NAMES OF THE EXHIBITORS,

Also of the Men, Women and Firms who Have Worked to Make the Exhibition What it is.

There is much more to be seen at the Fair than the bare mention of the exhibits might imply. There is the good luck of time and the change away from the drudgery, will mean much that would be valuable to them in the regular course of their business calling.

In all departments good showings are made and the men and women who are responsible for it are deserving of much credit.

The entries by departments are as follows:

DEPARTMENT A.

Horses—Richard Fairbourne, superintendent. The horse exhibit will be interesting to the lover of the blooded horse. Thomas G. Smith's Percheron stallion, Dave, is a superb animal, and will undoubtedly prove the main attraction at the Fair. Mr. Smith also has a heavy weight mare of the parts, and a fine foal of 17 to her side.

The Smith exhibit of Shires is good, and T. Tanner has a Clydesdale stallion, rather small, but of most excellent frame. Joseph F. Smith's Percheron stallion, Dandy, is a superb animal, and will undoubtedly prove the main attraction at the Fair. Mr. Smith also has a heavy weight mare of the parts, and a fine foal at
