THE DURRANT STORY

Alleged Admissions of Guilt Made to a Girl Reporter.

WHO TELLS ALL TO PROSECUTION.

The Mysterious Envelope—A Note in the Belfry—The Body of Blanche Lamont.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—Now that Durrant has told his story on the witness stand, and has made answers to all the accusations implied by the cross-questions of the prosecution, an impression exists among those who have watched the trial closely that there is something to come which will, perhaps, have more effect on the minds of the jurymen as regards the guilt or innocence of the defendant than anything that has gone before.

This feeling is due to the confidence with which District Attorney Barnes cast a series of startling questions relating to a conversation held by Durrant with a newspaper reporter, Miss Carrie Cunningham, at the county jail within the past week, and also touching on the address and indorsement of a certain envelope which may or may not have contained a confession. The question implied full knowledge on the part of Barnes, and it was evident that when the proper time came testimony would be produced to contradict the denials of the prisoner.

When the prosecution's witnesses are put on the stand, they will relate the particular words of a conversation that bordered on a confession. They will seek to prove that this man, who has been almost as silent as a dead man for six months, opened his mouth and talked of matters touching his very existence, and at the very day and hour when it was almost important for him to maintain silence. These witnesses will seek to show by their testimony that Durrant made admissions which destroy the whole fabric of the defense.

These alleged admissions are taken by the prosecution as coming from the one person on earth who knows all that occurred beneath the belfry of the Emmanuel Baptist church on that afternoon of April 3rd.

The record of what passed at the county jail between Miss Cunningham and Durrant is thus told by the prosecution, which is in possession of the full facts:

"On the evening of September 22nd Miss Cunningham visited Durrant at the county jail, and during the course of their conversation, Durrant showed her a small envelope, which bore the following address and endorsement: 'Messrs. Dickinson and Dunprey. To be opened in case I am convicted. To be returned to me in case I am acquitted.'

"Durrant told the young lady that the envelope contained a complete statement of all that occurred at the Emmanuel Baptist church on the afternoon of April 3rd. He said it had been written in order that his attorneys might know the facts in the event of his being convicted of the murder of Blanche Lamont.

"On the following evening, September 23rd, Miss Cunningham again visited Durrant at the county jail, and was there shown a large envelope, addressed like the other and smaller one. Durrant told her that the contents of the larger envelope had become jammed up, and that he had transferred the written statement to the larger envelope.

"On the morning of October 5th, Miss Cunningham held a conversation with Durrant at the county jail, and during the course of that conversation, and in answer to questions asked him by the young lady, he said that about 5 o'clock on the afternoon of April 3rd he ascended to the space between the ceiling and the roof of the Emmanuel Baptist church for the purpose of fixing one of the gas burners. While at work he heard a noise which at once attracted his attention. It seemed to come from that part of the building where the belfry is situated. He walked along in the direction from whence the sound came, and peered through the opening that connects the space above the ceiling with the interior of the belfry tower. While in this position he saw the body of Blanche Lamont lying on the second landing of the belfry stairs. He repeated the details of the circumstances, and added that Blanche Lamont was murdered on the second landing of the belfry stairs. Miss Cunningham then said: 'Oh, you! it was from the second landing of the stairs that the blood dripped down and stained the cloth-covered picture frame on the floor below.' Durrant replied that there was no blood on the cover of the picture frame, as we have had the stains analyzed and find they were made by water, not blood.'"

An official inspection was made of the cloth-covered picture frame referred to as being stained with blood. This inspection revealed the fact that a piece of the cloth cover, one inch by two inches in size, had been cut from the frame in the center of one of the largest clotches or stains. As this was not done by the prosecution, the inference is drawn that it was drawn by some one interested in the defense, and that it was for the purpose intended by Durrant's alleged statement regarding the analysis.

Died Poor.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Joseph Nesbitt, who, it is claimed, was at one time worth one million dollars and part owner in the famous Anaconda and Bonanza mines, was found dead in bed in a cheap lodging house in this city this morning.

Nesbitt has been in Chicago for some time, and lately has been known as "Hype Jo," from the fact that he is habitually addicted to the use of cocaine and morphine. It is said that Nesbitt lost his fortune at the gaming table.

Shooting Affray with Fatal Effects.

ATOONA, Mo., Oct. 13.—A shooting affray, in which two men were probably fatally wounded and a third man seriously injured, occurred here this evening. The trouble occurred at the house of Louis Jones, whose married daughter, Sarah, who is living apart from her husband, appeared at the house, in company with Andy Alexander, and demanded her personal effects. The Jones family refused to give the woman her things, and a quarrel and a fight followed when they attempted to prevent her leaving the house with young Alexander. During the scuffle Alexander drew a revolver and used it on Thomas Jones, the woman's brother, and Louis Jones, her father. Louis Jones also used his gun, and succeeded in putting two bullets into young Alexander's neck and another penetrated the forehead just above the temple and entered the brain. Alexander cannot live. A bullet passed through Tom Jones's body, entering on the right side below the ribs and coming out at the back. Old man Jones was shot in the mouth. All of his teeth were knocked out. The woman was not injured.

