UNIVERSITY OF UTAH.

Prospects of a Large Enrollment—Special Prizes Offered.

Entrance day opened most encouragingly at the University this morning. Quite a large number of new students presented themselves for examination to the several departments. But few of the old students were present this morning, as they are not expected to be in attendance until Monday next, registration day. At that time the pupils from the county schools, who have completed the work assigned in the first eight grades, and who will be admitted upon their certificates, are also expected to be present.

From present indications, the enrollment promises approximate five hundred. The county were very busy this morning in attending to matters incident to entrance examinations, and have reason to be very much encouraged at the outlook every year. The new department, that of art, is well equipped, and is in readiness for a large number of students. The room is well lighted and tastily fitted up and presents an attractive appearance.

Examinations during the remainder of the week will be as follows: Wednesday, Latin and reading; Thursday, grammar, geography and elementary physics; Friday, arithmetic, algebra, U. S. history, plain geometry.

Prizes are offered for excellence in scholarship, as follows: A prize of $25 by the Hon. George Q. Cannon, for the best oration on some topic to be assigned by the University authorities and delivered under the auspices of the class in social problems." Students in the Agricultural College, the B. Y. College, Logan, and the B. Y. Academy, Provo, are also entitled to participate in the competition for this prize.

Also, "my friends of the University and lovers of classic education," the department of Greek and Latin offer a prize of $25 to that student of the Latin department who attains the greatest excellence in his or her regular class room work for the year, and an essay in Latin on the Roman republic.

Also, to that student in the Greek department who attains the greatest excellence in his or her regular class room work for the year and in an examination in Greek literature, a prize of $25 is offered.

Solitude.

What it is to be a genuine single minded quietist is illustrated in a recent French volume by a story of Mme. du Deffant, a celebrity of the last century. Mme. du Deffant was a great invalid and spent most of her time in bed, but this fact did not prevent her from entertaining a great deal of company.

One day when she was thus in bed several guests arrived and were admitted. They all began to shiver and pull their cloaks around them.

"What," exclaimed the invalid, "is it cold here?"

"It is simply freezing," answered a guest.

"Thank you for telling me," said Mme. du Deffant.

She rang a bell. The guests supposed she was sending for a maid to build a fire, but when the servant came in Mme. du Deffant said:

"Amelie, bring me in my down coverlet."

Having given this order, she began a conversation about other matters.—Youth's Companion.

The Resistless Power of Knowledge.

I know one colored minister in the Delaware who had quite a reputation for learning, because in his sermons he used alternately the phrases "ipso facto" and "ex nihilo nihil fit."

I noticed that whenever any of his congregation showed signs of losing interest in his discourse or an inclination to slumber he would throw out at them a long, heated forthright and exclaim: "How do I know this, do you ask? Because 'ipso facto!'" It had would not bring them to their senses, he would let his chest swell, stretch both arms to their full length and cry, "Ex nihilo nihil fit!" Then even would lodge so it sent to court from their cockle, fumble upon indictability, and the congregation would stare and wonder how "one small head could carry all to know."—Chicago with the elegant Latin sense, made so prominent in memory.—Mr. Howard J. Rusby in Boston's Magazine.

Have Fish in the Blue Pop.

In Mexico the skins of the blue fox, or kitfox, is highly prized, and the finest pelts for the best furs of the market are the pelts. According to M. Langlois, the blue fox still inhabits the Lapland part of Scandinavia, the Lowlands of the Waste on parts of northern Russia, the coasts of Siberia, the new Siberian islands and as Alaska the Aleutian islands. Alaska, Omnibus—Or Fox Islands—Alaska, the Commander islands, the Mackenzie river district, Labrador and Newfoundland. The blue fox is a native of the white fox, to use that of its white fur. Fur dress only four or five will sure for Black or Cheap Hugo.—London Globe.

Temporary Change of Lodgings.

At Mount Clifty a gentleman and wife the proprietors of lodge at will this time to accommodate.

"There's a fellow running off with a splendid load of hay mind," said a spectator.

"Oh," carelessly interpreted the owner, "that makes no difference to the rent. It is merely a bit of our money sleeping out for the night!"—Paris Petit Journal.

Obeyed Orders.

Employer (to new office boy)—If any one calls, James, be sure and remember that I am not in. (Said an hour later.) Didn't you hear me call, you young rascal?

James—Yes, sir, but I thought you meant it.—Boston Transcript.
