IT WAS IN TRAFALGAR'S BAY.

Ninety-Third Anniversary of Nelson's Great Naval Victory.

Exceptional Interest Taken Today in London on Account of Strained Relations Between France and England.

London, Oct. 21.—Exceptional interest was taken today in the celebration of the anniversary of the battle of Trafalgar on Oct. 21, 1805, when the British fleet under Admiral Nelson gained a brilliant victory over the fleets of France and Spain, commanded by Admiral Villeneuve. The cause of this unusual interest of patriotism here is the dispute with France over the Fashoda question which in some quarters is indeed spoken of as a matter that may possibly bring about war between the two countries. The Nelson relics in Trafalgar Square were profusely decorated and crowded with a great throng of loiterers while hundreds of people laid wreaths at the base of the capital in the hope of the time which was elaborately embellished with sculpture, wreaths, flags and inscriptions, with a background of crimson cloth. There were also flower wreaths in each column intwined with Nelson's good sayings, "Victory, Victory, Victory," "The Nile" and "Tria Juncta in Uno." The morning was showery and only but some hundreds of people were assembled when the hoisting of the Union Jack on the top of the pedestal at 8 o'clock.

At Portsmouth the music of the old Chin was played by a military band, prayers were offered by Dissenters and the service at sea which he was killed was blown with patriotic and religious. The proceeds were subscribed for the fund by hoisting the Union Jack on all the public buildings.

FASHODA AFFAIR.

London Papers Cooling Down to an Exceedingly Cautious Tone.

London, Oct. 21.—The London morning papers have cooled down to an exceedingly cautious and conservative tone in dealing with the Fashoda question, apparently realizing that the public on both sides of the channel is bound on the danger point. There is a marked effort to avoid an offensive tone.

Deroulede in Paris.

Paris, Oct. 21.—An evening newspaper announces that Capt. Deroulede is already in Paris, and is now confined in the Fortress of Mont-Valerien, to which he was recently brought.

Statue of Lafayette.

Paris, Oct. 21.—At the meeting of the municipal council of Paris today, the president of the council read a letter from F. W. Peck, United States commissioner to the Paris Exposition of 1900, asking the council of the Lafayette monument commission, a site in the exposition grounds for the proposed statue of Lafayette. The president thanked the United States for "the evidence of generosity and republican brotherhood," and said he had forwarded the request to the exposition commissioners with a request that it be granted.

DESPONDENT DOGS.

London Times Correspondent Lands a Sporting Bar.

London, Oct. 21.—The Paris correspondent of the Times says: "I had a long talk (Thursday) from a great sporting gentleman, who seems to have long commanded a sporting circle of public opinion on the Boulevard Gallieni here. He appeared much depressed. He has found great and serious sympathy with Spain, but has been unable to obtain any promises of obtaining more support against the American defiance, who are unbending in their demands and who have made pathetic of hard have Britons consequently refused to make the slightest concession on any of the points which remained to be settled, leaving about their government for the slightest modification.

"He ended by remarking: 'What our Britons should say to them if they persist, as it is to be feared they will, is that: We are by your hands. You are the bravest people in Europe, the city of going to war with you because you left us to fire to stand alone against such thousand to one odds. We were bound to grapple with you through the rows of it was evident to us. But we will not be a second time with fifty of remembering war in our face. We are therefore at your mercy. We shall submit to what dishonor and what insult you will to judge of this decision, but we beseech you not compel us to remember. This is what our Britons would say and the Union question. As for the other points, they will not be least what they are."

PARIS EXPOSITION.

Applications for More Space in the American Dept., Approximately Turned Down.

New York, Oct. 21.—A dispatch to the World from Paris says:

Twenty-eight applications have come to the American building at the Paris Exposition of 1900 for space in the Main Hall. Only six applications have been accepted by this so far. The French commissioner general, Dave from "great disappointment." Mr. Peck, the new American representative, When Major Handy was at Paris had not so assured from among the requests for space for restaurants, cafes and amusements within the American building, the number of which he judged to be up to the required amount. These in consequence, officially, are not the restaurants which service contains food, ale of alcohol, etc., must be assorted directly by the French authorities, the commissioner of foreign countries have only the right to apportion space for and decide upon the merits competitive claims of their countrymen.

In the letter of a former general, Mr. Peck says that he cannot assume the responsibility attributed and expressed by the president.

As to these, we neither can nor would what was promised to Major Handy will be adhered, the French Minister, Mr. Dupuy, says, make the best of a bad job, prepare their exhibits and business in the Troops and Riders.

(Mr. E. Lassie Lucas in Gil. Forum.)

A trooper is not a rider, a hussar is not a trooper, a cuirassier is neither, a cuirassier is none of these. * * * A trooper is a man of such mental make-up that he has no higher aim than to be a trooper, and has "a little his" sensibility, strong personality and, materially and of course of mental, considerable. He will work hard when he cannot ride, and will work himself, and other men, to know rather than are a job on the place, and be "The Boss." The cuirassier was originally of well eighteen. It originated in the Wars, when the great idea of the mounted knight was in the air. Men were entitled to be the men who fitting of their first horse, are forced to the ownership of mounts for the service of the cuirassier, and of some reason. A horse is a horse, of course, of more than a trooper, has more self-respect, is better in feeling and sense. Very few people a trooper as the first stage. Many horses are merely sent out of work and were forced to the road by circumstances which they could not control.

A trooper both around a corner as long as he can. He lives on jump (quick—he looks the right) to do his work as long as work lasts a few can. He is often a "grafter," that is he listens his ears, pretends to be paralyzed, solicit permits, bite, pilfer, cadge, or forage (which is pilfering, or shall we say, over-thrift), has the whether or opinion path. Hitches "to never "grafters." Breaks the day of duty and bears the subject. Lies, misrepresents. Very few grafts trumps cancel in the grafting scheme.

There are products of industrial conditions and of the attitude of society toward unfortunate shortcoming men. It would be interesting to inquire how many hussars have served time in our regular army and made good soldiers, and how many responded to the Prisoners's call. For recruiters, the hussar is a mine, he is ready, he is accustomed to early training. The soldiers find an outlook; there are many old troops. A hussar will not become a trooper, a trooper will not become a cuirassier. A hussar will not become a rider, a rider will not become a hussar, nor barely save the change, he is too far gone. Let him alone and save the horses, and the trump problem will be solved. Let the trooper alone, and the hussar will be ready, the rider will be the 100,000 men on the road today are horses. They can be saved.
