DESERET EVENING NEWS.
Monday, November 12, 1894.

REPUBLICANS RATIFY.

They Gather From Far and Near to Celebrate Their Victory.

All Out This Afternoon—Tonight They Will Paint the City a Crimson Hue—Speeches, Speeches, Speeches.

Republican enthusiasm and exultation over the recent victory at the polls will so far as Utah is concerned, reach its climax tonight. It is anticipated that the city will be painted in colors as bright and far-reaching as the Aurora Borealis themselves. Indeed, some of the triumphant leaders of the party declare without hesitation that such phenomena will have after so long a period passed in the world of astronomy and wonder.

While these conclusions may prove to be a little doubtful it is certain that it is the intention of the "G. O. P." to celebrate to the fullest extent possible, so far as fireworks and pyrotechnical displays are concerned it will be a regular Fourth of July night. Members of the victorious party are coming from all of the precincts of the Territory to unite with their compatriots in the capital to make the occasion memorable. In fact, many are here already having come to the city during the day.

This afternoon a barbecue—and a big one, too, took place at the Exposition grounds. Four fine bullocks and half a dozen sheep were roasted and eaten there. Tonight there will be mass meetings at the Tabernacle, Columbia Market hall and other places. All of them will be addressed by Congressman-elect Cannon and other prominent Republicans. There will also be a great ex-soldier street parade beginning at 7 o'clock sharp. Colonel Cannon has been made the grand marshal of the occasion and will be aided by the following staff: Colonel Henry Page, chief of staff; George F. Downey, aid-de-camp; Ira Cobb, assistant aid-de-camp; T. C. Griffith, assistant aid-de-camp; Ben Hayward, headquarters aid-de-camp.

Aids-de-camp—Rudolph Alff, W. D. Gelgy, George A. Henry, E. F. Adelmann, J. W. Greenman, Eli Jah Sells, J. Lee Taylor, Samuel Peal, George F. Gibbs, C. M. Hammond, Heber M. Wells, George M. Downey, Fred Grant, James Donnelley, Jordan Grant, T. C. Bailey, George M. Cannon, O. L. Davis, H. A. Wattson, Frank D. Hecht, D. H. Storer, F. L. Cushing, Timothy Egan and J. J. Greenewald.

The aides-de-camp will report mounted at 6:30 p.m., armed with a national flag or gas-can.

The following division commanders are appointed: First division, Joe Y. Smith; second division, H. G. Batten; third division, R. F. Whitlemore; fourth division, Frank L. Hines; fifth division, W. A. Hunter; sixth division, N. D. Corser, who will report at 6:30.

First division forms at intersection of Second South and West Temple, on West Temple, the right resting on Second South. It will be composed of Demaitet band, Young Republican Drum Crub, Flambeau Club, and delegations from Ogden, which will be given the head of the column.

Second division on north side of First South, at First South and West Temple, will comprise Summit county delegations and marching clubs, second precinct marching clubs and floats.

Third division, at Grand Pacific Hotel (Union Pacific depot), will be made up of boats, delegations from Murray, Sandy, Bingham, and all of Salt Lake county outside of the city, and also Third Precinct Marching Club.

Fourth division, south side of South Temple, at West Temple, comprising all delegations from the south except Ogden and Weber county. It will also include silver organizations and marching clubs from Tooele and the West.

Fifth division, west side West Temple at Fourth south, will consist of Lincoln Drum Corps, delegations from Provo and all organizations and clubs from south of Salt Lake county. Also all processions with lamps and decorated wheels.

North division, north side of South Temple at West Temple, comprises artillery, cavalry and mounted organizations and all carriages except those at the head of the column.

The head of the column will move at 7 p. m. sharp, and following in the line of march:

Right on West Temple to Fourth South, east to Main street, north on west side of Main to South Temple, countermarch on east side of Main to Fourth South, east to State, north to South Temple, &c.

The railroad and car shops men will be assigned to the Ballantyne residence, (no title), and will report at the Grand Pacific Hotel at 6:30 with their lanterns.

SALT LAKE IN IDAHO.

