The Herald of Helena, Montana, says: Word comes from Missoula county of a shocking occurrence at the home of John Walsh, near Junction, that resulted in John Wynne, while alone at home, being burned to death. For blackened body was found by her neighbors. From the position in which the remains lay, and from the fact that the burning of the house appeared to the neighbors, both to the supposition that she was carrying a napkin full of wood from the kitchen to stove to a stove in another room for the purpose of starting a fire when she fainted and fell, her clothes catching fire and the unfortunate woman literally roasted alive. Mrs. Wynne was one of the state's pioneers, having come to Angel gulch in the early days. She was a sister, Walter, a captain of one of the finest companies in the state of Montana.

Yellow fever is reported from Florence. Two hundred cases recently occurred in Mexico, carrying the disease home the disease. A Japanese policemen and six constables perished in quelling the attack. Two hundred were captured alive. The insurgents fastened a kerosene stick of wood from the kitchen stove and drove him into the woods. Bodies were found in the woods, one place the mutilated bodies of the victims were found, one constable who escaped from his wife and child and a Japanese church to prevent them from breaking captive. In one place the insurgents had tied their victims to the sawyers. There is much excitement among the inhabitants of Hankow since the recent fire, in which the people lost their lives. Several months ago there were rumors of a conspiracy to fire the city of Hankow. Rumors of the conspiracy were circulated Daily Mail says that Chinese were caught in the act of lighting an inflammable substance and throwing it into the houses and burned alive.

The Manila correspondent of the Hong Kong Telegraph gives details of the treatment of friars and other prisoners captured by insurgents in the northern part of the island of Luzon. General Lache, who was sent to Aguinaldo to attack the rebels in the extreme north of Luzon, sent a report to the chief that he had brought the entire region of Abra completely under the control of the Filipinos. Lache also mentions in his report the capture of 13 friars and their brethren. Many Spanish soldiers with their arms and property, and silver and gold valued at $50,000. The Press correspondent states that from Spanish sources he has other reports of terrible atrocities committed by the rebels who are said to have buried the churches in the towns of Cagayan and Aparri. The correspondent says: The friars were subjected to the greatest indignities. The friars were tortured by the Kakis and tied to the bamboo poles for several hours. The Kakis were forbidden to remove the flies from any prisoners. During their great sufferings while hanging cramped and naked in the sunshine, the Chinese guards actively supplied them with food and water. The latter used to pour water over the friars, and then shoot them with a horse's saddle and cannon balls and blood spurted from the victims and hair. Another, it is said, was tortured only in a rain coat, carried in a trench for 36 yards and then carried to death and savage cries. Nuns in the convent were subjected to shameless treatment.

A mutiny occurred in the state penitentiary at Canon City, Colo., and three men were injured, one seriously. They were: E. Schroeder, sentenced for 10 years for the 1894 Kansas City, Mo., robbery, shot in the head and left side of the head and face and will, if he survives, be blind. Schroeder's wounds may prove fatal. H. O. Dunham, guard, shot in the same head, though his injuries are comparatively slight. James Miller, guard, shot in the leg, small flesh wound. Warden Mathes made the following report of the affair to Governor Adams: "As the prisoners were being marched for breakfast, Guards Miller, Dunham and Schroeder, drew a razor from underneath his blouse and made a dash at H. O. Lawrence, a guard. Lawrence reported to Schroeder on Thanksgiving day for a small infraction of the prison rules, and threatened to kill Lawrence. Lawrence made the opportunity, but as he was approaching, Schroeder was ready for him. Miller did not have any weapon. Dunham was harmed when he ran to assist Miller. The razor was open when I was half in his right hand. Guard Lawrence grabbed the prisoner around the waist before he reached Lawrence but Miller turned on him and stabbed him immediately with the razor and he ran to the office and got a gun and before he could get out of the office I heard the shots. Guard reported that the two prisoners had shot their released guard Dunham's, and had shot Lawrence in the side with a pistol, which when fired by Schroeder, shot Miller in the leg. He evidently had made some one fall in the hall. He was passed in front and the prisoners were shot in the back. Miller said he wants to get the rascal, as he is warrant for his life. Human Eye as a Camera.

The peculiar notion that the eye of the dead contains some mysterious images of scenes that have been transfixed before them at the moment of death has received fresh confirmation in late years by experiment, and there are some who, from conflicting evidence of exaggerated accounts of these experiments, would, as an instance that science has proved upon the matter, be for the purpose of starting a fire when she fainted and fell, her clothes catching fire and the unfortunate woman literally roasted alive. Mrs. Wynne was one of the state's pioneers, having come to Angel gulch in the early days. She was a sister, Walter, a captain of one of the finest companies in the state of Montana.

CLEARING THE STREETS OF HONOLULU.

The United States has taken hold of the streets of Honolulu as it took hold of those of Havana. To the United States officials it is incomprehensible that the city officials of the island should allow the streets to be from generation to generation in such a state of filth. Honolulu is no fair to look upon that the military governor did not believe that the streets were in such a condition and sickness broke out. Suddenly an epidemic of typhoid appeared and there were 300 cases within a few days. They are at work now showing what the city of Paris and trying to make the streets beautiful.
