TOPICS OF THE DAY.

The Hawaiian Problem Soon to Be Solved by Congress.

AS TO PROF. TYNDALL'S DEATH.

A French Editor Challenged to a Duel.—Relics of Sailors Washed Ashore.—Other Items.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Prominent members of the House committee on foreign affairs evidently expect Congress to be called upon soon to decide the Hawaiian question. Chairman Hitt'ourt, yesterday, has an extended interview with the President, and it is supposed that matters relating to Hawaii were under discussion. Mr. Cleveland would say nothing about the conference, but from the suggestions he made it is evident that he expected that Congress would deal with the matter. A member of the committee said the President would not think of asking Congress to act without, he said, he thinks he an act of war.

There has been a theory advanced, that after swearing again from Minister Willis and learning positively that the given account to restore exactly by the act of the United States troops, the President will present to Congress the case of the queen as a wronged monarch, whose government was overthrown by this government, and assert that it is now the duty of the United states to restore the status quo, even by using force. This is the view advanced by the friends of the administration.

There will be great opposition in the House committee on foreign affairs to the resolution of Hill, of Illinois, on the ground that it would not be right, in view of the further promised communication from the Executive on the subject, for the House to give an expression to the sentiments contained in Hill's resolutions. Hill will make very effort to secure a favorable report from the committee of his resolution, but it will take at least three Democratic votes to bring about such a result, it is doubtful if he will be successful.

A SPIRITED DEBATE.

Senator Hill's Grand Speech on the Hawaiian Question.

DESERET NEWS BUREAU,
49 3 St., N. E.,
Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. [Special.]—Senator Vilas spoke at length chiefly in relation to the unity of voting down the Hoar resolution calling for papers and information in the hands of the President. He was constantly interrupted by Republican senators who made the point that if Hawaii should be abandoned because of irregularities, we should restore Texas and other territory acquired from Mexico to the original owners, but Vilas was completely checked out when asked to show the authority of the President for undoing the existing government, even though all he claimed in regard to the provisional government were true.

Hoar also would answer that question at some future period and a great laugh went round the gallery. Senator Hill cut the ice coming next, however, and made a great speech. He spoke in a loud, clear voice with a determined manner, and his audience was as the most effective speech of the day. He waived consideration of the merits of the Hawaiian question to argue that congress had no information, but that between the lines it is evident from the President's message that the Hawaiians are to assume a change of government, whether by force or intrigue, we cannot know what we have the science of information before us. He spoke slightly in favor of the President. The guillotine blow in immediately Hill's taking the floor, and throughout he was listened to with profound attention.

Sherman, Gray and Cull spoke after Hill, but it was all close listening after the storm. Hill had carried every all opposition and the resolution was adopted by a full vote on the Republican side and with scarcely no one opposite.

INTERESTS AT HOME.

The Spring, Extract and Mineral Water Factory in Salt Lake.

RESOURCES OF SOUTHERN UTAH.

Utah Inventor's Invention for Coupler.—Southernmost Mining and Business Items.

The Howlett Brothers Soda Water company consists of a quartet of energetic young Salt Lakers who, while producing summer drinks that are unsurpassed, if mixed they are equalled, anywhere in the world, try to make soda water their business to the manufacture of mineral waters. This branch would provide work for only a portion of the year at most, but the company's large factory on the corner of Fourth street, between Seventh and Eighth South streets, is kept going winter and summer by the other divisions of manufacture carried on.

The most recent development in the business is that noted a few days ago by the NEWS in the addition to the plant of a new spice mill. The machine that has been put to perform excellent work, and is capable of turning out five tons of ground spice daily. This is pretty large output, and does away with the necessity of any extensive adjustment to Utah of imported spices. The home manufactured article now this season were not imported, that the guarantee of purity and strength is of necessity kept good.

Since the addition of the new mill, the Hewlett Brothers report that they have been given a favorable hearing by local merchants. Those who are not already well stocked with pepper, allspice, cloves, cinnamon, ginger, sages, mace, nutmeg, cassia, etc., have examined the home product, and finding that it is of superior quality and complete in price with the imported have placed orders therefor. It is now in flavor of not yet known to require from storekeepers "Utah spices only." Of course the new spices are not grown in the Territory as yet, and some of them cannot be at present, as the raw material has to be brought in. In the meantime the party seeks to convince that the work of preparing it is done here, thus giving employment to home capital and workmen, and the product is clean and pure. Which is more than can be said for the imported article where so many adulterations can be worked in.