Endeavoring to Organize a Branch Building Association.

Mr. Atkinson, representing the Western Loan and Savings company, of Salt Lake City, spent a couple of days in Idaho Falls this week, says the Republican of that place, in the interest of that association with a view of organizing a local branch. He called upon a number of parties and endeavored to get a meeting of those interested at Mr. Morris's office on Monday evening, but owing to the excitement of election and other things, there were but few present. He was obliged to leave for home that evening but will return in two or three weeks, when he expects to be able to effect an organization of a local board. For those who desire or contemplate building a home and have not the ready money to do so, the building association is one of the greatest helps that has ever been found. Many of our eastern cities have been largely built by its means.

This association represents by Mr. Atkinson has $100,000 capital subscribed by wealthy men of Salt Lake City to start with, and they guarantee to loan to the members of a branch at least twice the amount of the premium paid in. Notice of Mr. Atkinson's return will be given when those interested should endeavor to meet him.

ROASTING OR BAKING.

Mrs. Ewing's Lecture on the Subject Last Saturday.

Mrs. Ewing's lecture on cookery Saturday afternoon was devoted to the subject of roasting and baking.

The large attendance and the close attention given by the ladies, most of whom are themselves experienced housekeepers, shows how extremely interesting and instructive the lectures are. Mrs. Ewing has a firm, gentle manner and though never leaving her subject or in any way neglecting the practical parts of the lecture, she brightens it with many humorous touches and much sensible advice in relation to marketing, serving and entertaining.

Having given the proper heat of the oven for roasting at 350 degrees for large roasts after eight minutes lessened a little—she says and there are four ways of cooking—namely broiling, baking, or roasting, boiling (including simmering and stewing), and frying, not the unimportant thing to know is how to season or flavor. A leg of lamb was very daftly prepared and with reference to other meats which should be treated in the same way—veal, mutton, venison and wild fowl—without seasoning or tasting, was put in the oven. A chicken was next shown and an interesting talk had on the method of drawing, washing and dressing fowls. Mrs. Ewing most emphatically insists that every woman should learn to properly draw a chicken and declares that it is an impossibility for anyone to take charge of a house and mind the household affairs without first understanding how to prepare the food. She further states that the highest art in cooking meats is that which preserves the juice, natural flavor, and she objects to such seasonings as onions and other similar things quite long enough to cover, every one the milder and more delicate seasonings.

During this little side talk the lecturer was preparing the fowl for the roasting pan and so easily and neatly was it dressed, primed and tied as to excite the admiration of the entire class. In fact the lecturer's easy manner almost without effort of appearance of labor of preparing her viands is a chief feature in the lessons. Things thought unpromising and hard appear quite the contrary when prepared as she does those—in the proper manner.

A large roast was very simply dressed with bread crumbs seasoned with salt, pepper (cayenne being preferred) and a little grated lemon peel and nutmeg, with thin slices of bacon placed over it. It was taken in two then half an hour later. Afterwards turned to the oven, when pronounced it deliciously cooked. A few instructions concerning the boiling of the fish and the methods of cooking—boiling for highly flavored fish and baking or cooking for the less flavored.

Twelve the class of 20 lessons the fowls were carved and served. The meats were garnished with German potatoes, the latter here remarking that parsely, the tender yellow leaves of the celery, and best of all, cress, made very effective and palatable garnishes, adding that nothing should be served as a garnish that is not also eaten with the meat. Nothing does the flavor more by slow cooking than fish, and from twenty to thirty minutes should be time enough. "A fish should fly through the oven" is an old saying and a true one; half an hour should take it well. For fowl, an hour is an hour and a half, depending of course on the size, with basting every fifteen minutes either with butter and hot water or a light gravy made of butter, hot water and a little flour, the latter preferred if the roasting pan is not large.

A few moments are given at the close of the lecture for any questions that may be asked, and the subject of cookery is always taken up at the beginning of the following lesson for comparing notes.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Elder Angus M. Cannon, the Speaker at the Tabernacle Yesterday.

