POEMS EVERYBODY SHOULD KNOW.

A SONG OF CHEER.

Today the world is grey with rain and velled with clinging mist; The sky hangs low o'er shivering woods, and all the birds are white; But let the storm last e'er so long, God's heaven always clears.

NOT SEEING, BUT BELIEVING.

The clouds hang heavy round my way, I cannot see; But through the darkness I believe God leadeth me.

NOTES.

The public is familiar with anecdotes of books which were rejected again and again by publishers, and then, after the third or fourth trial, were accepted and made great hits.

He was equally original. He reasons that if one shock can break up the faculties, another may bring them to a halt.

After a time the older man came out, looked all over the porch and glanced down the road. Then he approached the young man and said: "Boy, where's Mr. Viereck?"

Now that Louis Joseph Vance has made such a hit with his latest romance, "The Brass Bow," it is interesting to look back on the degrees by which he did ascend.

LEAVES FROM OLD ALBUMS.

DAVID P. KIMBALL. Son of Heber C. Kimball, Who Became Famous Frontiersman.

Pioneering and roughing it came naturally to the sons of Heber C. Kimball, for most of them were born among conditions that made for the strenuous rather than the quiet life.

For once the book of the week is not a novel, but a theological work. The Rev. R. J. Campbell's "The New Theology" bids fair to be one of the most discussed books of the year.

After an interval of some years, in which his literary work has been practically confined to the drama, Mr. Zangwill returns to his old field with the publication this week of his "Ghetto Comedies."

MAGAZINES.

The first-class magazines have become the principal safeguards of literature against its deterioration. It is comparatively easier for them to withstand obvious vices than to be corrupted by rejecting sensational or otherwise unworthy features.

No "Hustle" in America Says This British Writer.

Our London Literary Letter.

Special Correspondence. London, April 26.—Don't we really know how to "hustle in America?"

To Every Woman. There comes a time when a medicine is needed to cure a woman, and it is then that she will appreciate a few doses of the famous HOSTETTERS' STOMACH BITTERS. During the past 53 years hundreds of sickly women have used the Bitters to the exclusion of all other remedies.

Household Worries.

There is Not the Slightest Need for Some of Them Existing in Salt Lake City.

The average mother finds sufficient anxieties and worry performing the ordinary duties in the rearing of a family, but the cares and anxiety are doubled when there is added to ordinary conditions that of weakened kidneys in a juvenile member of the family.

Additional surrender of the editor which encourages too facile and sometimes feeble accomplishment. It is not fair to the author—setting aside all other questions of fairness—to accept on delivery and without consideration whatever he may, in any kind of circumstances affecting his production, have to offer, in response to the editor's expressed and genuine desire for his

The remarkable series of debates undertaken by the People's Party, and the People's Party, written for the Reader by William Jennings Bryan and Senator Albert J. Beveridge, continue with two striking articles in the May number.

As to the matter of the "hustle" in America, the British writer finds that it is not as rampant as is commonly supposed. He points out that in London, for example, the pace is more deliberate and that the "hustle" is more confined to the lower classes.

A Positive Cure for Catarrh. Ely's Cream Balm is quickly absorbed. Gives relief at once.

days of our grandfathers. How then can we explain the American's rooted conviction that his country is a "hustling" one? The answer is, it is a mainly due to one simple factor or observation—his belief that the speech with which a thing is done, and incidentally his action, may be measured by the noise made in doing it.
