SCHOOL BOARD MEETING.

Another List of Furniture Ordered from Chicago.

GENERAL SCHOOL WORK.

A Committee Appointed to Investigate the Alleged Unjust Discrimination in the Use of Building Material.

The city school board met in regular weekly session last night, Vice-President Nelson in the chair. The trustees present were: Duke, Pike, Pratt, Newman, Alff, Baldwin, Dooty.

NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.

After the usual preliminary business had been disposed of the committee on sites and buildings reported as follows on the letting of the contract for the erection of the new Third building:

Our sites the board adopted the zonal system of heating and ventilating, the committee found it necessary to accept the highest one, the system proposed by the committee on September 1, 1892, for a still further revision of their sills on account of the erasure of plants originally designed for said building and new bids needed in the installation of the zonal system; also that the sites and location of the flues had to be changed, and in consequence your committee have to report the following bids opened at its meeting, Tuesday evening, September 27th:

Crockett Bros. & Bryan	$2,336
A. C. Shurtliff	2,350
W. H. Jay	2,348
William Leiser	2,300

Your committee recommend that the contract be awarded to William Leiser for the erection of this building for the sum of $2,300. Mr. Leiser offers as his bondsmen Messrs. A. Ritzen, A. H. Wilson and Wendell Bowen. The committee recommend that a contract be entered into with him for the erection of the building.

Baldwin did not consider the recommendation in favor of the lowest bidder.

Dooty said that the bid of W. H. Jay was lower than Mr. Leiser's by $50. Mr. Jay was the contractor of the Bryant school and the board had been more or less troubled with gentlemen in dealing with him. Mr. Leiser had always been among the lowest bidders and the committee therefore awarded him the bid.

Mr. Jay was present and wished to speak in his own defense but was not allowed to do so.

FURNITURE ORDERED.

The committee on furniture and supplies reported that they had placed the order with the United States School Furniture company of Chicago for the following list of furniture:

20 No. 4 desks at $13	$260 00
20 No. 3 desks, at $12	240 00
20 No. 2 desks, at $11	220 00
20 No. 1 desks, at $10	200 00
10 No. 1 low Trimont seats	20 00
10 No. 2 low Trimont seats	20 00
2 cards No. 2, 1-4	10 00
2 cards No. 3, 1-4	10 00
10 Imperial desks, "Anchorage"	30 00
2 dozen Union Star seat seats	36 00
1 dozen ash seat planks	6 00

The furniture was to cost $1,048.25, ninety days, or 2 per cent discount for each thirty days after its receipt, the freight not to exceed $50.25, which is subject to special rate if it can be secured.

ON SCHOOL WORK.

The committee on school work reported, recommending the new additional teachers to fill the positions which have already been recommended, unofficially, by members of the committee. Some of these positions have already been temporarily filled:

First—The room in the Fourteenth building, on the second floor, was vacated by the transfer of pupils to the third floor, after the departure of the High School to the new building. This room has been filled, with pupils of the fourth and fourth grades, of whom thirty-five were transferred from the Seventh school. Miss Lou Murphy has been assigned to the room, at a salary of $60 per month. The committee recommended her for the position.

Second—The committee recommended Miss Maude L. Thompson to teach in one room of the Hooper building, at a salary of $60 per month.

Third—In the Tenth there is an enrollment of over four hundred, and only one teacher besides the principal, and the committee recommend the employment of another teacher there.

Fourth—Already the Nineteenth and First wards have been increased in their school accommodations by the rental of additional room in each ward. Another teacher is needed for each room.

Fifth—That the two rooms in the Eleventh ward meeting house be released as soon as the new rooms on the first floor of the Bryant school are ready for occupancy, and that on the withdrawal of the learner and pupils, now located in the Twenty-first ward meeting house, a new teacher be assigned to the vacated room with pupils from the over-crowded rooms at the Twenty-first school.

The committee called attention to the occupancy of the Clayton building by the High School. The rooms are ample for all purposes, and already the good results are shown.

Attention was again called to the use of colored paper by pupils, the pupils to teach them form and colors, and their combinations. The cost for the year would be $15, and it would pay for itself. The crowded condition of the schools causes the utility of such work to be apparent. The power of observation is one of the most useful forms of instruction.

