Adoption of Children.

As will be seen by the decision of Judge Bartch in today's proceedings of the Probate court, it is held that Probate courts still have jurisdiction in matters of adoption of children. This question was recently brought up in Judge Bartch's court in the matter of the adoption of Veronica C. Peck, a minor, when Mr. Schroeder, attorney for the contestant in the matter, objected to the jurisdiction of the court. The attorney based his objections upon the twelfth section of the Edmunds-Tucker law, which provides that the probate court shall have no jurisdiction of cases except those pertaining to the settlement of estates of deceased persons, guardianships, etc. Mr. Harrington, attorney for the petitioner, argued that as adoption was a question so closely allied to guardianship, practice in this jurisdiction and legislative enactment had conferred this power upon the probate courts, and that the intention of Congress was clearly not to divest them of it, it was competent and lawful especially in the light of the Poland law for them to exercise such jurisdiction.

The court took the matter under advisement and today rendered a decision in favor of his jurisdiction. The decision was based upon the facts above stated and upon the authority of Ferris vs. Higbley, the provisions of the Poland law and the intention of Congress. The decision and discussion of this subject are important to the judges of the various counties, as well as to the people generally, as we think it is the first time the question has been raised.

A SMALL SHOWING.

A Quiet Morning Around the Wasatch Building.

Business in the courts this morning has been unusually dull, even for a Saturday.

In Judge Zane's court the first case heard was another suit for divorce, the petitioner being Lina Lundberg. The grounds of the complaint was neglect to provide.

Petitioner and her husband, Carl Lundberg, were married in this city on November 12th, 1888, and there are two children issue of the marriage, Lilla, aged four, and Daisy, aged four, twin months. For two years past the defendant has entirely deserted his wife, and has contributed nothing whatever towards her maintenance.

Judge Zane granted the decree, allowed the petitioner the custody of the children, and $10 per month alimony.

ANOTHER DAMAGE CASE.

The hearing of the damage suit of Geo. Everett vs. the O. S. L. & U. & N. Railway Co., part heard yesterday afternoon, and reported in yesterday's issue, was resumed this morning, when the taking of further testimony went forward.

THREE OUT OF A NEW TRIAL.

In the case of Tomas Tomeson, et al. vs. Taylor, Romney, Armstrong Co. et al., ten days were allowed the plaintiff in which to file statement for a new trial.

VERY SHORT.

Judge Anderson did not hold court for more than five minutes this morning, and that was simply for the purpose of receiving the sealed verdict of the jury in the case of Williams vs. C. M. Barrows, Constable. Plaintiff sued to recover $1000 for an alleged unlawful seizure of his saloon stock, on Franklin avenue, by defendant. The jury found for the defendant.

A TOOKLE TOUGH

Who is Being Tame at the Reform School Makes an Unsuccessful Attempt to Escape.

R. C. Wilson of 2228 Monroe avenue, Ogden, is nursing a badly wrenched shoulder and bruised arm and hand, the cause being an encounter had with Jerome Smith, an inmate of the Reform School.

Smith, it will be remembered, was the junior member of the gang of bright whites badly beat and robbed Mahonri Stewart, Thomas Rooney, a few months ago. His colleagues Utley and Donaldson are now doing time in the Penitentiary for their wrong doing, while he is serving a four years' term in the Territorial Reform School for the offense.

Yesterday morning the guard at the school, as is the daily custom, marched the inmates of the institution into the field to work. While his back was turned for a moment Smith slipped away, and, getting out of the grounds, ran down the avenue. When near the corner of Twenty-second street and Monroe avenue the fleeing youth was seen by Nightwatchman Barton of the school, who immediately gave chase. Mr. Wilson had just finished his morning toilet and stepped out on the lawn to get his paper. He saw a boy following by a man coming down the avenue at full run, and as the former reached his gate, caught him by the arm. Smith is a big and powerful lad, and struck Mr. Wilson several times about the head and shoulders. The gentleman plainly held on to him, however, until Mr. Barton came up and relieved him. Smith was taken back to the Reform school, where he will in the future be carefully guarded.