Letter From Walter.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 13.—Charles T. Maxwell, a colored medical student in this city, has received a letter from ex-Consul John J. Weller. The letter is dated "Maison Centrale de Clairvaux, France, September 8th."

After thanking Mr. Maxwell for expressions of sympathy contained in a letter he had written to the imprisoned man, Mr. Waller said:

"It gives me great pleasure to know that I have the sympathy and support of the American people, who are using every honorable means and endeavor to secure me my liberty, which is an American is dearer for than life. I am a victim of circumstances, and whether I shall finally receive justice at the hands of the French people, or perish in a foreign prison by virtue of a hasty conviction rendered by a court-martial in the heat of excitement, rests with God and the American people, in whose actions and righteous judgment I have the most implicit confidence. That it is the desire or the intention of the French, as a government, to do me injustice, I do not for a moment believe. I am entombed in the knowledge of the fact that the American people, true now, as always, to their long-established creed and numerous precedents touching the protection of American citizens abroad, will not permit my injustice to be inflicted upon one of their citizens by a foreign nation, no matter now humble be that citizen.

President Cleveland's Trip.

GREENWICH DEPOT, Conn., Oct. 13. President Cleveland arrived on the yacht Oneida at 8 o'clock last evening. They were landed at Tarlen Hard dock. They were driven to Mr. E. C. Benedict's house. This morning at 8:30 they were driven again to the dock, where they boarded the Oneida and steamed off.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The yacht Oneida, having on board President Cleveland, dropped anchor this morning at 10 o'clock at the New York Yacht club anchorage ground, at the foot of East Twenty-sixth street. Mr. Cleveland got in a small boat and was rowed ashore.

He then entered a carriage which stood waiting and was rapidly whirled to the residence of his family physician, Dr. Joseph Bryant, 54 West Thirtieth street, where the President took dinner with the doctor and his family, and spent an hour or two chatting with Dr. Bryant.

At 4 o'clock the cab carrying Mr. Cleveland returned to the pier. The President was immediately taken on board the yacht and she steamed out to the south. The Oneida came to anchor in the lower bay at 8:16 p.m.

OVATION TO SECRETARY CARLISLE

Causes of the Depression—One of Them Now Removed.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—The meeting of the Massachusetts Reform club at the Vendome tonight was a tremendous ovation to Secretary Carlisle, and his speech on the finances of the government under the present administration was listened to with the greatest interest. The secretary, on his arrival in the city, was welcomed by the dinner committee of the club and was escorted to the hotel, where a reception was tendered to him by the officers of the club. An hour was spent in general introduction and handshaking, and shortly after 7 o'clock those present filed into the large banquet room.

At the conclusion of the banquet President Hale rapped for order.

Mr. Hale read several letters of regret from prominent people from all over the country. The principal guest of the evening was then introduced. He was received with three cheers, led by C. Austin Browne.

Secretary Carlisle began by asserting that the business men of Boston needed no instruction upon the subject of "sound currency." He said they deserved the thanks of the whole country for having put aside their party politics in their honest efforts during the past two or three years to uphold the administration at Washington, and help sustain the credit and honor of the government, and prevent the depreciation of its currency. He spoke of the action of the Boston bankers, who, at a critical period in the business affairs of the country, almost emptied their vaults of gold by depositing $4,000,000 in the treasury to replenish the vanishing reserve, and now at a later date, when the credit of the public credit were menacing, the administration for its conduct of our finances, the Boston chamber of commerce assembled at a special meeting and unanimously called upon the senators and representatives from Massachusetts to lay aside all questions of party advantage and assist in the work of restoring public confidence."

He said this action had been fully appreciated at Washington and not wholly unexpected.

Continuing, he said: "The mere apprehension that our currency might be debased by the inability of the government to continue the policy of redeeming its old options in gold has already produced one of the greatest financial disturbances that ever occurred in our history, and resulted in the loss of thousands of millions of dollars to our people. There were doubtless other causes contributing to this result, but this was the most potent one in the country, and without it we should not have suffered more than the other parts of the world from the general depression.

"Fortunately, one of the causes which contributed largely to produce a feeling of distrust and apprehension, and which very greatly intensified, dwelling at all the stages of our long financial struggle has substantially ceased to exert any influence over the minds of the people here or abroad. I mean the persistent and aggressive agitation in favor of the free coinage of legal tender silver, which for a long time seriously threatened to revolutionize our monetary system and reduce our entire volume of currency to about half its present value. I do not mean to assert that there was ever a time when there was real danger that this would be done, but there were times when the sentiment in its favor was so strong and so aggressive in its character that there were at least reasonable grounds for the fear that it might be accomplished."

FOR EX-CONFEDERATES.

All Propositions to Admit Them to National Soldiers' Homes.

TACOMA, Wash., Oct. 13.—At the regular meeting of Custer post No. 6, G. A. R., of this city, notice was given of a resolution to be introduced at the next regular meeting which will attract widespread attention. At the national encampment held at Pittsburg in 1894, and at the last encampment held in Louisville, the question was mooted, but Custer post of this city is the first organization in the United States ever asked to take formal notice of the matter.