The committee further recommended the purchase of a fifty foot hose for each floor in the High School building.

Adopted.

APPROPRIATIONS.

The finance committee reported the following bills for approval:

Tribune Publishing Co., advertising	1 00
Deseret Publishing Co., advertising	1 00
Twenty-first Ward Recreation Club, gas, rent, etc	20 00
T. J. Kenney, rent	20 00
John A. Fitchett, rent	20 00
Total	$63 00

UNAUTHORIZED CHANGES.

Pratt said that when any radical change was made in erecting any school building the measures of the board should be apprised of that fact. He had noticed that the first story of the Hamilton school building of the First ward was of buff brick. That was all right. The specifications called for buff brick. The next story was of red brick. He wanted to know why the change had been made.

Mr. Pinney, superintendent of construction, explained that the contractors had found it impossible to obtain buff brick with which to complete the building. He therefore secured red. The brick company promising to paint the entire building with three coats of paint.

Pratt moved that the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed by the chair to investigate and report why specifications in building erection have been made to the extension of uniform material, and why material of any make, inferior to be equal to the requirements of the building, should not compare on equal terms.

The Chair appointed as the investigation committee Messrs. Pratt, Baldwin and Dooty.

Dooty submitted the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That all the contracts have matter list, specifications for material be written out, where same can be done without prejudicing the interests of this board.

The board adjourned for one week.

The Author of an Old Campaign Song.

There is satisfactory evidence that the words of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too," were written by A. C. Ross, of Zanesville, O. This was the original song. The words then comprised only a compositely few verses. The song was such a success that editions were made to them in all directions. Here is an instance in point. The Whigs unexpectedly carried the state of Maine, electing Edward Kent by a very small majority for governor. This news immediately appeared:

Have you heard from Maine Maine, Maine
Have you heard from Maine?
We guess we did our part
To elect our Governor Kent, and
Tippecanoe and Tyler too.
And with him we will have little Tom, Tom, Tom,
Oh, Tom is a "land sprout."

As regards the music, it was adapted from a familiar air of the time, which had the best of attraction. Major Jack "Little Pip's Tail." Henry Russell was an Englishman, and at that period was the most popular concert singer in this country. He was a composer, but he did not compose this tune, and probably would not have been very proud if he had been credited with its authorship. It is altogether likely that the Whigs stopped him to sing it in Boston, as he told our correspondent that he did sing it as he stood in a window near the corner of Washington and Milk streets. Mr. Russell must be a gentleman well advanced in years by this time. It is a great many years since he ceased to sing in public in this country. It was interesting to know that it is he to whom of W. Clark Russell, the popular writer of nautical novels.—Boston Herald.

Color of Valor.

"Some people are worth a good deal of money, and a dollar is none. If you throw across an old collection of copper cents to an out of the way corner you will do well to pick them up carefully. From the point of view of the dollar they are little, but depend largely upon their condition. For example, how cent of 1799 in a fair state of preservation we can buy for dollars, for a specimen of the same issue in fine condition we would pay three hundred dollars, and for a perfect cent of the year, that is, as bright and shiny as the day it was minted—we will pay $700.

"Do not attempt to clean coins that are in fine condition. They should be held only by the edge or handling them, and must be kept wrapped carefully in chamois skin or soft tissue paper or laid on velvet. Gold and silver coins may be cleaned, but wounded by hot water and soap. Copper should be placed in a vessel of lemon or remove grease and dirt. Acids and scouring will ruin any coin of any kind. Age does not necessarily make coins valuable. The old Spanish silver pieces dated 1700 to 1800 are worth no more than their face, and the same is the case with coins of 1700, 1800 and 1900, as well as with half dollars of dates between 1800 and 1900."—Washington Star.

An Old Question Asked Anew.

The old question has been lately asked anew. Why do the infant mind with images of cruelty and horror. Why engage the young mind with the history of vague faltering caution like those of her tales? Why nurture it with that appalling conflicter bloody invasion lies. Yes, five, four. Why permit the hoary moralizer Blue Beard to terrify the young before a blessed sequence like your book Henry VIII. in no extenuating page of Fonda, but as the grisly murderer and defender of the faith of the older canons. And why permit the rather pretty, pathetic story, buried on the journey of life, which the reversed and the wise describe as a moral warfare, by the rhyme which declares the greedy thief of a plum from the copious pudding a good boy?

