the ground. The balloon fell in the mountains thirteen miles from the city, and neither the balloon nor its occupants have been heard from. Since the heavy explosion this afternoon, heavy dark clouds have gathered above Mount Franklin, from which point the bombardment took place.

Fifty Men Killed.

TRIESTE, Sept. 17.—It is reported that fifty workmen have been killed through the collapse of a tunnel on a line of a new railway.

A Big Sham Fight.

MUEHLHAUSEN, Sept. 17.—The Eleventh Army Corps encountered the Fourth Army Corps today and a battle of several hours' duration was fought in the presence of the Emperor, who galloped from point to point throughout the battle. Sixty thousand men were engaged.

A $100,000 Fire.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 17.—At Hastings, just below here, two elevators and the electric light works were burned this afternoon, causing a loss of $100,000.

Miracles Performed at Treves.

TREVES, Sept. 17.—Among the miracles asserted as resulting from the exhibition of the Holy coat, are curing the withered arm of an Alsace, restoring of the sight of blind persons, and the curing of cripples. Each case is declared to be supported by medical testimony, but the details will not be published until the exhibition of the relic is finished.

A Town Threatened With Destruction.

THORP, Wis., Sept. 17.—Nine, Luck & Hudson's mill is burning at midnight, and unless the wind changes, the whole town is likely to be burned.

Fire in a Weighing House.

HASTINGS, Minn., Sept. 17.—A fire broke out in the weighing house of Smith & Thompson this afternoon. The building, with the warehouse adjoining and Strong & Miller's railroad elevator, all filled with grain, were burned, and also the electric light works. The loss aggregates $100,000, the insurance will not exceed $20,000.

To Protest Against a Verdict.

FORT MONROE, Va., Sept. 17.—Posters are out calling a mass meeting at Hampton tonight to protest against the verdict in the Hanes case.

Recoinage of Uncurrent Fractional Silver.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—Congress at its last session authorized the recoinage of uncurrent fractional silver coin now in the treasury abraded below the limit of tolerance, and made an appropriation of $150,000 to cover the loss to the coin by abrasion, etc. This sum, it is estimated, will cover the loss on about $4,000,000 of the coin, and this amount is now being coined into quarter dollars and dimes, for which there is a very great demand. Recoining into standard silver dollars of the $5,000,000 of trade dollar bullion, which the last Congress authorized, is also in progress.

Republican Day.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 17.—Today was Republican day at the State Fair. Forty thousand people were present. Senator John Sherman was the speaker of the day, being preceded by State Auditor Poe. Sherman's speech was devoted to the tariff, his remarks being intended to reach the farmers, who were present in large numbers. It drew striking lessons from the great exhibit at the fair; the great strides in the industrial arts being only possible, he said, under a protective tariff; only through it could these magnificent industries be built up. The speech made a favorable impression. He said nothing on the silver question.

The Sealers.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17.—In the Commons the attention of the minister of marine and fisheries was called to the threat made by the collector of customs at Victoria, B. C., last week, to the effect that all Canadian vessels sealing there will be dealt with upon their return to Canadian waters, even though they escaped the armed cruisers patrolling in those waters. In reply, Tupper stated that the collector acted entirely upon his own responsibility, and he had never been instructed to make any such declaration, and in so doing had exceeded his duty.

A Traffic Agreement.

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—The reports of an arrangement for a close traffic agreement between the Atchison and Denver & Rio Grande roads are confirmed by the Atchison officials.

Some Habits of the People in the Bahamas.

There are about 10,000 people in Nassau, three-fourths black, and of the 7,500 blacks you see about 2,000 on the streets every day. They are nearly all barefoot, though some of the old women shuffle along with their feet stuck in slippers, and now and then a proud young girl limps along in shoes. They carry their parcels on the top of their heads.

They do not sing or shout on the streets, but they do a great deal of shouting at one another. Conversation usually begins when the participants therein are about a block apart, and continues uninterrupted till the same distance, or perhaps a block and a half, has been put between them by their slow and lazy footsteps.

The conversations are usually accompanied by a strange swinging of the hands. The gestures are not definite or emphatic—nothing is in the Bahamas but the tone of the accompaniment and are not often belligerent. What their meaning is no one can find out.

This aimless swinging of the arms and hands is a peculiar characteristic of the negroes here. Even while alone, standing or walking in the street, with heads down and apparently unconscious of what they are doing, fully one-half of the adults move their hands and arms about, spreading their fingers and working the wrist joints almost constantly. Even the policemen, who are all colored and great dandies in the white uniforms and helmets, have the same habit.—Cor. Chicago Herald.

She Didn't Want Much.

Among the arrivals on a Hamburg ship recently were a German widow and her seven chum eyed, flaxen haired stair steps. Being turned over by the authorities to a German pastoral society of the city, the widow complacently sat down upon their temporary weekly allowance, awaiting its evolution by the most natural laws into a permanent weekly allowance. The German Ladies' Aid society appointed a committee to wait upon her Hamburger majesty and propose some plan of reasonable investment on the part of the society whereby the widow could undertake the support of herself and family. She listened amiably to their propositions of a cow, a goat, a washerwoman's outfit, but evidently destined at such humble walks through American life. Finally, being asked to suggest something, this is what she said:

"Ef you ladies, ladies, die is wot I t'inks. I t'inks of you ladies would so gute be, dat you vill a visit upon de mayor of New Yorrak, und ask would he so gute be dat he gif me but one of dose so many street cars dat on de Broadway strasse run—I haf so mooch de horses make to go, und I vill make so mooch money vat you gute ladies vos have so helped me gute, und no money pay for them. I haf such money maken vos so many mans dat ride all de day in my street car."—New York World.

Short and Pigeon.

A correspondent sends to The Youth's Companion a copy of a letter written by an English sailor on his return from an India voyage. It is dated "Warren Hastings, East Indiaman, off Gravesend, March 14, 1813." One thought was uppermost in the writer's mind, as will be perceived by the luckiest reader:

Dear brother Tom—This comes hoping to find you in good health, as it leaves me safe anchored here yesterday after a pleasant voyage, tolerable short and few squalls.

Dear Tom—Hopes to find poor old father well, and you quite well of pigeon. Sights of pigeon at Gravesend, but unfortunately not fit for a dog to eat. [illegible]

Japs Less Docile Than Chinese.

Whether Sir Edwin Arnold has not given us a just idea of the Japanese people or whether the American atmosphere has demoralized the guileless ones who have come from the "Flowery Kingdom" to the western coast it may be too soon to determine. But the experience of a vinegrower of Napa, Cal., who employed nearly two score Japanese in his orchard has brought with it the conviction that in industry, sobriety and discipline they cannot compete with the Chinese. This man says that his workmen one day refused to work. He discharged them and hired substitutes in their places, but they returned armed with knives and took possession of his house. From this intrenched position they were only ousted by a body of police.—Chicago Tribune.

To Measure the Sea Level.

An apparatus for measuring the mean level of the sea is announced. It is based on the principle that when a liquid wave traverses a capillary tube or a porous partition its amplitude diminishes, and it is reduced in its phases without the mean level of the wave changing. It consists of a glass tube, the lower end communicating by a tiny thin pipe with a plunger which is located beneath the lowest water level. There are two rods in the plunger, the lower being filled with sand and open to the sea, the result being that the column of water in the tube rises and falls very little, with the tides, and the mean sea level can be read from a graduated scale.—New York Sun.

The Mule Punished.

"Is all mule done broke he leg his leg dis mornin', marse," said Mose.
