NEWS OF THE WEST.

City Councilors Who Do the Paving of Streets Themselves.

A HUNTER PERISHES FROM COLD.

California's Great Storm—Shot From Ambush—Reward For a Murderer—Heavy Snow.

On Sunday James Lougheria was shot by John Costello in a drunken row on the Sargent ranch, six miles west of Lodi, Cal. The quarrel was over a trifling affair.

Five men attempted to rob a street car at Oregon City, Cal., on Sunday night, but were balked by the nerve of the car men and two passengers, who exchanged shots with the would-be robbers.

Sunday evening a man named G. M. Wright killed Pope Lancaster at Bell's Ferry, Cal. Wright lay in a barn and shot Lancaster with a shotgun as he passed by, killing him instantly. Lancaster has a hard reputation.

Saturday and Sunday snow fell almost continually in the Sierra Nevada mountains, the heaviest fall being at Sugarpine Camp, where six inches is said to have fallen in two hours. Between Summit and Cisco there are about eight feet of snow on the level.

A reward of two hundred dollars has been offered by the board of county commissioners of Garfield county, Colorado, for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons guilty of the murder of the man found in the Grand River near the state bridge in Glenwood Springs on January 13th.

Joe Williams, a colored man who assaulted Laura Clisby with a knife, at Los Angeles, a year and a half ago, because she would not marry him, and who escaped at the time, returned on Sunday night in the capacity of a traveling preacher. It is supposed that his crime had been forgotten, but enough lie mind when an officer placed him under arrest for attempted murder.

Wednesday the first woman ever appointed to an official position in Arizona received her commission from Governor Hughes. Mrs. Frances G. Thomas, of Phoenix, was chosen a member of the board of education of the Territorial Normal school. She is a woman of mature years and has a local reputation as a speaker in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and the woman's rights field, being secretary of the territorial organization of the Woman's Rights League. The appointment is understood to be the forerunner of others as an illustration of the governor's strong equal suffrage views.

An illustration of the great storm of Saturday and Sunday, which did so much damage in California, washing away bridges, roads, railway trackage, is given in the following statement from the Sonoma valley, regarding Sunday afternoon's experience there: A terrific rainstorm set in this afternoon and for several hours the floodgates of heaven were opened and rain fell in perfect torrents. Streets were converted into miniature rivers, and Sonoma creek and other streams were soon raging torrents. The storm was accompanied by terrific thunder and vivid flashes of lightning. The peals of thunder were the loudest and most terrifying ever heard in this valley. It caused houses to shake, windows to rattle, and many women and children were badly frightened by the atmospheric explosions.

A special from Wenatchee, Wash., says: Saturday morning Lowrey Polson, a well known, strong and healthy young man, about twenty-six years of age, left the home of his brother, who lives near Wenatchee, for the purpose of going on a deer hunt in the mountains near town, expecting to return in the evening. He failed to return last night, and his brother and others, becoming alarmed, went in search of him early, fearing some accident had befallen him. The searching party was not long in finding the missing man, but arrived too late to be of assistance, as he was found cold in death. It appears that he had received a fall and broken his leg, and had received other serious bruises, some time yesterday, after which he had dragged himself a considerable distance in an effort to reach his home. He succeeded in getting within 200 yards of the animal when he sank from exhaustion or fainted from pain, and froze to death where he lay, the night being bitterly cold. He was unmarried and leaves three brothers living near Wenatchee. His parents live in Montana.

In two weeks the mayor, city council and other officials of Tacoma, Washington, will be found on Pacific avenue cleaning up the street and laying plank pavement. A plank pavement has recently been laid except on the east side of the avenue between the City Hall and the wharf, over which the heaviest traffic in the city passes. The property on both sides is owned by the Northern Pacific railroad and the city. As the former is in a receiver's hands and the city is over the legal debt limit and cannot enter into contracts, no legal way can be found to assess the cost of improvement to abutting property, yet the old plank pavement is full of mud holes and the street was long declared by the council to be a nuisance to the city. To solve the difficulty, Councilman J. Hartman at Saturday's council meeting offered a resolution requesting the Northern Pacific to furnish lumber and nails for repairing a portion of the avenue and finding the council and other city officials in that event to personally take hammers and saws and lay the pavement. The resolution received fourteen votes and one against. By the resolution participants are requested to join the city officials in laying the planks, but the indications are that the citizens will not, unless the council fulfill its contract, for they watch the work from the sidewalks. The Northern Pacific officials say tonight that the railroad will probably accept the offer and give the council a chance to labor. In fact, the railroad some time ago offered to bear half the expense of repairing the street, Councilmen Parker and Watson, but say they will hire substitutes as long as other councilmen will work. There are several other streets which need immediate attention, and if the street plan works well a resolution will be offered in the council to condemn the street evening "lies" until they are fixed up.
