointed at by the public press of the city as a criminal and has lost the respect and esteem of his former neighbors and friends.

Members of the A. R. U. are indignant at the treatment one of the strikers received at the hands of C. E. Maxwell, U. S. deputy marshal. James W. Butler, a striker, was sworn out a warrant before Judge Bagley charging Maxwell with assault and battery. He alleges that for no offense whatever Maxwell assaulted him as he was quietly attending to his business at the Union depot, grabbing him violently by the shirt collar, tearing his coat and shaking him, and otherwise abusing him.

Tramps are keeping our policemen busy. Twenty-three was the number that appeared before Justice Bagley yesterday. This interview with the justice resulted in twelve getting ten days each in the chain gang, and eleven discharged.
