Fifteen carloads of ore are about the average daily arrivals at Durango, Colo.

At Crystal, Gunnison county, Colo., a disease termed "rock clipper" is killing off all the bighorns.

The Boise (Idaho) Statesman says city warrants are selling at 91 short and some at par.

Greenland breeding farm near Palmer Lake, Colo., is wintering about 500 head of fine stock this winter.

Eggs reached the lowest point ever known at Petaluma, Cal., last week. They could be bought in any quantity at 12 cents a dozen.

A Rifle, Colo., Greyhound named James Clem has broken a pair of six to twenty-second drives from out when the girls want a sleigh ride.

At Las Vegas, N. M., the Optic complains longantly at the continued fine weather and laments the absence of the usual snow storms of winter.

A footpad, who must have been in the Rankstyle state, held up a small toy in San Luis Obispo and robbed him of $1 and his pocketbook.

Fort Marcy, at Santa Fe, N. M., is the oldest established military post in America. The Spaniards used it as a fort in 1692, and General Phil Kearney built a fort on the old site in 1846.

Ten thousand head of sheep were recently attached by customs officials at Maxwell, N. M., for having evaded the tariff in crossing the sheep from Mexico into the United States.

Glenwood Springs is talking over a plan for running excursion parties from Denver to the springs during the various national conventions which are to meet in Colorado during 1894.

When Mrs. Taylor, of Stockton, Cal., went into her cellar the other day when the water had somewhat subsided, for she was in the flooded district, she found two women astride her up in a bag.

Cerillos, N. M., gold discoveries are not new. Old Spanish archives in the possession of Territorial Librarian Samuel Ellison show that the Cerillos gold mines were known to the Spaniards 250 years ago.

The Indians of Wasco county, Oregon, have a novel contest at their festivals, which are now in operation. A gaudy bonnet is hung up, and before the grass two brave dances. The one maintaining his performance for the greater time takes the blanket.

City officials of Butte, Mont., are in dispute over the question whether a certain resident of that city, who died in 1861, was 60 or 61 years old, as he was born January 1, 1800. The city mortal claims he was 61, while Judge Naughton says he was only 60.

Colonists contemplating location on the government land under the D. A. Caulfield ditch, west of Greeley, Col., have been cautioned against locating with the expectation of water this year for irrigation. About eighty families are on the land, but the water supply is inadequate.

The bids for the lease of the Shoshone reservation north of Wind river, Wyo., has been disapproved by the interior department. The part of the bids disapproved was the five-year clause. It is understood that this will be modified so as to allow the bidders to lease the land for one year only.

A number of gentlemen who are interested in the Fairview (Wyo.) mining company are making arrangements to develop their property in the Silver Crown district, twenty miles from Cheyenne, says the Laramie Sentinel-Leader. It is proposed to sink a shaft about 300 feet deep.

Last Saturday night as one of the eastbound freight trains was within a mile of The Siding, Wyoming, the engineer discovered a huge rock on the track. The boulder had rolled down from the bank and obstructed the track completely. The last mail was held at Laramie several hours.

At a meeting of the Italian and Swiss-Italian residents of San Jose (Cal.) and vicinity, an association has been formed for the purpose of teaching the children of Italians the language of their parents without interfering with their education in the English language.

The first number of the National Liberal Educator, published at Cheyenne, Wyo., is out. It will advocate the location of a national theological university in Wyoming. L. A. Minis is the editor and he has taken the state board for the use of the building erected for a deaf, dumb and blind institution and which has never been used.

An Arizona man mixed strychnine with his whisky, and as a result he saw heels of snakes in his bedroom. As long as he was armed he felt secure in overcoming by such forces as snakes, so he got out his gun and scattered the house about. Midnight with a volley fired at the imaginary wriggling intruders. He is now in the insane asylum.

It is most gratifying to the friends of Hon. B. F. Morris in southern Idaho, says the Boise Democrat, to learn that he has been made receiver of public moneys in the land office at Lewiston, Nez Perce county. Mr. Morris is a pioneer and has been a leading citizen ever since he became a resident. He has filled with honor many important positions of trust.

In a fight in a grocery store at Gilman, Colo., between Andrew Kinney, a cook, and Normal Mizzell, the former used a large cheese knife on his opponent with serious effect, laying open the scalp to the bone for a gash five inches in length. The row arose out of a question of the right of Mizzell to the possession of a temperance passage of butter. The wound is not dangerous.

Frank Cooper, proprietor of the Warm Springs at Idaho City, has built a salt soap in place mixing the water, according to the Idaho Democrat. There is a spot of ground in close proximity to the springs where, however and the weather, he could work any day of the week or the day of the good heat of warm water always lasts. As a matter of fact he could work more than three or four hours, all told, on the tub with what time he could be present by all odd, every-handed fellow in gold dust.

Mrs. John Little, wife of a recent bride resident of Fowler, Colo., was found dead by her husband on his return to coming home for dinner. A table was in the lower abdomen, double hysteria, showed the cause of death. A swelling and tumefaction that had developed suddenly had burst and released the life of the victim. Mrs. Little had been a sufferer, and was married and with the flour, which was in her flr. Death for little body. She had evidently fallen down from, as no preparation had been made for the evil day. Evidently it was an accidental death and no inquest was deemed necessary.

The large robin dryer warehouse, of Fresno, Cal., of J. H. Wilson & Kate City, Cal., was burned on Monday morning. In the building were 1,500 boxes of 100 pounds each, of raisins, figs, fruits and other products. The dryer was built this year and had only been used one season. It was one of the larger and best equipped establishments of the kind in the state. The loss is $15,000 to insurance. Incendiarism is believed to have set the fire, as there had been no fire in any of the furnaces for some time.

On Sunday last the ordinance forbidding all classes of business on the Sabbath except ship sales, hotels and restaurants went into effect in San Bernardino, Cal. So far as known the ordinance is universally observed. Early in the morning a large number of people were on the streets to see whether the stores and other places of business would open. Quite a large sum of money has been taken in for the validity of the ordinance so far the lawyers have not decided how or when to make a case. There is talk of arresting the local officers of the gas company, who have to make gas on Sundays to keep up the regulate pressure, and there was also a little talk of making a case against church officers who take up collections in church as being in violation of the ordinance.

The second general convention of the Inter-state Irrigation association will be held at Pueblo on the 23d, 24th of this month. The association was organized at Salina, Kansas, September 28th, 1891, for the purpose of demonstrating the practicability of irrigation in that portion of the United States lying between the 100th meridian and the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, and known as the semi-arid plains region. The states represented in the initiation of the association were Nebraska, Kansas, Wyoming and Colorado. In addition the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Oklahoma, Montana, Texas and New Mexico are equally interested in the problem which the association is endeavoring to solve.

An exchange states that Mrs. Sophie Bernhard, wife of a prosperous dairyman, died in San Francisco of gladness. Four years ago Mrs. Bernhard's husband unwillingly purchased a horse for the family to drive. A few days later, while Mrs. Bernhard was standing near the horse's head the animal opened in hot face. Soon afterwards she was stricken with chill and pains and a swelling of the throat. Finally she became so bad she was taken to the hospital, and there the true nature of the disease was discovered. The whole upper portion of the woman's face was eaten away by the dread disease. Her husband and children have also been exposed and their condition is being closely watched. The health officers kill the horse and will cause the arrest of the trainer, who sold the horse at a price that was ridiculously low.