DID NOT LIKE THE COMPANY.

When Arrested He Makes a Break for Liberty, Blood Is Spilled, He is Recaptured.

Last night Officers Sullivan and Learn at Ogden had a running fight with a clothing thief, but they got their man all right in the end.

About 11 o'clock J. E. Reynolds was seen carrying out of the City hospital a new suit of clothes on his arm. He actions aroused suspicion and the officers kept him under surveillance. A short time before midnight he entered the Keystone saloon on lower Twenty-fifth street and tried to dispose of the clothes. Officer Sullivan at once placed him under arrest and started with his prisoner toward the station. At the corner of Lincoln and Twenty-fifth Reynolds made a break for liberty and ran south. The officer fired at him as he vanished under the trees which line the sidewalk, but without effect. Sullivan was joined by Learn who happened to be in the vicinity, and the two gave chase. Reynolds was seen to pass the corner of Twenty-sixth, turn west and run among some old buildings near the outskirts of the town. As he disappeared Sullivan again fired but for the second time missed his mark. After a lengthy search Reynolds was found sitting flat on the ground under a tree on outhouse and when ordered to go up he played innocent, but it did not work. The bracelets were slapped on his wrists and soon he was safely lodged in the city jail. He will have a hearing today on a charge of petit larceny.

Fatal Mistake in a a Telegram.

The case of John H. Lindsay, the actor, vs. the Western Union Telegraph Company, after several postponements and delays, came up before Judge Sutherland, as referee, this morning. The plaintiff was represented by Messrs. Darke and Kenner, and the defendant by David Evans, of Ogden. The evidence on the part of the plaintiff showed that he made a contract with a manager in Helena to play with him six weeks, and in the telegram he fixed his terms at $200 a week. The message was delivered to the manager reading $200 a week. By reason of this mistake of the telegraph company Mr. Lindsay found himself among strangers with a company on his hands and his salary reduced twenty-five per cent. The defense is that the plaintiff knew of the error at the end of the first week and if he then continued the telegraph company was not responsible beyond that period. All o'clock a recess was taken till 2 p. m.

NASHVILLE, April 30.—At midnight last night a mob of 500 from Clarksville attempted to enter the jail for the purpose of taking out and lynching a negro, Eph Grizzard, who with Henry Grizzard, (already lynched) is supposed to be one of the men who robbed Clem Bines girl on Tuesday. The mob attacked the jail doors with a sledge hammer, but were unable to effect an entrance, though they worked several hours at it. Finally Governor Buchanan appeared on the scene and endeavored to persuade the mob to desist, but without effect. The whole city police force was finally called out, and charged the mob with clubs. In the fight which followed, several shots were fired and a man named N. L. Guthrie was shot through the lungs. He died several hours later. Charles Baer was also shot and seriously wounded during the fusillade. At last the mob, finding the attack useless, desisted, saying they would return and accomplish its purpose the next time.

All this afternoon the mob assembled on the square and marched to the jail. Armed with rifles, furnished by the officers, they took Grizzard out, put a rope around his neck and led him in a northeast direction and hanged him to a bridge across the Cumberland river, in the heart of the city. Important to Farmers.

Attention is directed to a circular from the Home Fire Insurance Company of Utah. It is shameful that solicitors of other companies should try to take advantage of the popularity of the Home and the responsibility of its officers to deceive the farming public into insurance with those misleading representations. Farm insurance is a valuable feature in this business and we have no doubt that when it is properly explained to our citizens "home company" will come at the chance offered by the Home Company. They need be under no apprehension if they make sure who they are dealing with. The names of the members of the Board are a sufficient guarantee of right dealings, and the Home Insurance Company's financial standing is A No. 1.

"Brother," said he, "I hear that you think I am the wrong man to be pastor of this church."

"Well, to be frank," replied Mr. A., "I do think that another would have filled the place better."

"Now that is just what I think," said the pastor. "We will drop our heads and unite in opposition to the majority of the parishioners, for they to be unselfish and make the best of it."

After that call Mr. X. never had a better friend than Mr. A.—Boston Herald.