George Hazlward, a well-known politician and a member of the Custer post, gave notice that he would, next Saturday night, offer a resolution providing that Custer post support a committee of five to memorialize Congress for the passage of a law some way with the distinction between Federal and Confederate veterans so far as relates to their admission to national soldiers' homes; in short, that deserving ex-Confederate soldiers be admitted to national soldiers' homes on the same basis as ex-Union soldiers.

OPPOSED TO FUSION.

Objections by New York's Good Government Committee.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—The executive committee of the good government club issued an address today setting forth their reasons for opposing the fusion ticket. They say that if the committee of fifty had effected a union on a non-partisan platform in support of non-political candidates, it would have been acceptable to them. The address continues:

"The committee of fifty, disregarding the resolution under which it was appointed, bought from the leaders of the Republicans and from the state Democracy, by promises of money and moral support, certain desirable judicial nominations. The other places on the ticket they proceeded to the party spoils.

"So long as the honorable and wealthy men of this city are willing to lend the weight of their names and the power of their resources to such traffic, in an attempt to purchase the government from the politicians, we shall have corruption, by whatever party name it may be called."

The object of the fusion ticket is said to be the "choice of the evils," one which was used in 1890 to gain support for the People's Municipal League, and because of which 30,000 voters stayed away from the polls. Says the address:

"For people of the city cannot close their eyes to the fact that the committee of fifty has made an alliance with Platt. They remember last winter that Platt's machine refused to grant us police reform, defeated all efforts to reform the public schools, derided and repudiated the very principle of civil service reform which Republican representatives had submitted to the consideration of the state, and rejecting a simple and effective ballot law, imposes upon you a law framed to disenfranchise independent voters and facilitate bribery at the polls."

PRINCESS INSANE.

Sad Fate of a Russian Court Lady in Exile.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—A beautiful young Russian princess, Vera Kakoiaff, who has been living in exile with her husband here, is insane and is confined in Bellevue hospital. Prince Kakoiaff, her husband, who belongs to a prominent family in Poltava, Russia, was exiled from his native town two years ago, on account of connection with the nihilists. His wife followed him a few months later. They rented rooms in the house of Dr. J. J. Sullivan, president of the Vigilance league.

The prince made several incidental attempts to obtain employment. The remittances he received from home barely supported him and his wife, and at last ceased. The real account due, but Mr. Dr. Livan, known as Kakoiaff's nicary, was intent with him and allowed him to remain his room. According to the doctor, the couple have frequently gone two or three days without food, being too proud to beg of let their neighbors know of their unfortunate condition. The young wife a few days ago began to show signs of insanity. She began to act strangely, and at last grew so demonstrative that her husband was reluctantly induced to agree to her removal to the hospital.

Don Dickinson's Diplomatic Terms.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Don M. Dickinson is in Washington with a committee to look after the interests of Michigan in securing more rapid mail service. Mr. Dickinson is said to have spoken of recently as the one referred to by Sir Lionel Sackville West in his pamphlet as the member of Mr. Cleveland's cabinet responsible for the minister's summary dismissal. Mr. Dickinson was asked today as to the facts in the case. He said:

"As the fact did occur when I was a member of the cabinet, I do not feel at liberty to discuss it. But as to Sir Lionel Sackville West, I have no hesitation in saying that he is now, and always has been, an infernal ass."

Mr. Dickinson was asked for his views on Venezuela and Cuba, as it has been stated of late that he represented an advanced position on these questions among the leaders of his party. He said he did not care to go into the matter at length. The developments of no distant day would speak more eloquently than words. He referred to the fact that Daniel Webster had recognized the independence of Greece many years before that country had actually secured complete independence, and in those days Webster had been accused of "flagrancy."

The Perfect Hot Air Blast Furnace

The only furnace ever constructed having an air heating chamber inside the combustion chamber, supplying the fire with oxygen (or air) heated to a temperature of from 800 to 1500 degrees. When it is considered that flame cannot exist under 800 degrees of heat, the importance of heating the air to this point before it comes in contact with the burning fuel, will be apparent to every thinking person. The result is an almost perfect combustion of the gases and escaping carbon, which by all other methods are allowed to pass off into the chimney in the form of black smoke. We warrant this furnace to produce as good results from one ton of soft coal as any other furnace with one ton of hard coal. Experienced furnace man in charge of this department.

Estimates for heating residences, schools and public buildings, cheerfully furnished.

THE KING SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

Reader, did you ever take SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR, the "King of Liver Medicines?" Everybody needs a liver remedy. It is a sluggish or diseased liver that impairs digestion and causes constipation, when the waste that should be carried off remains in the body and poisons the whole system. That dull, heavy feeling is due to a torpid liver. Biliousness, Headache, Malaria and Indigestion are all liver diseases. Keep the liver active by an occasional dose of Simmons Liver Regulator and you'll get rid of these troubles, and give tone to the whole system. For a laxative Simmons Liver Regulator is BETTER THAN PILLS. It does not gripe, nor weaken, but greatly refreshes and strengthens.