While the Hewlett Brothers are proceeding on a broad scale in the spice business they carry on an extensive traffic in extracts of lemon, peppermint, jamaica ginger, vanilla, etc., and in syrups of sassafras and Davies, which are put up in this city. They also have a special glass and bottle department in connection with the trade, the material in this line being all imported, however, as there is no factory here.

Though in the fall and winter the mineral water business is carried on to some extent, yet it is small by comparison with the summer season. Last summer the demand was not quite than half as great as the preceding year. The company's field is, however, extending with each season, and now reaches Nevada, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming as well as all parts of Utah.

An advantage possessed by a mineral water factory in Salt Lake over similar establishments elsewhere is the good, clear water especially adapted to the purpose. The water is simply charged with gas and flavored. In the charging process a large quantity of a bicarbonate of soda is used at the Hewlett factory. In the large eastern cities marble dust is the material in general use, as it is cheaper. The soda is acted upon by sulphuric acid, which causes it to give off a gas (carbonic of the yet existing and two of oxygen) which is forced into the water under a stated pressure, in connection with the flowing syrups and the liquid is then bottled for use. What are known as the natural mineral waters, even those of Soda Springs, are charged in the same way to make them marketable.

"Outside of Utah," said Mr. Howlett, "there are some places where our mineral waters are sold in large quantities where the dealers request us to put on the label the name of manufacture. This is because of the 'fads' of tourists and others. If they see the article labeled Salt Lake they would want something else; but when it is marked 'Utah ginger ale,' etc., and 'made for export,' they fancy it a foreign product and buy it. Of course the flavor is specially good and the water sparkling, and it goes well. For instance, we sell in Wyoming an immense lot of Wasatch mineral water. That is just a name we have given for a particular kind. It is of very fine quality, and many folks there think it comes from Wasatch, whereas if they knew it came from Salt Lake, they would turn up their noses at it. They buy it, however, and it is a fact that that trick could not be equalled in a Wisconsin factory, because they haven't the water there. Some people in Utah have a fancy for what they suppose to be foreign mineral waters, but as a rule the people know a good thing without the label, so the home article takes the lead of all others."

The bicarbonate of soda, which is used by Howlett Brothers, has to be shipped from Kansas. It is manufactured by the Arm and Hammer brand, which is a recognized leader in this line. AUTOMATIC CAR COUPLER.

Between 5 and 6 o'clock last evening a series of satisfactory tests were made at the Utah Central depot of the Thompson-Knox automatic car coupler for freight cars. The working of the device shows that the gentlemen, who are Utah men, have succeeded in fully solving the great problem of coupling freight cars on railways by an automatic coupling which would adapt to its use the old-fashioned link.

This invention is by Mr. C. T. Thompson, who has been aided by Mr. R. S. Knox to put it to large the people, and now each of the gentlemen is a half interest. Mr. Thompson has had a first practical experience on railway when he was station agent at one, and in addition to his duties as agent, he had charge of the car works, but with each expect the lack he found his scene fatal. Three of the inventions have been patented, the last being the one that last evening. Mr. Thompson is now an employee of the Salt Lake City Railway company, and Mr. Knox is connected with the Deseret News of the Republic.

The new car coupler is adjustable to the United states so far as the coupling of cars is concerned, and it adapted for other the matter of near link. To join the cars on a freight train there is no necessity to go between them. The simplicity lies in the work perfectly. For the uncoupling of cars it can be operated by having a lever at a distance, so the pin can be drawn by an operator at the side of the track, or by getting a chain to draw the pin from the top of a box car. The former method is the one now in the lead and exactly.

The number consists of three pieces. One is the link, the other is a small section in portion for the jaggers and the third is a movable block, and the third is the link itself. This is operated on an inclined plane on the "draft" plate, and is held in place by a lever. When the cars are uncoupled the sliding block rests at the end of the inclined plane in such a way as to hold up the coupling pin ready for the link to be inserted. When the latter instrument is accomplished the block is driven back by the link, the pin falls in place, and the cars are coupled together. There is no necessity of the movement, as the spring-loaded mechanism to get out of order. In fact the whole arrangement is as simple and as effective that it seems a marvel that it was not thought of and adopted long years ago.

The test last evening gave great proof that the operation of the coupler is perfect. It was tried on curves and at different rates of speed, always acting with the utmost precision.

When the merits of the device become known, it would find universal use on the railways. There are now in operation in this country about a million and a quarter freight cars, so that the patentees should be able to get a very little sum as a reward for their toil. The coupler can be made at a very slight cost over those so commonly in use and whose non-automatic operation has led to so many serious accidents.

RESOURCES OF THE SOUTH.

