NOTICE TO STAKE AND WARD OFFICERS OF Y. M. M. I. A.

At the officers' meeting of the General Conference of Young Men's Mutual Improvement associations, held May 30, 1896, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That the fourth week in November be adopted and known as 'Collection Week' in the Young Men's Mutual Improvement associations throughout all the Stakes in Zion; that during that week each association appoint one or more collectors to see, and personally solicit from, each member of the association the amount for agreed upon—fifty cents—to meet the local and general expense of mutual improvement work; that after deducting ten per cent of the collections, to meet the expenses of the local association, the president shall see to it that the remainder shall forward the remainder to the Stake treasurer, who, after deducting fifteen per cent of the total collections, shall immediately report the balance of the receipts from the Stake, to the general treasurer."

We urge upon the officers that they give this matter earnest and immediate attention, and see to it that the collectors contemplated in the resolution are appointed at once, and the amounts collected forwarded to the general treasurer as early as possible.

Earnestly praying for the success of Mutual Improvement, we are your brethren,

WILFORD WOODRUFF,
JOS. F. SMITH,
HEBER J. GRANT,
General Superintendency.

LEGISLATORS SHOULD BE UNPLEDGED.

The crop of aspirants for the United States Senate is becoming remarkably prolific in this State, and were it not that such serious phases are involved in the matter, citizens generally might well allow themselves to be highly amused at the thought of seeing some of the candidates who have been suggested actually sitting in the exalted seat for which they have been named. In the light of the lofty character, duties and powers of the position, some of the men who have entered the race for it cut a figure that is positively ludicrous.

Of others it is enough to say that they are totally unfit for the place. Of still others it can be said with truth that they are presuming on the gratitude which they hold to be due them from their party, whereas their party has done more for them than they have for it. Of a few of the others, a very few, it may be said that they are, in a greater or less degree, qualified for the place.

But that all who are eligible and well fitted to represent our new State in the nation's highest legislative chamber, have pushed themselves, or have allowed their friends to push them, to the front, ought not to be tolerated for a moment. "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

This unseemly scramble for a high office involves danger to the State's welfare. Not that the Legislature, when it is assembled, and in a position to listen to the views and arguments of its several members, and to act without let or hindrance, would fail to recognize the most worthy candidate; but the several aspirants are doing their utmost to assure advance pledges from legislators-elect, and in this way to prevent them as a body, when they shall assemble, from acting according to their best judgment and higher wisdom.

The peril to the State lies in the fact that members-elect of the Legislature may, in advance of its meeting, be influenced, persuaded or induced into pledging their support to some unworthy candidate, and thus to encumber themselves that they will not be able to act freely and wisely when the time for final action comes; and that, through the making of these thoughtless and unfortunate pledges, some man may secure the seat who is totally unworthy of it and unfit for it.

In other cases different candidates for a United States senatorship sometimes obtain advance pledges from members of the legislature, to an extent that gives to each a show of strength when that party meets. Then bargaining ensues, and corrupt deals are consummated, by which the supporters of different candidates are necessitated behind one, who is elected, and he is likely to be the one who was most willing to pay the most money for votes. In such like sort of traffic is an established fashion of politics in many states.

Do we want this sort of thing in Utah? Conditions are being repeatedly the outcome as rapidly as possible, for its introduction. To assume that the greater portion of the men named for the United States Senate from Utah sincerely entertain the fatuous hope of obtaining the seat, would be to denote a case of insanity and every other evidence of mental disease absent. To be incapable of resisting the temptation of taking other people's property, he says, implies serious derangement, which must have also manifestations. The term monomania is hardly heard any more in modern works on insanity.

What has brought the theory of kleptomania to popular discount is probably the fact that the plea is hardly ever successfully brought up except in cases where the defense is extremely well paid for. A dishonest servant girl and a smart thief caught in a house are generally disposed of on common the case. This last is regarded as suspicious and will not contribute towards the success of that reverence for justice which is essential to a successful battle against the criminal elements of society.

But whatever view may be entertained on the purely abstract questions involved, all must agree that the punishment suffered by Mrs. Castle and her husband is in every respect sufficient for the ends of justice. The humiliation, the mental anguish, the physical pain and the pecuniary loss constitute a terrible penalty. It was a graceful act on the part of the English authorities to set the unfortunate woman free even before her term of imprisonment had fairly commenced.

A CABLE'S LATCH.

The other day a fatal fire occurred in New York. A seven-year-old girl was the only one winner of the event, but it took heroic action of firemen and policemen to save others. When the house was discovered to be on fire, Mrs. Drescher awoke her husband, and the latter, seizing the baby and a three-year-old boy, called to the others to follow downstairs. The wife brought a five-year-old boy down, and both parents supposed the seven-year-old girl would follow, but when they reached the foot of the stairs she was not there. The father sprang back upstairs, and into the room, which was all ablaze, dashing aside firemen who tried to stop him, but he could not find the child. He came before the flames, and was dragged out by the firemen. While this was going on, a mother in the fourth floor was about to throw her tiny babe to the street in her desperation. A policeman in the adjoining house stopped her, and climbed out on the cornice, where he was held by several men till he handed the babe to safety, and helped its mother across the space; then he fainted from the effort and was dragged in, another brave man taking his place till all on that floor were rescued. After the fire was extinguished the charred body of little Mary Drescher was found in the kitchen on the third floor, where she had been overtaken by the flames. It was heroic work to save half a dozen or more that were rescued from death, and the brave fellows who did the deed received congratulations therefor with patronizable pride. But what must be the state of mind of Bernard Stricker, a young man who caused the fire by carelessly throwing into a barrel of oil a burning match with which he had lighted his pipe? His thoughtlessness had entailed a horrible death on innocent little babe and had inflicted upon a more happy family a wound which no earthly power could heal and no amount of remorse remove the pain and anguish caused thereby.

IS THERE NOT needed any endorsement of the suggestion that city elections in municipalities of the first and second classes in this State should be made elective offices? It was furnished at the proceedings of the Salt Lake City Council on Tuesday evening.

It is now said that the silver leaders will resign to the rear such men as Allgeld, Tillman and Dubois. It takes a pretty strong cause to win with that kind of a backer.

AN EASTERN paper asks, "Are western farmers all in debt?" That is why they are balking at the War.
