FOR BRIBERY.

Arrest of Hayken, of Furniture Contract Fame.

EX-COUNTY SELECTMEN

Limited in the Serious Charge Now Made.

HAYKEN BEFORE THE GRAND JURY.

He Refuses to Testify—Other Proof Produced—Sensational Disclosure Promised.

County Attorney Whitlemore and the selectmen who are backing him in the proceedings against the old county court in the matter of the furniture contract created a decided sensation and some alarm in certain quarters by a coup before daylight this morning. This act was no less than securing the arrest of Martin Hayken, who arrived on the Union Pacific train shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, and immediately had a warrant served upon him.

Mr. Hayken is the agent of Andrews & Clayton whom the furniture for the building was purchased. He is the man of whom it is said that he made a remark to the effect that it cost him $17,000 to get the $60,000 furniture contract from the old selectmen, H. K. Bamberger and J. H. Morris. Hayken denied having made the remark. The matter of contract has been the cause of much discussion and investigation as to its alleged fraudulent character, and the present selectmen have been calling for the inside facts relating thereto. It is in pursuit of their investigations that the Andrews & Co. agent was placed under arrest on a very serious charge.

Mr. Hayken was taken before U. S. Commissioner Pratt, who issued the warrant, today, and was released on $1,000 bonds to await the result of the hearing. A motion to discharge the prisoner, because he was under subpœna as a witness and thus claimed to be free from arrest in connection therewith, was made the afternoon. The accusation against Mr. Hayken is that on or about March 1, 1895, he paid to Selectmen Bamberger and Morris a sum of money as a bribe to secure the furniture contract for Andrews & Co. He has to the charge is not guilty. The effect of the accusation is to make the ex-selectmen at equally guilty, should the charge against them. The case is lodged against them. The men, however, remaining decidedly unmoving.

When the matter was called on the same time in Commissioner Pratt's court, there was some little discussion of a further postponement of the social question, was had till 10 a.m. tomorrow, at which time it probably will not be pressed, as other developments may preclude the necessity thereof.

After Hayken's arrest, he was kept closely confined, and up to 10 a.m. was not allowed to see his attorney C. E. Dey, who is also attorney for Andrews & Co. Mr. Dey objected to such procedure, and applied to Judge Merritt, who directed U. S. Marshal Brigham and County Attorney Whitlemore that the prisoner should be permitted to see counsel. The officers attended to this order, but did not understand that the chief justice had said Mr. Hayken must be brought into court, hence Mr. Dey instituted habeas corpus proceedings, as noted briefly elsewhere, in which Messrs. Brigham and Whitlemore were ordered to show cause tomorrow at 10 o'clock why they should not be punished for contempt. An explanation, however, probably will end all proceedings in the habeas corpus direction, which then was merely a slight misunderstanding, and as there was no intention of contempt.

The proceedings this afternoon, however, are full of promise for sensations in the near future. Mr. Hayken was taken before the grand jury to testify in an investigation supposedly against the ex-selectmen and others. When before the grand jury he refused to testify on the ground that he might incriminate himself, that being according to his attorney's advice, in view of his arrest in the morning. He was excused and set at liberty on the bail furnished.

Other witnesses and testimony were before the grand jury, and it is understood that in a short time, possibly tomorrow, there will be some sensational disclosures that will affect other parties than those yet named in connection with the business of the furniture contract.

The Eisteddfod.

Editor DESERET NEWS.

