The president declared the motion lost, announcing that a two-thirds vote was necessary to its success.

The adversary caucuses report the result as a great change of sentiment in their favor and are much encouraged in their cause.

WILLIE AND FATHER OKAY.

Wells, of Salt Lake, spoke as follows: I am in favor of deferring this question for the present. Statements have been made by the minority papers this year that a portion of the people of the Territory desire to be heard upon the proposition. We must take notice of the fact that meetings have been called and petitions are in circulation calling for what some different way to be taken than that expressed the other day as the will of this Convention. To take action now would be to deny citizens a right which we guaranteed them yesterday by the adoption of our bill of rights wherein we say the right of petition shall not be denied. And when the issue of petition came and the time of consideration drawed, it our house is built upon a rock it will stand, and if it is built upon the sand it will be swept away.

We do not let us be accused, brother, gentlemen, of refusing the request, though and give any portion of the people a chance to say we would not hear them. Let us give all sides an opportunity to have their say. We are always afraid to be fair to an opponent. The right of petition shall not be denied. I do not believe a vote to delay is a vote against woman suffrage. We are making a Constitution to last for perhaps one or two years, surely we can afford to wait ten days to let the people be heard in regard to the section of it. I shall vote to postpone.

Roberts said he was highly pleased the debate had not been shut off. He also what arm could come to a postponement of the question. He spoke recently for delay, so did also Kerr, of Cache, and Van Dyke, of Salt Lake.

Rawlins, of Salt Lake, said it there was any necessity haste he didn't know it. The people were heard from in December on the question. They expressed their feelings in the strongest possible manner on election day. The Convention had been in session to twenty days and he had heard of no remonstrance from the people against woman suffrage. Not one petition was circulated against it by the gentlemen from Davis county. He questioned very strongly whether the Convention had done itself so much honor as it had Mr. Roberts in coming to him for by long.

MINE'S GOT UNANIMOUS CONSENT.

James asked unanimous consent to have the following note read by the secretary, but there being objection to it he did so himself and spoke in favor of postponement.

Mr. President and members of the Convention—You are hereby invited to attend to a lady the women's mass meeting at the Tabernacle on Friday morning (Friday), which will be held for the purpose of presenting against equal suffrage being incorporated in the State Constitution and also to protest against the question in a popular vote.

The communication was signed by Mrs. J. A. Folsom and Mrs. M. J. Lathia, members of the committee on invitation.

Cannon—Do they represent the women of Salt Lake?

James—I should say, sir—I don't think they represent the ladies of Pleasants valley. (Laughter.)

Cannon—Do they represent all of the ladies of Salt Lake?

James—I think so.

Lewis, of Weber, spoke earnestly for a ten days' postponement. He looked toward the committee and said it was the effect that suffrage should be submitted to the people as a separate article, and from this on he should vote to that end.

Goodwin also asked for postponement and was speaking when the News went to press.

Convention Knows Bits.

The Convention forward that Utah shall have no incumbent governor.

The article on revenue, taxation and bills is expected to precipitate a large amount of discussion.

Special measures slept soundly again this morning. Some of the "bedfeasers" say they propose to provide themselves with bitters and take a nip shot at their Morpheus like early morning.

Spence said he would take water but then he reflected that he was supposed to have to say so because he knew how him to be troubled about water taken.

Groups of earnest, whispering delegates, with Thurman as a moving spirit, were seen in all parts of the Convention chamber this forenoon before the transaction of business commenced. It was a notable fact that these "Philadelphia" movements were all woman suffragists who were very careful to keep their counsels to themselves.

The little Salt Lake flower girl who has been such a familiar figure about the public places of the city on the evenings of years opened the Convention chamber again this afternoon with a basket of beautiful buttonholes. Roses and violets too minute to be cut apart were distributed with them.

Natural History Society.

A meeting to organize a Natural History society will be held in the chemical laboratory of the University of Utah (Post North street, between First and Second West) on Saturday, April 6, at 1:30 p. m. A social invitation is extended to all who are interested in natural history in any of its branches.

C. A. WRIGHT,
CHAMBERS COMMITTEE.

To Be Repeated.

The people of the Jamaica school will repeat their entertainment in the Twenty-second ward meeting house tomorrow night, April 5, commencing at 8 o'clock.

County Court.

An adjourned session of the county court is being held this afternoon.

OUR STOCKHOLM LETTER.

Items of Interest from the Dress Swedish Country.

STOCKHOLM, March 17. [Special.] Ernst Kirchberg, the editor of the Ostgotaby, a wingy circulated Swedish paper, died at Gothenburg at the age of 54 years. Mr. Kirchberg had spent many years in the United States, principally Chicago, where he returned to Sweden, in order to start his new famous paper, the most radical in Scandinavia. Many in America he who worked in the newspaper field. He revisited the United States only a few years ago, and was on both sides of the Atlantic known as an ardent admirer and advocate of American ideas and customs. This paper is also partly named "on the American plan."

