SUPERIOR BRICK, TILE & MILLING CO.

Receiver Uncovers Some Peculiar Financial Methods of Its Officers.

LINCOLN CENTENARY BY G. A. R.

Program to be Given in Tabernacle Feb. 12.—Apex Saloon Robbery Case—News Notes.

Ogden, Feb. 1.—The first case of "frenzied finance" that has been called to the attention of the Ogden public in a number of months is that which is brought out in the report of Carl C. Rasmussen, receiver for the Superior Brick, Tile & Milling company, which has been filed in the district court. The report while not very lengthy is very complete and to the point, showing the operations of the officers of the infant corporation.

Rasmussen was appointed receiver of the company, upon the filing of a complaint in the district court by Peter E. Lund, owner of the original stockholders of the company. Upon the filing of a bond of $5,000, Rasmussen took possession of what property of the company he could find. He says that he was unable to obtain possession of any book accounts or records of business transactions, except loose scraps of paper purporting to contain certain minutes of the proceedings of the meetings of the board of directors and some items showing the receipts of money from various resources.

According to the report the machinery installed by the company belongs to S. G. Shaw & Co., as only a small payment has been made on it. The receiver also states that from information and belief that an automobile claimed as the personal property of Franklin P. Johnson, president of the company, and one of the defendants, was purchased from the proceeds of the sale of the stock of the company and should be included in the assets of the company. It is also reported that David C. Lawson, secretary of the company and a defendant, holds 16,000 shares for which he has not paid a sum exceeding $1,000; that Samuel Jeff of Logan holds 1,000 shares for which he has paid nothing. Numerous other irregularities are named by the receiver. The liabilities of the company are $3,510.47 and the assets amount to $2,580.95.

Receiver Rasmussen states that he has employed Asnes & McCracken to assist him in straightening out the affairs of the company and asks the court to approve of such action.

APEX SALOON ROBBERY CASE.

Ogden, Feb. 1.—At the session of the city council this evening it is expected the police committee will make a report upon the report of Chief of Police Browning, submitted last Monday evening, calling the council's attention to the fact that the charge of robbery was pending against the proprietors of the Apex saloon and asked what action the council desired he should take in the matter. Other than the recommending of the revoking of the saloon license, the council will undoubtedly take no further action.

The case against the proprietors of the Apex saloon is one that is being sublimely fought by the state as well as the defense as upon its outcome depends whether the three proprietors will be freed or sent to the state prison upon the charge of robbery.

Saturday afternoon Dist. Atty. Harzitz, with permission of the court, filed an amended complaint, charging R. B. Blametti, B. J. McGuire and J. H. Garretts with the robbery of Frank Galt of $40 and a gold watch in the robbery house over the Apex saloon several weeks ago. The new complaint contains new points that were not covered in the original complaint. In addition to the three defendants, Jesse Fleming, alias James Dublin, a labor agent, is named as a defendant. From the facts he has at hand the district attorney states that he believes he has sufficient evidence to warrant Fleming's conviction.

Galt is the steam-shovel engineer who was robbed of his valise while in an intoxicated and drugged condition, for which the defendants are alleged to have been responsible.

Ogden, Feb. 1.—Work was resumed this morning upon the line of the extension of the Ogden Rapid Transit through Ogden canyon, which was stopped about a week ago on account of the numerous changes in the weather. The work upon the grade as well as the abutment for bridge, and concrete retaining walls will be made and the line extended as far as possible into the canyon before the summer season opens.

Ingredients give to Hood's Sarsaparilla its great curative power—power to cure many and varied complaints, including diseases of the blood, ailments of the stomach, troubles of the kidneys and liver.

Many of the ingredients are just what the profession prescribes in the ailments named, but the combination and proportions are peculiar to this medicine and give it curative power peculiar to itself.

Therefore, there is no real substitute for it. If urged to buy any preparation said to be "just as good" you may be sure it is inferior, costs less to make, and yields the dealer a larger profit.

Saturday afternoon, the board of county commissioners accompanied Engineer West of the company through the proposed route and determining the proposed route to the crossing of the county road by the railroad. The line is being constructed on the opposite side of the river so as not to come near the county road except where it crosses and recrosses the county road.

Campbell, from seven to 10 cars of steel for the big bridge are being unloaded daily and placed along the line in readiness to be placed into position by the steel workers. The beginning of the steel work was witnessed throughout the day by several hundred people.

SECOND-HAND MAN BUNCEBO.