A few days more and we will have one of the greatest musical festivals ever held west of Chicago, the first great Eisteddfod on the Pacific Slope, and that Utah should be the first to step forth will certainly be remembered by her future sons and daughters as a monument of energy and pluck. To preserve and benefit themselves (the contestants) is an undertaking far beyond the comprehension of the average people that have had no actual experience of the practical part in the business. Imagine the chair rehearsing several times every week for six months, and in the end some 500 second best or performance prize, which is equal to the most humiliating position songsters can possibly exhibit. Do they give up hope? Not among they go to work and prepare for the next annual contest and also encourage of too they gain the victory over all. In many national Eisteddfod as high as six chorus take part, numbering from 400 to 600 voices each. We will have four choirs of our country, numbering from 100 to 125 voices. Provo and Logan will be wanting this time to the Eisteddfod. They will be far low, take heart, and get a good start for 1896. At the grand National Eisteddfod held in Liverpool, as high as 20,000 people were in attendance. Those who try to cultivate enough to get to Salt Lake City will be well paid for the time and money expended, the pleasure as already published will be a good one. I very much regret that there should happen to be a few people among us who count on the "silver age" as being of little consequence. I understand that a certain professor here has expressed himself on this subject. He, as I have heard, deems the "silver age" as similar in importance to "pictures on the wall." What does ornaments are to our homes, so also is the divine art to the children of men. The tree is known by its fruit; can we find fault with a tree because it brings forth sour grapes? Or another tree as apples? Should we uncurse such and destroy them? Certainly not. Go to and graft into these trees delicious fruit. This is what we want to do, so that we will, in this way, preserve the roots and in time improve the fruit.

Zion is destined to be in the lead and perhaps not so far in the future as many would think. I do not say this in the way of boasting; but notice her record already—can you find a comparison? We have the works of the great masters, but I say greater works (music) than these will yet come forth. All dispensations of the past are being fulfilled in this dispensation. Great events call for great works that will take at least a combination of 1,000 voices in order to anywhere near on them justice.

Success to the coming musical festival! Let all sects and parties and nationalities now hold unitedly together and work with a will. This is the way to produce great and grand results. Respectfully yours,

V. TOBIAS DE.

Cache County, Utah, Sept. 14, 1895.

JUDGE DEY IS SORRY

That The County Court Has "Such An Attorney As Mr. Whitlemore."

THINKS HE ACTED IN BAD FAITH.

A Rule Old as the Law Itself That a Witness From a Neighboring State Is Exempt From Arrest.

There was an extraordinary episode in the county court this afternoon at 3 o'clock before three o'clock. All the members were present and each wore an expression of unusual earnestness on his face which was manifestly increased by Judge C. C. Dey who took the floor and spoke substantially as follows:

"One week ago I appeared before this honorable body and promised in good faith, as the legal representative of Andrews & Company, Chicago, that I would have Martin Hayken here to testify before you. He is not here, and you will easily understand that the fault is not mine. This morning he was arrested under the strangest possible circumstances, and as a result is now under detention elsewhere and therefore cannot appear. He is charged with attempting on Mar. 1, 1895, to bribe Ex-selectmen Morris and Bamberger. It is a rule that is as old as the law itself that a witness from a neighboring state cannot be arrested and it is most astonishing that that custom should have been violated. I would now like to know if you want to go on with this hearing or whether you will let the case as now under way, proceed. I don't ask you to make a hasty determination. You might take it under advisement and let me know tomorrow. For myself I cannot in view of the unexpected proceedings in respect to Mr. Hayken see the necessity of going on.

"I want to say also that Mr. Whitlemore has acted in very bad faith. I am very sorry that this body has such a legal adviser. His conduct has been such that no lawyer can be proud of it.

Selectman Morris—I think we might take this matter under advisement until tomorrow.

Selectman Geddes—Until 10 o'clock?

Judge Dey—I hope you will make it 2 o'clock as I will be otherwise engaged at ten.

Two o'clock was the time finally fixed.

Ex-Selectman Morris (interrupting)—I would like to know if there is to be any further investigation this afternoon.

Judge McNally—I think not.

Geddes—Well, Mr. Whitlemore might come to act.

Judge McNally—He certainly can't be here at ten tomorrow for the reason that he has been cited to appear before Judge Merritt at that hour for contempt.

At this point the court without further discussion proceeded to the transaction of other business.

Petitions for the appointment of Isaac Hadley and Mathew Mason, as special police officers at Murray were referred to the selectmen.

Thomas H. Weiler asked for $4,000 damages accounted of being thrown from his wagon, occasioned by a broken culvert on the public highway. Referred.

Robert E. Anderson was appointed special auditor from January 1st, 1895 to September 1st, 1895.

Orin P. Miller and others asked that $75 per month be allowed J. W. H. Roberts, deputy sheriff, for services. Referred.