Religious services were held in the Tabernacle, Salt Lake City, Sunday, November 11, at 2 p.m., Elder Angus M. Cannon, President of the Stake, presiding.

The choir sang the hymn commencing:

O, thou in whose presence my soul takes delight,
On whom my cheerful soul can alone
There may be found strength and beauty and light,
There may thou be found, my God, I am thine.

Prayer was offered by Elder Joseph W. Keddington, after which the choir sang the anthem:

O, come let us sing unto the Lord.

Elder Angus M. Cannon then addressed the congregation. He referred to the principles of the Gospel as taught by the Apostles of the Lord Jesus Christ and by the Savior himself and quoted the promise of the latter saint. His disciples He sent from forth to teach the people the Truth that great spiritual manifestations would follow their work of righteousness. The sick would be healed, the blind be made to see, the deaf to hear, the dumb to speak and the halt to leap and walk and praise God. These things were done in the name of our Heavenly Father. They were fruits of the tree—the only Gospel. There is but one Gospel revealed by God and whatever will cause another will come under condemnation. Christ suffered for all. His atonement embraced all humanity. As in Adam all died, so in Christ should all be made alive. The Gospel which the Savior revealed to was the one John saw being carried through space by a celestial messenger and which was to save men by their obedience to it. After this message had been received, a voice was heard crying, "Come out of her, O ye my people, that ye partake not of her sins and receive not of her plagues." That was an ever-living warning to the Latter-day Saints.

The speaker then recited how Joseph Smith, the lay Prophet, like Cornelius and other men of righteousness had prayed to God and received light and truth. As he was made a messenger of life and salvation, he was told that his name should be had for good and evil among the nations of the earth. Instances confirming the divine authenticity of the Book of Mormon as they had come under the personal experience of the speaker were enumerated. Prominent among these was the testimony of David Whitmer. The time of the coming of the Son of man was not far distant. The Saints should see to it that they not only had their lamps in readiness but that they were trimmed and burning. They should so live that men might see that all men could see their good works and imitate their examples. The present is a day of warning and not of many words, and we should govern ourselves accordingly. No matter what degree of Priesthood a man may hold, it will benefit him nothing unless in magnitude it and is faithful unto it. Parents were entrusted not to be too lax with their children but to guard them as precious treasure, and teach them to fear God that would insure them salvation in the presence of God.

The choir sang the anthem,

Hosanna to the Most High.

Benediction was offered by Elder George F. Wallace.

All Silver Senators.

Will Remember the Newsboys.

For a number of years, it will be remembered, that Colonel and Will Lett have given the newsboys of the city a Thanksgiving dinner. This year the boys had an hope to be made the recipients of such kindness on account of the death of the colonel. But they have been most pleasingly surprised by Mr. Will Lett announcing that it is his intention to continue the custom inaugurated by his father and himself. The boys are accordingly preparing to descend upon the choice feast that will be made ready for them at Reed's on Thanksgiving day. A good program is also being arranged for their benefit.

Arrested and Taken to Ogden.

The Salt Lake police yesterday arrested a couple of young men who gave their names as L. P. Clement and F. A. Lloyd. The capture was effected at the request of the Ogden officers who had been hunting Clement and who declared them to be guilty of obtaining money under false pretenses. They were sent to Ogden where the case will be fully investigated.

A Famous Show of Beauty.

The show of distinguished beauty, unveiled by famous artists, which is now taking place in the Academy of Fine Arts in New York, has been anticipated by the Cosmopolitan magazine in its November issue, in an article by Wm. A. Coffin, with illustrations of some of the most beautiful faces. The "Great Fashion of History" serves for the middle-aged; the romantic career of Agnes Sorel, what Burgundy the destinies of France under Charles VII. "The Art Schools of America," "The Great British Northwest Territory," "The Clubs of the American Press," and the "Public Library Movement," are among the Cosmopolitan's table of contents. Survivors of the war and their children will find interest in "The Story of a Thousand," a personal narrative begun in this number by Albion W. Tourgee, who tells in a graphic way, of a regiment which saw three services—of its organization, its marches, its sports, and its death-roll.