There is a mountain of sand not far from Beaver, says the Chronicle, which is made up with sand from which glass can be made, and glass, too, of a superior quality and to any quantity. Very little of this kind of sand is found elsewhere; we have an abundance. We will supplied with tanbark, a good range for cattle, and silver ledges in nearly contained, and as we already have the building for a tannery, it would be a small undertaking to establish a flourishing business in the tanning of hides. No better place can be found than here is.

Beaver for water power. Our river could be used with turbines running by the power the stream affords, however for a great accompanied at least second reasons in Fort Cameron. It would be a credit to the Territory if this beautiful place could be put to more beneficial use. The accommodations are such that it adapts itself to almost any conceivable purpose, and if our legislature will permit any issues to be such and harmoniously labor for Utah's interest during the coming session, they will probably find some profitable use to which Fort Cameron may be put.

The county is able to supply the such territories as iron with coal, and so far from are it is simply unbounded, running as high as 91 per cent pure iron. The same county also affords excellent water power, timber and range. In mineral resources are wholly undeveloped, though a very rich find of gold is reported from Kanarra. Iron county contains several thousand acres of the finest quality of soil for agricultural purposes, and a little care will furnish the water. It is said that most excellent individual artesian water are found and an effort will soon be made to test them.

The fruit land of Utah—Washington county, has one of its chief resources in its excellent sources. Fruit of almost every kind can be raised here. The grape attains a large size and exhibitions flavor, and so with all the fruits of this place. It is said they control the same trade from California. The industry is only in its infancy and can be largely increased. The mining interests are receiving a little attention by the Messrs. Woolley, Lund & Judd, but could be vastly increased.

NOTES.

Ten thousand acres of timber land on Redwood creek, California, have been sold to eastern capitalists for $150,000. Eastern money lenders are seeking for western investments, and several other large timber land deals are in process of negotiation.

The articles of incorporation were filed yesterday with Secretary of State Curtis. The name and style of the company is the Rube Mining company, located. The capital stock amounts to $2,000 divided at a par value of $100 each, all of which is subscribed.

Rube, Lincoln, Gulch-ram. The gentlemen who recently located a large tract of placer ground in Rube basin, including considerable land claimed by the Redrock Flume company, have formed a company with a capital stock of $5,000,000 for the purpose of working those places and other claims that the company may in future acquire.

The last of the outcropping ones growing out of the tunnel in Moab Canyon week the Minnie' claim and the mine owners has been disposed of. Over one hundred members of the mines were charged with contempt. Only twenty-five of them were tried and several served sentences in the Kane county jail. The other cases have been hanging his ever since.

Tuesday, the 22nd of May, has been set apart as "Minnie' day" at the Midwinter Fair, and already arrangements for special schemes of entertainment are being matured by the committee in charge of the mining exhibit. A feature of the program already practically decided on will be a contest over the drilling in this mine, in which section of the mine the competents in this line of industry herein Carbonate Camp and Salt Lake will take part. The line of the mines will also be fully illustrated, and numerous other features of interest to miners to make the day specially attractive to that line of industry.

Notwithstanding Nevada's low stockrate are increased increase of cattle which has been considerable during the past year. Two years ago the Silence Lumber and Mining of the Bay of Bright, Lake Valley, shipped cattle to Kansas, N. S. Ins. Ranch contract to 300 every so that they had increased from 31 last week and 150 head in cattle, preparing to winter everything. Both they and sheep. They pay from $18 to $20 a head and will have just enough sheep to make the manure of the proposition by if the market begin up to the East. Some gentlemen will return to Hot Springs, Lake Valley, and will leave equally as large as to this year for cattle to dry do this time. They leave for the railroad tomorrow.

Pioche, Nevada, Special T. U. Editorial, on Saturday last, secured a ninety days' option on the Gold Eagle and Gold Coin properties in Pergamin district, so we understand reported at Pioche. These two promising claims are contiguous to the Alpha Fox properties and about half a mile distant from them, on the Blue mountain. A very little work is required to show up the results there. A. D. Campbell, the president, is now in Salt Lake City and will be back in Pioche in a few days. W. T. Hall leaves here tomorrow to undertake the work. It will be more than a state to get the material across the desert, though this is as good a time of the year to do it as any. The road will be got up with prime feeding of hay, and will be used for supplying gold ores. The lead mines of Yuba Pine district have been spoken of a great deal since the construction of the Nevada Southern railway began, and it is to them that the railway looks largely for its freight.

