NEW RULE INAUGURATED

Brokers Now Meet at 11 O'clock for the Transaction of Business.

FAIR DAY'S WORK ON THE EXCHANGE.

Charles Crane's Bull Dog a Rich Property —News from Park City—Operations at Bingham

The new order of meeting at 11 o'clock, was inaugurated in the pit this morning, and the brokers took to it like the young ducks to water, somewhat to the chagrin of those who, in the past, remained together long enough to transact a fair amount of business, then fled themselves to lunch, without even a "scrap" or the least unpleasantness to break the monotony usually characterizing such proceedings. The call closed about 12 o'clock with 3,100 shares sold and a selling value attached thereto of $4,198.75.

In stocks, the call was productive of good figures, most of the stocks recording advances over the recognition accorded them Saturday, and doing business on a new basis. Bullion-Beck was not a seller, but maintained a tenacious imitating an early advance, centennial was also staunch and firm throughout, while Grover-Morton made the initial transfer of the day by recording the sale of 100 shares at 7c cents a share. Mammoth showed an upward tendency and made sales at $1.71½ and $1.72, as shown selling there at these figures, with the good bid for at the close at $1.72. Mercur made decided advances by going up 20 cents and selling at $1.35, which figure the closing stock was in splendid demand, while Northern Light was a trifle stronger and added to the day's business in sales at 4½ cents a share. The closing seller for the listed stocks was Sacramento, which shared in the trading at 60 cents, a figure firmly bid for the stock right up to the close of the call.

In stocks unlisted there were three sellers, there being South Swansea, Alice Pittsburg and Buckeye. The former was leared to a bidder and made sales at from $1.22½ to $1.22½, this being recognized for by an existing fact that the June dividend is to be passed. Chloride was in fair trim and sold at twenty cents, while Alice and Buckeye handed out a thousand shares at 1½ cents. Grand Central was in better favor than ever and held a bid of $1.35, while Dexter and Swansea were about stationary, both holding their quotations of the previous call.

The closing figures were as follows:

SALT LAKE STAKE CONFERENCE

SUNDAY MORNING.

The choir sang the hymn,

Praise ye the Lord, my heart shall join, It work so pleasant, so divine.

Prayer was offered by Elder Geo. R. Marrott.

Singing by the choir,

Softly beams the sacred dawning, Of the great Millennial morn.

President John Smith was the first speaker. He bore testimony to the truth of the Gospel, and to the blessings to be gained through obedience to it. He had seen a great tendency of late among the people to do their duty in relation to the work, and this was particularly noticeable among the youth. In his official duties he had been blessed with many evidences of the saving power of the Spirit of God, in keeping them in the line of a calm performance of duty.

He had often been led to think of the magnitude of the work to be done by the Latter-day Saints in carrying the truth to the nations and the necessity of the young people preparing themselves for the work by the attainment of a testimony and an understanding of the Gospel. Many young missionaries, if possessed of the spirit of labor, found themselves unprepared for their duties and under the necessity of spending valuable time in reaching necessary efficiency.

Elder George M. Cannon spoke with reference to the Elders' stake, which had been formed for the accommodation of representatives of the Twenty-five quorums of Elders throughout the Stake. Arrangements have been made for their convenience in this matter, yet quite half of the quorums had not representatives. Elder Cannon testified that he had witnessed many instances of healing through the prayers through the crisis, and he did not understand why not building the Priesthood should value it so lightly, especially in view of the great blessings which it was ordained to serve that faithfully before the Priesthood had was conferred upon him.

The speaker strongly urged the cultivation of peace and harmony among the people, through the proper teaching of the youth. He hoped the Gospel should be manifested to the world by his good fruits, which stamp the work with the seal of divinity. Consecration would follow failure to observe the precepts of the Gospel, as the heart of those who had received it, and it was necessary that love of God and of fellowmen should be incubated in the hearts of the people, that happiness and unity might abound.

Elders Charles H. Hyde, James W. Ure, Samuel Holmes, Philip Brooks, and Levi W. Richards, reported the conditions of the Twenty-fourth, Twelfth, Ninth and Tenth Quorums of Elders respectively. It was stated that the quorums were generally in good condition, in the performance of missionary work, and a certain lack of unity, which was deemed to be required for the government of members. Much good had been accomplished through the agency of the Elders' quorums, in the cause of peace. Great good had also been gained through attendance at the weekly meetings of the quorums, in the spirit and instruction then enjoyed. Yet these benefits were frequently fruitful but in a small degree, in the spirit, through attendance on worldly matters. Greater care was now being exercised in the selection of quorum officers, and distinct members, subjects of study regarding principle, and the prophecies of the scriptures, were being taken up, with great profit. The M. I. A. studies had been found valuable. The interest in the study of the Book of Mormon, in some, did not equal anything else in memory attained.

President Joseph F. Smith addressed the conference, stating that upon the necessity of those who were called to the Elders' quorums familiar with the proper method of performing the duties of their offices, he commended to the serious notice.

The choir sang the anthem, "Lift up your heads, ye gates, Immanuel shall come, and proclaimed by Elder A. W. Wilberg.

AFTERNOON SESSION

The choir sang the hymn:

Come dearest Lord, descend and dwell, by faith and love in every breast, Prepare for us a heaven below, Hearing to the chair.

Jesus, name of heavenly birth, Now in glory come to earth.

Elder Angus M. Cannon, referred to gratification of seeing so many of the people present, notwithstanding the other attractions, and the unusual hour. The source of joy to the part of some. Also at the increase of wards and quorums, and of the spirit of the conference, and testimonies who report that the Lord is with them. The speaker thought that all of the blessings which further the cause of God come among the people of the stake, referred to by Jesus in his parable of the sower. Of the different offices of the stake were present and faithful in their duties, several concerning the duties of the priesthood, and the responsibility of persons who were called to office.

It was found somewhat necessary to be somewhat lenient with the brethren of some of the quorums, with their attendance had been found to the satisfaction of the Stake Presidency. To do the will of God, and to honor His servants, was a manifest duty, its reward the revelation of His mind and favor.

The tendency to look recreation, indulged to a degree, in the Stake, was deprecated and the importance of the late President John Taylor was cited in support of the contention that it was a sin against God, guilty of such a breach of the law of God.

The consideration of a large number of cases from the list of non-attendance was referred to and explained on the ground that the list had grown for years, so eight was intended to those who had been released. It would be a good thing for all to be ready to change, without offense, a release from any position. The old figure of the ivy in the hands of the potter, should be kept in mind by those who would be servants of God indeed.

In the evening the Canon expressed joy in the Gospel and in the faithfulness of the ministers of Christ, who had to keep the world clean by making themselves subject to His will.

The authorities were then presented and sustained as follows:
