WEBER PLACED ON TRIAL.

His Persistency Secures a Speedy Hearing of His Case.

PROSECUTION'S TESTIMONY

E. D. Rolfe, Jr., Says Defendant Came and Got a Team from Him and Did Not Return It.

Herr Weber, who has been in the county jail for the past three or four months, awaiting trial on the charge of embezzlement, claims to be a German, but he has make no demonstration the fact that he is possessed of that material known as "cheek" over the world on "American soil."

On account of the difficulty experienced in getting an attorney to defend him, his case has been continued time and time again. It was only yesterday afternoon that Weber's trial was continued until the week after next, for the reason that the court's latest appointee, Attorney H. C. Richards, was too busy with other matters to give the German any attention. Now, Weber is at present a poor man, but is as proud as a king. He comes from an aristocratic family and does not care who knows it. He understands that the true value of gold and silver, even though he has none. The only kind of currency that he has been known to handle for some time past is "checks," and "much obliged."

Lawyers, like all other men, do not take very kindly to this class of pay, and for that reason have given Herr Weber the "frozen heart." Weber knew that was his matter and he entertained Judge Norrell. He further said that he was able to conduct his own case and had prepared a brief which he intended to call. When he learned that his case he'd gone over for another week or so he was much incline terrible. He said he would be tried right away or not at all. Witnesses was sent for to the jail and the result of the interview was that Weber was put on trial at 2 p. m. It didn't take but a few minutes to get a jury and then the complaining witness, E. D. Rolfe, Jr., was called to the stand.

The witness testified that on Sunday, December 4th, 1898, the defendant came to his place of business and hired a team for the next day. Weber told witness that he wanted the team for the purpose of driving around the city and soliciting bids for tailor made clothing. He also told witness that he was about to open a cutting and tailoring establishment in the basement of the Herald building. He came and got the team Monday morning and that was the last witness saw of it until the following Thursday, when he found it with Doctor Parker in Ogden, with whom the defendant had left it. Prosecutor Rar Van Cott said he had only one more witness to examine and that was ex-Sheriff Lewis, who had subpoenaed but had failed to attend. The prosecution expected to prove by this witness that he arrested Weber at Ogden, Utah, and on Mr. Edwards agreeing to admit that Lewis would so testify, Mr. Van Cott announced, "We rest."

WEBER ON THE STAND.

Weber was then called by Mr. Edwards and testified that he had hired the team of Mr. Rolfe in good faith and with no intention of stealing it, nor he would not have left it in care of Dr. Parker. He started out for the purpose of soliciting orders for tailor-made clothes, for both ladies and gentlemen, in this city and other villages. He was told to go north and followed the directions given him. He reached Bountiful and Farmington in the forenoon, finding those towns too small, pushed ahead for Ogden. At the Junction City he found many inferior towns to visit and concluded that place was too large. Then some one persuaded him to try Nevada and on Tuesday night, December 6th, he took train for that State. Before he had reached his destination, an officer stepped on the train and arrested him. This was at Elko. The next day Sheriff Lewis came along and brought him back to Salt Lake.

CROSS-EXAMINED.

Under cross-examination Weber said when he started out he only intended to be gone from Ogden one day. He had not thought of converting the State in one day, but believed he could have done the principal cities in that time. He admitted that he was under the influence of liquor when he left Ogden, which might have had something to do with his actions in going to Nevada.

The case reached the jury at 4 o'clock this afternoon, and at 5 o'clock, not going to press a verdict had not been returned.

Given Fixed Guilty.

The jury in the Green grand larceny case found the defendant guilty last evening. There is still another charge of stealing a horse against him, and the matter was allowed to go over until tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

SEVEN YEARS FOR AM MAIR.

Defendant Makes a Speech and Asks for No Mercy.

PRAISES JUDGE AND JURY.

Prisoner Affected when Referring to His Own Children—Says the Crime Deserved Death.

Am Mair, convicted by a jury on Monday last of the crime of assault, with intent to commit a crime upon the person of fourteen-year Blossom Franks, in this city last December, was this morning sentenced by Judge Morrell to seven years in the State prison.

When Mair stood up for sentence he was as pale as death, and all of a tremble. Judge Morrell asked the prisoner if he had anything to say before sentence was pronounced. Mair started the top of the clerk's desk and with much emotion spoke as follows:

"I haven't much to say, your honor, but the little talk I am going to make I hope your honor will pay attention to. I have been adjudged guilty by a fair-minded jury of what one of the newspapers called a very, very bad crime, I know crime. I have no fault to find with the jury which convicted me. The evidence was fair, the testimony given in the light of the testimony was the law and facts in the case. I have no feelings against the man who sat in that box and said, 'Mair, you are guilty.' I cannot, neither will I, ask your honor for any leniency for the man who would commit the crime the jury says I am guilty of should he be found guilty of it. I am a young man, your honor, with children of my own.

"Here, I have been in this town and want, but immediately heard himself so easily, and continuing said:

"The man who would assault my child would die." My children and the child who testified against me are dependent on me. I ask you to pay for your honor, I respect you for the fairness of your charge to the jury. You deserved the verdict of the jury, which is one of my kind quality calls for. You treated me with all the consideration I could expect, and I, in a word you and thank you for it. I hold no ill feelings. I am ready for sentence."

Attorney James F. Smith then arose and said he believed a mistake had been made by the jury which convicted Mair, and asked the court for the sake of Mair's wife and family to indulge him in a minute or two talk.

Judge Morrell said the defendant had expressed his views with respect testimony of the crime. The penalty prescribed by law for such offenses, his honor said, was not too heavy. Before the jury was empaneled the court felt satisfied that it had done no duty in bringing in a verdict of guilty. Judge Morrell then sentenced Mair to seven years in the State prison. After thanking his honor, Mair took his seat and was later removed to the county jail, and from there to the State's prison.

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress Assembled:

Your memorialists, the Governor and Legislature of the State of Utah, respectfully represent:

That from and during the years from 1855 to and including the year 1878, a period of 23 years, the Indian tribes of White River and Southern Ute tribes of Indians under the leadership of a band of renegade Mormons, were continuously engaged in committing depredations upon the residents and citizens of the Territory of Utah, and later upon the residents and citizens of the State of Utah, during which period the lives of many were taken and much property destroyed and stolen by those Indians. Wars between these two nations of the nations, and much blood was shed, and much treasure was expended, by Federal authority, no effort was made to afford protection to the settlers by the use of the army of the United States. The city protection afforded was by means of organizing bands among the citizens of Utah who, without compensation, and at their own expense, were compelled to leave their homes in very poor, their homes to protect and relieve the attacks of those Indians, and to have returned to their homes and who thus incurred large expenses from which some been in any manner compensated for.

Liut. Dowdy Promoted to Captain.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The records of the war department today contained a story in connection with the nomination by the President of an officer in the regular army to be a captain in the Dowdy, to be a captain in active service. At the outbreak of the spanish war Dowdy was a lieutenant in the seventeenth infantry. At the troops were lying at Tampa waiting to embark he had been nominated by the President for promotion as a captain, but was found physically unfit. The recommendation of the board that he be retired was not acted upon by the President. Dowdy accompanied the Rough Riders to Cuba and bravely went along. He was in the thick of the fighting everywhere, suffered every hardship and exposure and went through the whole campaign without losing a day from illness. Just as the troops returned to Tampa in the latter part of August the papers came back from Washington retiring Dowdy from service. Then looking into the case the President was satisfied that this was a particular hardship, and that the man who was strong enough to render such service as Dowdy had rendered was too good to retire in active service, hence the nomination.
