In the matter of [illegible] vs. the Mayor and City Council of Salt Lake and J. T. Jack, recorder, being a petition for a writ of certiorari to review the recent action of the Council in adopting the resolution reducing the valuation on real property 25 per cent, Attorney Rawlings said he had been informed by Assistant District Attorney Stephens that he expected the criminal case set for trial today would be finished by noon, and counsel asked, therefore, that the tax case might be taken up immediately afterwards.

Judge Zane directed that it be set for 2 p. m., at which time the arguments could begin, in the event of all the ordinary business of the court being then disposed of. At 3 p. m. the case had not been reached.

[illegible]

The Priesthood of the Deseret ward officiated in the administration of the Lord's Supper.

PRESIDENT JOSEPH F. SMITH

addressed the congregation. He desired sincerely to enjoy the blessing of the Lord for the time he was to occupy in speaking to the assembled people; and also the assistance, attention, faith and prayers of the Saints, in order that what he was about to say might comfort and bless the hearers. The Lord knows, the speaker said, that there was in his heart a desire to do good and no harm.

The Elders of Israel, of the Church of Jesus Christ, are called to labor for the welfare of the children of men. Their mission is to do good in the world, to impart the knowledge they have, through the testimony of the Holy Spirit, to those who are not acquainted with this work, and to strengthen those who have not received the testimony which the Elders have. It is the duty of every Elder, every man having the holy Priesthood, to learn to understand the doctrines of the Gospel and to seek to know whether they be of God or of men. It is necessary for men who are called to preach the Gospel of Christ to be able to bear testimony that it is the word of God.

[illegible]

An Interesting Meeting.

[illegible] some very important and useful subjects, treating especially upon the many blessings we as a people enjoy, and how grateful we should be for the many beautiful structures in which to worship the Lord; for the ability to hear and understand the truth; for the peace and prosperity that have attended the people of God; for the associations of kindred and family ties; for Holy Temples and the blessings received therein, and the union of our young among those who have been reared under the holy teachings of truth and are born in the Priesthood; for the protection that has attended us and the union in the Church that God has not permitted to be broken up or this people destroyed; how grateful we should be for the bounteous crops and abundant harvest, and prosperous seasons; the delightful climate—the best in the world—and for the silent promptings within us that by repentance we may have our sins forgiven; that there is hope for all, except the sons of perdition, and it usually takes men with greater light than we have before they can become such.

The speaker dwelt at some length upon the blessings and mercies of the Lord unto us as a people. Then referred to the subject of prayer and the keeping in every ward a journal of important events, remarks, meetings, etc., that the historian of the future may have no difficulty in securing correct data when needed.

Brother Lyman very forcibly laid before the people the importance of short, terse prayers—prayers that would reach the heavens, prayers to the point; for the Lord will hear short prayers that are expressive of our thoughts and desires and not so use superfluous words and the too frequent use of Jehovah's name. The speaker delivered a convincing and important discourse upon the general duties of the Saints, and closed with a powerful testimony of the truth of the work.

Following Brother Lyman, Prest. C. I. Robinson of Mexico, spoke upon his labors among the Pima and Papago Indians, the great increase in education among them, the hundreds of baptisms and the many proofs of the authenticity of the Book of Mormon as shown in the relics and scientific works and remains of skilful engineering, etc. There was an excellent spirit prevailing and the people were greatly blessed and encouraged.

Mr. Crouch was temporarily blinded by the brilliancy of the electric flashes. Dr. Richards was on the car at the time and he made out a prescription for Mr. Crouch which was filled at a Main street drug store, and used with beneficial effect. It was a narrow escape.

The experience of Mr. Crouch should prove a warning to people to keep off of the platforms.

A POINT OF THEOLOGY.

Dr. Green on the Verbal Inspiration Theory.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 12.—Rev. Dr. Green, senior professor of the theological seminary and moderator of the last general assembly, who is, perhaps, the most profound biblical student and opposed to the revision of the Confession of faith, preached yesterday before the college students and, in the course of his sermon, after reviewing his well known arguments for the verbal inspiration of the Scriptures, said: "The question is, as to the general trustworthiness of the Bible, can we accept the Old Testament at all, if it is full of false statements in historical facts, which are not incidental but essential? If its stories and miracles are emanations of a heated, oriental brain, and the prophets were the drivers of the people; if the human history contained in the Bible is untrue, can we accept as true the statements for which it is the only authority, concerning God? This is the point for which we are fighting. Not as to the mere verbal inaccuracy, but as to the broad truthfulness and trustworthiness of the Bible against the destructive criticism which throws wide open the gate which would lead us down into self-seeking rationalism."