San Francisco Chronicle: S. H. Babcock, general freight agent of the Rio Grande Western Railway, with headquarters at Salt Lake, is in this city. Mr. Babcock states that the railways are doing a somewhat better business in Utah and Colorado of late. The depression in silver has had an appreciable effect in other ways, and the more has on the mend produced. It has stopped prospecting, and the merchants of the smaller towns have suffered from the loss of trade in supplying prospectors. The low price of silver has caused a great loss to Utah, Territory, and the export of bullion East, which had grown to be quite a heavy business, but diminished owing to demand falling off. Mr. Babcock believes that these business drawbacks are but temporary, and that the future of Utah is a bright one. The Territory would make an extensive exhibit at the Midwinter Fair, he stated, and there would be a large attendance of visitors from Ogden, Salt Lake and other cities of Utah.

Got What He Deserved.

A Draper "man" named Joseph Hallock has been sentenced to sixty days in the county jail for assaulting his wife.

IS THERE A TILE OFF?

M. W. Ramney and the Writing of Those Letters.

In Commissioner Norrell's court this afternoon the hearing of the charge against M. W. Ramney, a resident of South Cottonwood, began. It is alleged by the complaining witness, Arvin Green, that the defendant, by letter, circulated scandalous and defamatory statements concerning him. One of the letters, in particular, was extraordinary specimen of composition, and would almost indicate that the writer must be something of a crank. It contains some very glaring allegations nevertheless, and is of reasonable length. The object of the author of the communication is claimed to be the collection of money from Green, who is respondent, in the course of the letter, to forward to Ramney the very modest sum of $5.75.

Additional Cases Allowed.

An adjourned session of the County court was held this afternoon—all the members being present—to examine and pass upon various claims left over from Monday.

THE NEXT ELECTION.

Political Leaders Are Beginning to Think and Work.

NAMES OF PROBABLE NOMINEES.

The Indications Are That the Fight Will Be Between the National Parties.—The Governor's Call.

In the not very distant past Utah was credited—owing to a complex condition of affairs—with having altogether too many elections for the good of her citizens, the principal objections being that frequent campaigns engendered momentary flickering and excited much needless expense. It was largely with a view to overcoming these obstacles that the law consolidating elections was passed by the Territorial Legislature at its last session and had it not been for the hand of death the school election of this city yesterday would, so far as anything now appears, have ended any contest of ballots in this district for another year. But the vacancy in the Legislature, occasioned by the sad and unexpected decease of Clarence W. Hall, has left the Governor and the leaders of the national parties with a duty to perform. And as there is not little time to be lost the latter have already commenced their calculations and their forecasts are not without interest.

It is generally conceded by all classes that the coming campaign will be waged on national issues, that is, by the Democratic and Republicans, the Liberals uniting with those parties. The political obsolesins and the masses are all anxious that party strength should be tested and in order that it might they are desirous that their heaviest artillery shall be put forth for the support of the voters.

The Democrats have been doing some pretty close figuring, and among those most likely to be forced to the front when the engagement commences, which will be within the next few days, are John A. and Thomas Marshall, Judge Henderson, James H. Mayo and W. C. Hall. All of these have had experience at law-making and four of them have been before elected to the Legislature of this Territory, and all have made good records. From the counsels of their party, however, comes the information in gentle whispers that the choice will eventually be between Jno. A. Marshall and W. C. Hall, though it is possible but not probable that a dark horse may loom up at the last moment. In regard to Judge Henderson and Mr. Mayo, it is said neither of them will become a candidate if they consult their own feelings in the matter. Mr. L. W. Wilson, who came so near being elected in the recent struggle will have friends to press his claims.

The Republicans are no less active than their Democratic opposite and are accomplishing that difficult task of sawing wood and writing at the same time without making much noise. They claim an abundance of material from which to make a selection and that war horses are being prospectively fitted up and groomed for the great race. Like their political cousins they say they are sanguine as to the result and are certain that victory will be theirs.

From what could be learned today from the most authentic sources the stalwarts from which the chosen one appears most likely to come are E. B. Critchlow, S. J. Kenyon, C. S. Varian, W. H. Dickson and James Devine. Other Republicans, prominent, aggressive and able in the party have also been suggested, but these named are foremost for the honor at the present time. Of course these prognostications may be upset in the convention that will be held in pursuance to the Governor's proclamation but the indications are that they will not be seriously disturbed. Should any candidate decline duty to his party will be urged long and persuasively.

Governor West was seen today when he prepared to issue a call for a special election and he replied that he had not yet made up his mind but it is certain that such action will not be long delayed.

Before starting for Toledo to attend the convention, Governor Waite received a letter warning him that the employes at the penitentiary and other residents of Canyon city were plotting to kidnap him from the train at some small station and spirit him away in the night time. The governor made his journey safely.