George Harper and others asked for the repair of the county road leading from this city to the mouth of Big Cottonwood canyon.

A recess was here taken until 4 p. m.

A Useful Invention.

Mr. John C. Handberg, of this city, is the author of a useful invention, for which a patent has been applied, that should be a welcome addition to every household. It consists of a laundry or kitchen table, so constructed that it answers several purposes and consequently is economical from more than one point of view. To it is attached two ironing boards and two clothes racks. It can be used as an extension table and has drawers of considerable capacity. It will be understood from these hints that the table is an exceedingly useful piece of furniture, which will be conceded by all who will examine the little model the inventor is exhibiting.

DISOBEYED COURT.

How Joseph Chapman Sought to Evade Process.

SAYS HE DID IT IGNORANTLY,

But He Was Fairly Caught, and Judge Merritt Scored Him—Other Cases.

In the Third district court this afternoon the case of Caroline Chapman vs Joseph Chapman was taken up. The parties were married in 1873 and have ten eleven children, eight of whom are now living. Mrs. Chapman alleges as a reason why she should be granted a divorce that the defendant is a habitual drunkard and has treated her in a cruel and inhuman manner. Mr. Chapman has real estate worth $1,000 and has nearly $2,000 in the bank, it is alleged by the plaintiff. An order forbidding him to get rid of his property was issued by the court. The defendant denies that he is a habitual drunkard, or that he has treated his wife in a cruel and inhuman manner; he also denies the statements about having money in the bank, and all other charges made against him in the complaint. He admits that both parties have indifferent of temper, but he has considered them on her part, and believes she had done as much regard to him. He says she has been allowed to bring the suit by meddling third parties.

George M. Cannon, cashier of Zion's Savings Bank and Trust company, was the first witness, and was required to produce the account with the defendant, which showed that commencing August 2, 1895, the defendant withdrew $2,198.62, all he had, from the bank; on July 31, $50 had been withdrawn by Mr. Chapman.

Col. Kaighn said he had drawn the answer in the case in good faith, and the testimony about the money in the bank was a surprise to him. He had no idea from his client, the plaintiff, that it was there. Under the circumstances he believed temporary alimony should be granted.

Mrs. Chapman's attorney, Walter Murphy, called the attention of the court to the fact that after the order of the court made July 25, the defendant had ignored that order. The answer made by Col. Kaighn was verified on August 5.

Judge Merritt said the next proceeding in order was to punish the defendant for contempt of court.

The defendant, Joseph Chapman, said he thought the real estate, and not the money was included in the order of the court.

Deputy Marshal Timoney said he had served the order July 25, and in reply to the defendant he told him he could not draw any money from the bank.

Judge Merritt said that if the defendant did not begin with re-deposit the money in the bank, the court would see whether it did not he would treat the court's order with contempt in that fashion.

Colonel Kaighn asked till tomorrow, as he would probably withdraw from the case; but the court said no time was on the attorney, and Chapman must show why he should not be punished for contempt. He must also pay $100 alimony in advance, $25 expenses and $25 a month temporary alimony.

The divorce case of Leah C. Kent vs R. L. Kent was taken up, and a divorce granted on ground of failure to provide.

Orders in other cases were made as follows:

National Bank of the Republic vs Hyrum Greenock et al; motion for new trial and to stick aside overruled.

Jeremiah H. Richardson vs the Crescent Mining company; motion to strike out portions of complaint and demurrer thereto sustained.

James Thompson vs John J. Snyder et al; demurrer overruled.

In A. S. Abbott vs Geo. C. Whitmore et al; motion to set aside order granting new trial and motion for change of venue to county.

R. M. Slade & Co. vs J. P. Dinwoodey; motion for judgment and pleadings granted.

Eldora Ross vs Hyrum Ross; motion for temporary alimony, attorney's fee and temporary expense; the defendant was ordered to pay $10 per month temporary alimony, $25 attorney's fee, and $25 expenses.

Petition of Chas. C. Dey that U. S. Marshal Nat M. Brigham and C. O. Whitlemore be cited before the court for contempt; order issued citing Messrs. Brigham and Whitlemore to show cause on Tuesday, September 17, at 10 a. m., to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt.
