Public entertainments are being given at Coal creek, in Fremont county, Colo., for the purchase of a school library.

The coal output of Montana in 1893 was 550,000 tons, the principal producers being the Rocky Fork, Helena and Livingston, Red Cloud and Timberline mines.

Joseph Leavenworth, the champion high diver of the world, is seriously ill at San Francisco. He is suffering from a severe rupture of the blood vessels of the stomach.

The present indications are that all danger of any serious labor trouble in Los Angeles, Cal., has passed. Arrangements have been made to provide work for the 200 or 300 idle men remaining there, and yesterday (Tuesday) all who cared to were to be given work in the streets.

During the severe wind storm of last week, the farm buildings of William Hatmerford, fourteen miles northeast of Burlington, Colo., were destroyed by fire. He lost twelve three good horses, three cows, two sets harness, one new; two or three tons of fodder, ten tons of rye, one good buggy, and other farm produce and machinery.

L. Emory, who settled in San Diego (Cal.) county twenty-five years ago, has sold his ranch in Pine Valley to the Pine Valley Consolidated Water and Land company, together with the well-known Pine Valley reservoir site and water rights. Surveys have shown that a perfect site exists for a dam capable of holding 8,000,000,000 gallons of water, 2,000,000,000 more than the Hemet water reservoir.

A tall, handsome man, with dark eyes, heavy moustache and imperial, and a big black hat that completed the costume of a typical sot-herer, passed through the city today on a missionary mission, says the Spokane (Wash.) Chronicle. He is on his way to southern Idaho to seek a lost or treasure buried up in the hills of Southern Idaho a quarter of a century ago. In spite of all the difficulties and uncertainties, he seems confident of success, and if successful he will return to Spokane in a few months with his fortune made for life.

While employed in his mine some three miles from Folsom, Cal., Saturday afternoon, Frank Perry, a Portuguese miner, was entirely buried by the unexpected caving in of a huge bank. The men in his employ, after strenuous efforts, extricated and carried him to his residence. Just as they left the spot another cave occurred in the same place, bringing down tons of dirt and covering the spot where the men had been engaged in the rescue to a depth of over ten feet. Perry is severely bruised and suffering from internal injuries. The physician in charge states that he may possibly recover.

What might have been a most serious accident was narrowly averted by the heroism of a boy named Wilbur F. Hatch, at Lewisig, Ohio, on Sunday. The fire department had been turned out by an alarm and the fire hose turned into Lagnin street with the house on a keen run. The gong frightened a horse attached to a buggy in which were seated three young ladies, the Misses Margaret Wallace, Anna Mitchell and Flora McCartney, and three children. The horse shying, snapped the shaft and the horse becoming beyond control, dashed down the street, the buggy swaying to a dangerous degree. Young Hatch who was on horseback, seeing the danger of the young ladies, urged his horse to a run in pursuit. After running about a block, he succeeded in getting hold of the runaway. He was in imminent danger of being dragged to a mangled pulp, but quickly held on and finally succeeded in bringing the frightened animal under control.

Preservation Dairy Cattlemphy.

Milk adulterants may be brought about in many indirect ways.

The dairyman who keeps his milk pure can be trusted in all things.

A lay is made when the cow enters, it means increased to that dairymen who manage so that his cows yield milk abundantly when dairy prices are high.

Some people seem to forget that the amount of profit on a period of lactation depends as much on reducing the cost of production as in obtaining an enhanced price.

The dairyman who dumps a mass of decayed garbage into his cellar for his cows's enjoyment is injuring his enterprise more than if he diluted his milk half with water.

He commits an equally injurious act toward his fellow men when he turns the carcass of a dead animal unburied to the cow pasture, or daily milks with unhygienic legitimed hands.

The milk manufacturer who laboriously but then butterwalk and whey on which a thick layer of cream will alone is a costly individual to employ, even when working for his board.

The president dairyman mentally weighs the food requirements of his herd of cows for a year to advance. To most cows he can from fodder and grain more cheaply than he can buy them, and he plants and sows accordingly.

The dairyman's responsibility for the care of his cows is not all, even when he is able to turn turn and to grass in the early summer. The more he feels his responsibility in this direction and acts upon it, the more valuable will his dairy become to him.—George E. Newell in American Agriculturist.

Winter Rations For Cows.

The daily feeding standard for milk cows of 1,000 pounds weight is given in the Wisconsin experiment station as follows:

Corn silage, 40 pounds; clover hay, 8 pounds; wheat bran, 6 pounds; cottonseed, 3 pounds.

Another is: Silage, 30 pounds; hay, 10 pounds; cottonseed, 3 pounds; cottonseed meal, 2 pounds.

Another is: Silage, 30 pounds; hay, 10 pounds; cottonseed, 3 pounds; cottonseed meal, 2 pounds; gluten meal, 2 pounds.

The bulletin says that it cannot assert the superiority of any heavy feeding days, other conditions being right. A cow positions a full dose of milk should receive over 30 per cent more food than is required for the maintenance of her body, in the same over of consumption that brings profit to the dairyman. Keeping cows that respond to good feeding, profitably, but not to waste. Select such breed stock as will supply a fair quantity of protein. Make more ensilage and clover, peas, cowpeas and oilmeal wherever needed and when obtainable at a reasonable price.

SUNOL!

ROBERT SONNER

Superintending the shoeing of Sunol with the Putnam Nail.

PROVO, UTAH, MAY 7, 1893.

MESSRS. PUTNAM NAIL CO.

GENTLEMEN: Sunol, the fastest trotting horse in the world, is shod with your nails. I have used your nails for the last two years, and find them the best nail for the money. Sunol has come to me from Kentucky with a bad foot, and I have had to use your nails on her ever since. Sunol has never had a bad foot since she came into my hands. The Putnam nail is the best nail for the money I know of, and I would advise all who want good shoes to use the Putnam nail.

Very respectfully yours,

ROBERT SONNER

The Putnam Nail is the only extensively Hot-Forged and Hammer-Pointed nail.

Look in your smith's shoeing box, if the nails have smooth edges for the points, they are the PUTNAM, for they are Hammer-Pointed and are not sheared.

This shoe pattern, from a photo representing Mr. Sonner holding the shoe of his famous trotting horse Sunol, will be sent free to any address, size, 22x28 inches, on fine paper, with no advertising on it, and ready for framing, on receipt of 4 cents to cover the expense, etc.