One of the most amusing cases that has come up in the police court before Judge Murphy in a number of months was the case against Hans Wiggins, Saturday, upon the charge of petit larceny. According to the testimony in the case, Wiggins was in the second-hand store on Grant avenue, and while the proprietor was in the front part of the store, Wiggins went to the rear and gathered up some galvanized pipe which he took to Alford and sold. After Wiggins had departed Alford found that he had purchased some of his own property and he reported the matter to the police. The arrest of Wiggins followed and he received a sentence of 15 days by Judge Murphy.

FRUIT PACKING HOUSE.

Gamble & Robinson, a fruit dealing firm of Minneapolis, who have been buyers in the local field for the past number of years, have concluded arrangements with W. O. Kay for the purchase of a building site on Twenty-third street for a packing establishment, 50 feet by 100 feet. The site is within 200 feet of a spur track from the Oregon Short Line, from which a track will be built to the plant so the fruit can be handled in carload lots.

A COMMON COLD.

We claim that if catching cold could be avoided some of the most dangerous and fatal diseases would never be heard of. A cold often forms a culture bed for germs of infectious diseases. Consumption, pneumonia, diphtheria, scarlet fever, typhoid, and other dangerous and fatal diseases, are of this class. The culture bed formed by a cold is the starting point of these diseases. These diseases that would not otherwise find lodgment. There is little danger, however, if the cold is treated as it should be. A good expectorant cough medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, used at once, breaks up these culture beds that favor the development of the germs of these diseases. That is why this remedy has proved so universally successful in preventing pneumonia. It not only cures your cold quickly, but minimizes the risk of contracting these dangerous diseases. For sale by all druggists.

I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for the past eight years and find it to be one of the best selling medicines on the market. For babies and for children there is nothing better in the line of cough syrups. Says Paul Allen, Plain Dealer, Ohio: "This remedy not only cures the cough, cold and croup in children, but it cures the same in adults. It contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a baby as safely as to an adult. For sale by all druggists."

Prohibition Arguments Pro and Con.

FOR.
Some reasons why the sale and manufacture of liquor should be suppressed by law.

ACCEPT NO COMPROMISE.
SAYS JASPER ROBERTSON

Mr. Heber J. Grant: Dear Sirs—Having noticed through the public prints your untiring efforts in behalf of temperance in this state, I feel that a word of encouragement from myself, though just a humble citizen, might not be unappreciated by you. I have certainly been delighted with the stand that you have taken on that question, and have just read the bill presented by Representative Cannon, and it is my opinion if that bill can be passed without amendment, we will have the damning influence of the saloon wiped out root and branch.

At my window where I am writing this I can look out and see poor, miserable drunkards staggering around, profaning and using up the scanty substance they have in liquor, which ought to be used to support their broken-hearted wives and children who are not so scantily supplied with the necessities of life.

Now, pull on every string, and bend every effort to get that bill made the law of the land, and you will have the support of every decent and moral living citizen in Utah. You may show this letter to the Emery county delegation, if you wish to, and tell them that I am a good old Emery county man, and am hoping and praying that they will stand for prohibition, and accept no compromise.

Yours for the right,
JASPER ROBERTSON.
Orangeville, Utah, Jan. 25.

Mr. Robertson formerly represented Emery county in the state legislature.

ANTI-PROHIBITION ARGUMENT SHATTERED

Editor Deseret News—In a recent issue of the "News," a member of the Legislature is quoted as opposing the enactment of a prohibition law on the ground that such a law would be too puritanical—that we have no right to make restrictions as to what a man should do with his own money.

Such a petition might possibly be tenable if the one who objects to such restrictions would retire to some isolated island and there live alone, but would that be a hardship on one but himself, even in intemperance.

But as the civil government text books tell us, man is a gregarious animal; he needs to live in communities, and in so doing, it becomes necessary for each individual to yield some of the rights and privileges he would enjoy in living alone. He is restricted from doing such things as will injure his neighbor or the other members of the community. For example, he may be prohibited from the indiscriminate discharge of firearms in a city, or he may be prevented from erecting a frame building in certain districts, as by such actions the lives and property of other residents of the city would be endangered.

There is abundance of evidence that the use of intoxicating liquors is the cause of great loss of life and property, and is the means of filling our jails, almshouses, and insane asylums, causing much misery and incurring great public expense.

AGAINST.

Space is reserved for legislators or any other critics, including brewers and saloon keepers, to set forth why the saloons should continue.

R. W. KATZ AGAIN ENTERS THE ARENA FOR SALOONS

Editor Deseret Evening News: If prohibition would be conducive to the happiness, comfort, and advancement of our people, then by all means let us have it. But if it is an experiment, let us watch the great states of the east "till we are sure we are right before we go ahead." In this stupendous undertaking, it might be for the good of Utah to wait. The great nations of England, France, Germany, have not adopted prohibition, and consume more liquor per capita than we do. Why is this. Is it not probable the men may be wrong, notwithstanding their claim to superior "intelligence."

