The Painters' and Decorators' association held an outing Saturday at Lagoon. The prizes in the contests ranged from a bottle of wine to a suit of clothes, and from an ice cream soda to a ton of coal. The day wound up with a dance.

The county commissioners are carrying out the boulevard idea on Twelfth South street from State to Eleventh East. The street is being widened to 50 feet, and is being macadamized with slag which is proving a good road-making material.

A local business house has been shipping large quantities of quilts, blankets and general bedding down to Provo in response to the demand from people waiting to rush into the reservation the moment it is thrown open to the public.

The new secretary of the D. A. & M. society has taken hold with vigor, and is sending out premium lists for the coming fall fair in all directions. He says that the coming state function is going to be the finest in the history of the state.

A. W. Shoemaker, formerly a Colorado railroad man, is distributing a sectional map of the Uintah reservation for the benefit of all parties desiring to make homestead entries there. With the map are the laws and rules under which entries must be made.

Some alleged joker with kaleidoscopic ideas as to what constitutes a joke, dropped into a large mail box on Main street on Saturday an unstamped and undirected package. On the same being opened in the postoffice, it was found to contain a freshly killed weasel. The postmaster did not think it worth while to send the weasel to the dead letter office at Washington.

J. E. Cox reported at Saturday afternoon's meeting of the County Horticultural society, that the pear blight was increasing in this and adjoining states, and that the pear and cherry slug is affecting the apple orchards. The society decided to exhibit at the coming state fair and appointed a committee, consisting of Messrs. Hemenway, Elliott and Sorenson to confer with the county commissioners.

P. W. Ayres, an expert of the agricultural department at Washington, is at the Wilson, en route to southern California, where he will conduct experiments in creosoting fence posts made of eucalyptus wood, thus making them outlast much more expensive woods. Southern California abounds in eucalyptus, and the success of the experiment will save local farmers large sums of money in utilizing the cheap timber.

Deputy Sheriff Steele arrested Reuben Dodge late Saturday afternoon on the charge of failing to provide for his family. The man is a laborer, and lives near the Warm Springs. His wife swore to the complaint against him, and she alleges that she has been compelled to go to her parents to live, as her husband has failed to provide for her. She has three children. Dodge is now in the county jail, and will be given a hearing at once.

Manager G. W. Laing of the Independent Canal & Reservoir company, Emery county, is in town, and says that 20,000 acres of land will be reclaimed by his irrigating system. The canal will be about 10 miles long and carry 400 second feet, but work at present is being pushed on the reservoirs of which there will be a dozen ranging from 200 to 1,000 acre feet each. Mr. Laing says that his part of the country is well adapted to grain and fruit.

There is talk among some business men of asking the next Legislature to memorialize Congress to make such arrangements with the legislature of Idaho as will allow of a diversion of the winter waters of the Snake river into the Port Neuf river and thence into Bear Lake and down into the Great Salt lake. The idea is to replace in the wintertime the water evaporated from the great lake in summer, and thus prevent the threatened shrinkage of the lake to smaller proportions.

County Attorney Parley P. Christensen returned yesterday from Buffalo and other eastern cities. He represented the Salt Lake Elks at the grand lodge meeting and afterwards visited in a number of cities before returning home. He paid particular attention to the workings of the juvenile courts in New York, Albany, Detroit, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City and Denver, and gathered some valuable information concerning their operations. Mr. Christensen is deeply interested in Judge Lindsay's plan of using hypnotism in the treatment of bad children.

Mrs. Ida Larsen and Mrs. Henry Tribe mistook an extra car at First South and Main streets, last evening, for a west First South street car, and attempted to board it. In doing so Mrs. Tribe's foot slipped on the platform step, and she fell to the ground. She clutched to the dress of her sister, Mrs. Larsen, and dragged her off the car also. Mrs. Tribe, who is 60 years old, fractured her right collar bone, and cut her head, and Mrs. Larsen was cut over the left eye. The women were taken into Schramm's drug store, where they were cared for, and then sent to Mrs. Tribe's home, 56 south First West street. Mrs. Larsen lives at Mt. Pleasant.