The cavalry of the Swedish army is to be furnished with new and considerably pointed uniforms. Prince Carl, who is the commander-in-chief of the king's mounted body guard, stands at the head of this reform movement.

Mr. Thomas Ferguson, the minister of the United States to Sweden and Norway, arrived at Stockholm last Wednesday after having been away from his post about four months. Mr. Ferguson has spent the time partly in Paris, partly in the United States.

A large portrait of August Strindberg, the famous Swedish author, was brought by Mr. Ibsen from the other day. The picture is by Christian Krogh, the Norwegian artist who has some good exhibits at the Chicago Exposition.

Lotte Eyolf, Ibsen's latest drama, was given at the Vasa theater in Stockholm a few days ago, but called forth very little enthusiasm.

Count d'Ancrede, the famous Portuguese cook singer, who is appearing at the Royal Opera House in Stockholm at present, has been appointed a Knight of the Order of Vasa by King Oscar.

The Norwegian steamer Antarctic arrived at Montevideo, Argentina, on Tuesday, after a journey during which she rescued 14 sailors (authors included) from a sinking boat off a rocky coast, but the voyage was remarkable in one respect, that only twice before has a steamer been in that region.

Dr. Wahlenstrom, the so-called "Money of Sweden," and the author of a work on the United States, through which capacity he made an extensive journey about five years ago, is expected writing a book on Palestine, having returned from the holy land a short time ago.

Lieutenant Colonel P. N. Hall, the chief of King Oscar's Norwegian body guard, died at Christiania.

King Oscar will be given a reception on his return to Christiania. Prominent orators and all the municipalities of the Norwegian capital are in great fear of his report, and it is going to be a long night if some of Ibsen's disciples will take place in the evening of the day of his arrival.

The two new steamers which have been plied in Sigrid and Elsa in Norway, have latest not a sufficient amount available to the party of the right.

The large steam yacht Stockholm, which has been sold to Copenhagen by order of the king, was launched on Sunday in the presence of the crown prince and crown princess, the Prince Carolina, Carl and Ernst, the Princesses Ingeborg, Thyra and Ingebjorg, Prince Waldemar and Princess Marie, all the higher court officials and an immense crowd of spectators. Shortly after the launch was the most cold and side day for the building of it was the birthday of Alexander III.

Lady Halle, or Wilma Neruda-Neveda, who is well known to many Chicago people, and who was married to Sir Charles Halle, a very favorite of Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales, or Wilma, whose wife is pretty always invited, will make a concert tour of Sweden during the latter part of March and the middle of April. Next season she will make a tour through the United States, after which she will take up her abode in America, her native country.

Mrs. Camilla Collett, the most famous of all Scandinavian authoresses, died lately. Nobody ever worked so hard for the emancipation of Scandinavian women as Mrs. Collett, and she celebrated her 80th birthday two years ago, when was paid homage to by thousands of her own sex, and a Stavanger, which was written by all women Collett's life's breakfast to the literary, learned and political world, was given to her home. She was elected of the Scandinavian society last Friday.

The Christiania Morgenbladet says in an article as follows: "Hatred and war within the country and on the Scandinavian peninsula must be the end, on which the leaders of the Norwegian Union party have set their mind. They spread in their political speeches strategy perfectly such as Cromer and Lindes while joining the king to negotiate with M. Ribot, a very good and suitable date without end, and with patriotic to unite the king when he was called to the. And you see at present the leaders of the party take the liberty to tell us, yes to the king, who pretends to be a constitutional, while he is a monarchy, and the people are made to be made and all things are reported about the Norwegian word and the monarchy. "Hence expressions such as these, which are well calculated to cause a popular solution of the Union question. But every sensible word, an array which is accustomed to the people, and the entertainment of the king's double position, shall tear down both to the country and on the other side of King Oscar's throne, and Norway must not any longer submission, to come once against the union of the country, as in Sweden that this impossible, and the Union, which might finally prevent the wave of the power to be being sworn. Is the time to which one will carry us?"

Science and Gold Extraction.

There is an idea prevalent that modern science is rapidly bringing processes of gold extraction to such perfection that almost the ultimate portion of value can be obtained by methods as rapid as they are ingenious. The suggestion is frequently made by writers on the press that a mining district, a chemical or a scientist, or a man of such a national government, should offer a large reward for the discovery of a new process adapted to the simple treatment of refractory ores. It is urged that some honor and reward is will be vouchsafed to some deserving individual who shall revolutionize all previous methods and so permit of the ores contained in the pyrites and other portions of gold-bearing material. Such ideas, and dreams, such hopes, are opposed to experience and contrary to the teaching of the sages which tell the daughters of mathematics. Evolution, not revolution, is the keynote of industrial science as it is in the case of physiological advancement. Processes are today only low, but most mediate improvements. The examination of the history of the standard methods of ore reduction indicates very clearly that it is only the gradual progress of experience in conjunction with the results of scientific research and the experimental tendency of the age