While prohibition may have a good effect on prohibitionists, it will not succeed among those who want liquor. It might in a measure remove temptation, that is all. There are prohibition arguments constantly made, which are unfair and untrue. To a few of these, with your kind permission, I beg to take exception in the space allotted by you. To the argument why the saloon should continue.

No. 1 says: "If saloons are a good thing you ought to have more of them. No one claims saloons are good things, but where is his logic. Banks are good things, but is that reason why we should have 300 banks in this city?"

No. 2 speaks sarcastically of "Sleek, well fed, brewers." That sounds like jealousy. Should not a brewer wear good clothes, or eat what he wants. What has that kind of drink to do with the "ravenous effects of alcohol," or the "evils of strong drink?"

No. 3 asks: "What have the saloons done to justify prohibition?" They have done nothing, neither have they accused them of corruption, as have others who failed to prove their accusations. City and county saloons stand like "white winged angels" above those of some cities you read about. The question sounds not unlike another accusation.

No. 4 condemns liquor selling as a crime with murder, burglary, robbery, in all dry communities. "Blind Tigers" sell liquor to their associates. The buyers beg for the accommodation; he pays his money; he will be back for more; he is as glib as the man who sells; they trust each other, and their secret is not revealed; what can the law do? If one man slips a bottle into his friend's pocket, it is quite a different matter than when one man buys another over the head with a lead pipe. Remember that most men laugh at a law that prohibits drinking; men who do uphold all other laws. That's why you cannot punish those who break the laws of prohibition.

No. 5 states that "Liquor is the cause of immorality." Outcasts as a rule begin their career in a higher social sphere than that occupied by saloons, and through sorrow and ramblings of degradation afterwards take to drink.

"Give strong drink to those that are weary of heart."

No. 6 compares the liquor traffic with the slave traffic of the United States. This great government did suppress slavery at a frightful cost, and has ever since tried to prohibit the unlawful manufacture of whisky, but has failed, as they always must fail. The very nature of the thing makes every law a failure.

No. 7 accuses our highest officials of receiving bribes from their promises to hinder legislation. Because our governor has not announced himself "for" or "against" prohibition gives you no right to accuse him (in an underhand way) of motives with regard to that matter. He is not a politician, but he is giving this question much thought and research before he publicly expresses his views? This is a serious question. Perhaps he cannot be convinced by biased agitators. Let us give the governor "a square deal."

And so one might go on indefinitely, answering all kinds of "arguments." No one denies the evil effects of the immoderate use of alcohol, but they do deny the good results of imaginary prohibition. They claim that temperance is successful, and they claim that stringent saloon legislation, with pure food laws, is the only solution of the problem practicable at the present time.

Very respectfully,
R. W. KATZ,
655 Second East, City.

SPARKS ARE A MENACE.

Residents of Brigham Junction, through the medium of the Commercial club of that place, presented a vigorous protest to the county commissioners Saturday afternoon directed against the Denver & Rio Grande Railway company. Complaint is made that sparks from engines are a constant menace to property owners all along the line of the railroad in that section, and that fires have frequently been started 200 feet from the track.

The railroad company's cork to the complaint is that the sparks are not belonging to the county, and the commissioners are asked to remedy the evils complained of. It is probable that the railroad company will be required to provide each engine with spark arresters, and the matter of the coal chutes will also be looked into by the authorities. The committee that appealed to the commissioners was composed of John P. Peterson, Joseph H. Wright, C. R. Peterson and J. A. Alcorn.

pany and John C. Van Station of the "Lion and the Mouse" were married, the two having met in the east several months ago and forming a mutual attachment. Belonging to two different theatrical companies the young people were separated, and it was only when "The Lion and the Mouse" arrived in Salt Lake that Mr. Station learned of the presence of his sweethearts. Meeting her as soon as possible, the groom won her consent to their marriage, a proper official was looked up and the ceremony performed without delay. After the performances of Saturday night members of the two companies celebrated the event in an informal reception, with congratulations, good wishes and gifts among the festivities.

The other unique marriage was that of Miss Elva Roberts of Castle Gate, formerly a nurse at the Groves L. D. hospital, and Francis D. Rutherford of the firm of Rutherford and Hansen, architects, of this city, the event taking place yesterday on the suspension bridge which spans the Price river at Castle Gate. Here, in the presence of bride and groom with a number of relatives and friends stood while Judge Edwards performed the ceremony. This romantic marriage, it is understood, was the result of a wager, and will rank among the memorably unusual nuptials of the state.