According to a letter received in Salt Lake from R. H. Jacobson, Utah's Rhodes scholar, he will return to Salt Lake in the near future to spend the summer with his folks at home. After a year of study in Oxford he has decided that home is sweeter than travel on the continent, and this treat he has postponed till some future vacation time. Mr. Jacobsen ranks among the most capable students ever graduated from the University of Utah, and he has taken a good position at Oxford. His letter indicates a liking for the school, and that he is having an enjoyable time. Oxford closed July 29 and will not reconvene until late in October.

Saturday afternoon Sergeant John J. Roberts of the police department, proceeded to investigate the story told by seven-year-old Walter Garbett, that he had been captured by three tramps and subjected to cruel torture, said torture being the burning of one of his feet. Sergt. Roberts found a dozen witnesses who saw the lad deliberately run through a pile of burning rubbish. The red hot coals got down in one of his shoes and burned his foot, likewise his stocking and shoe. For fear of being punished when he reached home, he concocted the terrible tale of brutal treatment. When Sergt. Roberts confronted the boy with the evidence, he promptly admitted that he had been lying.

The speeding on the East Temple street boulevard is rather unopposed by automobile organizations, but another kind is becoming a public nuisance, and it is said to be opposed by the more conservative class of drivers. This is the rush work over the paved streets, and is driving a large number of citizens to a state of mind where drastic automobile ordinances must be forthcoming. The Chaffeurs' club and Automobile club, both of which are in a flourishing condition, have announced their purpose to handle any case of speed breaking and to assist the police department in securing convictions. Already some members of the Automobile club have been dropped from positions as officers for conducting an indecent and dangerous speed rate.

Two boys had a mix-up at Liberty park late yesterday afternoon, which came very near resulting in a feud between two factions composed of the friends of the principals in the contest. It was finally decided to go outside the city limits to fight it out so that the police could not interfere. Accordingly they marched down to Waterloo, about 100 strong and were preparing to have a battle royal when the county officials interfered. A resident of Waterloo had notified Sheriff Emery of the invasion of the belligerent armies, and he detailed Deputy Sheriffs Steels, Larsen and Bull to stop the invasion of the neutral territory. The boys learned of the coming of the officials and when the latter arrived peace and quiet reigned and the lads could not be found.

A SOLDIER'S BURIAL.

It Was Given Yesterday to Captain Burt, Ex-Sheriff of Salt Lake County.

Captain Andrew J. Burt of the Thirty-fifth United States volunteer infantry, was buried yesterday afternoon from Joseph William Taylor's mortuary chapel on West Temple street with military honors. The remains were clad in the full uniform of a captain of United States infantry. The casket was covered with the national flag and a wealth of floral tributes, the captain's sword lying on top of these, and there were so many friends present from civic and military walks of life that not a few had to remain out on the sidewalk and listen from there as best they could to the words of Judge King. The speaker paid an excellent tribute to the deceased as a public official and while in the service of his country in the Philippines, and afterwards as a captain of police in Manila, said he: "Captain Burt was a man who never shirked his duty, and in response to its calls responded with readiness and determination. Such men are valuable to any community, and Salt Lake is the loser by his death."

It was intended to use a gun carriage instead of a hearse but this was found at the last moment to be impracticable, so the regular funeral car was used. The procession to the grave was led by a platoon of police under Captain Burbidge, and behind the hearse marched a firing detail from the several local commands of the national guard, and in carriages following were representatives from the sheriff's office, veterans of the Spanish war, relatives and friends. The pallbearers were Joseph Lewis, Joseph Bull, William Edwards, W. B. Booth, Ray Burton, and William Ash, representing the Association of Philippine Veterans, the Second regiment of United States volunteer cavalry in which the deceased commanded 1 troop, and the sheriff's office.

At the city cemetery the final services were conducted by Messrs. J. G. Nystrom and J. J. Meyers of the Philippine association, and after the dedication of the grave, the firing detail under Captains Hassing and Bassett of the First infantry discharged three volleys over the open gave. The bugler from A troop then blew the taps, and the grave was filled. The interment was in the family plot in the eastern part of the cemetery and beside the grave of the late father of the deceased, Chief of Police Andrew H. Burt.
