The weather for the past two weeks has been very unsettled, having had frequent storms, both rain and snow, which has made the roads very muddy and the farm lands wet. This has delayed the agricultural movement to quite an extent. However, the greater gart of the land is now in readiness, as soon as the weather will nermit. part of the land is now in readiness as soon as the weather will permit, the farmers will be busy planting their crops. The outlook for the water situation this season looks exceptionally good, and from all indications there will be no scarcity of water whatever. The farmers, generally speaking, are taking hold of the beet industry with great activity. The acreage has been more than doubled since last year, both at Nampa and Payette. In the Payette district there are in the neighborhood of 1,000 acres of beets planted and some of the earlier patches are already up. This will make this season considerably carlier than last season, as the planting did not commence until the fore part of April.