Why is a glorious war triumphs in his gluttony to be commended in honeyed measures as good, while nothing is said in praise—nay, he is not even mentioned—of the valour of the unnamed comrade, who was undoubtedly present and who was evidently there to pull on plenty, and who, so far as posterity knows, not only had no plum, but also forbore the sacred—George William Curtis in Harper's.

Railroad Speed and Obstructions.

Two years ago a row was seen in the middle of the Monon tracks in front of a train. The engineer tried to stop, and the result was the locomotive was derailed and the engineer killed. A few months ago the writer was riding on an engine on the Chicago division of the Pennsylvania, and a herd of cattle got on the track. The train was running almost forty miles an hour, but when the engineer saw them he "threw her wide open," and went into them at full seventy-five miles an hour.

In both cases no damage was done except to "mine up" the engine somewhat. The engineer was not killed, but he had thrown on the extra speed. He rudy was that he had been running slow it was eight chances to ten that he would have left the track.—Indianapolis News.

Standing Room.

A lack could be written about Standing Room. Properly speaking he is not a man, but a Nineteenth Century. With Curtis Hoop, Hooting Hog and old Chief Gall he has been at the head of nearly all the notable Indian wars for twenty years. He visited the Pawnees and once killed his white man in a boomerang season single handed. On another occasion he defied and defeated about thirty cavalrymen. It was Standing Bear who under fifteen Buff routed the United States forces when Chester died on the Little Big Horn.—San Francisco News Letter.

A Plain Statement.

A Hartford girl called on a physician recently who is so plain in his speech as his patient is in respect to her face. Desired to elicit her, her answer being only a trifling matter, he said, "Oh, doctor," she pressed, "I feel worse than I look." "Then, my little honey bee, there is no hope for you," replied the doctor.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Cholera.

It is enough to give anybody the cholera to read the scientific opinions on the subject now in vogue. Some fellow has been trying to find out in his mind whether the sickness this summer is cholera sporadicosus, characterized by endemicity, or whether it is cholera Asiatica, characterized by epidemicity. No doubt it is.

Meantime it is sufficient for common people to know that every now and then nature gets excited at the human race on account of its filth, uncleanness and foul air and simply cleans it out, sometimes by cholera, again by typhus fever, yellow fever, black plague, diphtheria and other things. When these occasions come it is always the dirty, overcrowded portions of the great cities that suffer first and most. Then the pestilence skips and attacks clean people in other places, country and city.

Cholera is at pests in Europe whose many of our immigrants come—Hamburg, Hamburg, Antwerpand Stettin. In Hamburg it attacked the most dirty portions of the city, first quarters. There is not much likelihood that the plague will be here in force this season, though it may fall upon us next summer. Frost kills the pests. Meantime we are sufficiently warned to clean up and disinfect. Soap, water, chloride of lime, carbolic and are excellent disinfectants. Sewer pipes and their contents are nests of the disease. So are the horrible cutlesses usually found about farms and villages. Finally cause and panic are a main cause of death by cholera. If cholera ever comes your way, clean up and think I what Grant said when somebody told him he was in danger of assassination, "What you are not afraid of won't hurt you."

In November, 1885, a case of cholera was brought to New York from Havre. In April it appeared in the city itself. Altogether, during the summer of 1892, some 3,000 cases of cholera in all occurred in New York and Brooklyn. Many of these were only cases of cholera or diarrhoea, running over. After exposure to cholera the disease develops, if it is going to, in from one to three days. Patients in Hamburg this summer have died within an hour after being stricken. The best precautions against it are—keep absolutely clean, breathe pure air and drink pure water. Eat no turnips or melon fruit or any kind of salad, and do not eat too much of anything. Keep your head cool, your colon'al and go about your work as usual.

There is a salutary care in Boston yesterday, viz., that is exercise in influence here, and has been so ever since the first settlement of the country.

Any part of the body which is neglected to be carefully cleanse the bowels or cause to be cleansed the point selected for an extra business or occasion.
