The Fight Between Cowboys and Rustlers im South Dakota.

A MAN ATTACKED BY WOLVES.

Serious Accident to a Colorado Miner. After Apaches.—Indians on the Arizona Reservation.

A duel has been fought near Oxnes, New Mexico, by Marbeo Diaz and Nicholas Fernandez, both under 21 years. The boys had trouble about a young woman. Diaz was killed at the first exchange of shots.

William Richards of Salem was thrown from his horse at Howard's ranch, near Fort Churchill, Nevada, on Wednesday afternoon. After having remained unconscious all day in the bitter cold he was taken to Dayton. He appears to be paralyzed, and will probably not recover.

The Sugar Co. have out two contracts for beets for next year. One is the same as last year, $5 per ton, the other the beets are paid for according to the sugar they contain; these beets averaging 11 per cent sugar will be worth $7 per ton; the same purity are worth $7.—Lehi Banner.

Sample coal has a fine country for a long journey. We saw it at Denver and make more money at that than we can and throw the wood away that we look at anything else. A certain vein there has been at 2000 feet in depth, and every year he takes 2000 more worth $4 per ton. It is a great journey. People succeed because they get Denver.

A accidently shot on Tuesday morning Oak Wilkinson, an employee of one of the smelters at Leadville, Colorado, while recovering from work, was accosted by two unknown men whose conversation was unintelligible to him. Wilkinson thought one was drunk with his companion, but was dealt a heavy blow upon the head with some sort of a weapon and left in a semi-unconscious condition in the gutter. The only robbed in his pocket, which was a gold watch, which the assailants failed to get.

The fight which was reported to have occurred between cowboys and rustlers took place on the South Dakota side of the line. The fight which was two off and week is thought to be in the property of Phelps, S. D. near the Lower Bridge beds, about 20 miles in the valley of the Little Missouri on north fork of the Cannonball. The cowboys are still in pursuit of the rustlers. A number of head of cattle which they took off the range Saturday have been recovered, the rustlers being suspected to have them in their flight.

At Bellevale a miner employed at the Ary mine in the St. Kevin district, Colorado, met with a severe accident a few days ago. He was examining a small counter, and which has caved in, and while holding a pick a portion of the old timbers gave way, pinning him to the bottom. His friends at the top became alarmed at his long absence and they went into the drift and rescued him from his uncomfortable position. He is now confined to his bed with a serious case of pneumonia and a badly sprained back.

The wolves and panthers in the Cheyenne and Arapaho reservation, soon to be opened for settlement, week of 10 Reno, I. T., are becoming very bold, hungry and furious. Messrs. Dixon and Carmichael were attacked by a pack of wolves while in the fields looking after cattle on Monday. The animals showed fight of the most determined kind and seven with difficulty fought off. A week drive, comprising the whole country, has been arranged for the holidays, commencing on December 26th. It is thought in the Sequoyah of the wolves will come by the thousands up of their dens to the south settlement of the country.

News has been received from Weiser, a mining camp 20 miles distant from Lewiston, Idaho, that Jack Wilkins was shot and killed by Henry Schiller a week ago. It was the result of an old feud. Both were in love with the same girl, and Wilkins finally married her at a candy pulling party on December 5th. Schiller told Wilkins it he passed his house on the following morning he would kill him. Wilkins was not to be bluffed, however, and passed Schiller's residence on a pair of snowshoes the next day. Wilkins not appearing in the evening, a party went out to search of him and found his dead body lying in front of Schiller's house. Schiller was arrested.

A special to the Denver News from Meeker, Col., says a party from the Four Mile district passed through here last night. They have just traversed the country thoroughly and the reports which they give are very cheering to the extreme. E. S. Robinson, a civil engineer from Aspen, in an interview, stated: "The quantity and quality of the gold in Four Mile country is now an established fact. Mr. Wood and myself washed out gold that was from $3 to $5 per pan per yard. We have several claims already and in the spring we will put all the men in there that can be worked to advantage. This talk of there not being any water over there is all bosh. We got water from Elder creek, the main fork of the Snake river, and find that nearly all of the gold bearing soil lies under the line surveyed by us."

New Mexico is rich in antique specimens of the arts, and in the relics of past centuries, says an exchange. Many of these are only now being brought to light. One can hardly believe it, but it is a fact stated by Major H. R. Walling, in the Albuquerque Citizen, that there are in the library of the Jesuit fathers, in their residence adjoining the church of the San Felipe de Neri, at Old Albuquerque, three large volumes of ecclesiastical history in Latin, printed at Basle, Switzerland, by Nicholas Kepler, in 1551, only fifty-five years subsequent to Gutenberg's discovery, and but half a dozen years after the printing of the Gutenberg Fust Latin Bible. Although 341 years old the print is said to be remarkably clear. The covers have had to be reinforced with parchment. A search of the old churches and convents of New Mexico would bring to light many libraries of rare and curious value.
