friends being on hand, the professor succeeded in securing one or two important amendments to the report. In the course of the discussion he offered a substitute which was adopted, as follows: "Infants dying in infancy and other persons incapable of being called by the ministry of the Word, are regenerated and saved by Christ through the Spirit, which worketh when and where and how He pleaseth; also other persons who have not been called by the ministry of the Word." Section 1 was amended to read: "These persons who are called by the ministry of the Word and yet resist the Holy Spirit and never truly come to Christ, cannot be saved; neither is there salvation in any other way than by Christ, truth and the Spirit." Further consideration was postponed for a week.

A Resolution Against Secretary Crawford.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 16.—The Supreme Court today issued a peremptory court mandamus against Secretary Crawford enjoining him to sign and attest the commission of Dartowee, appointed United States Senator by Governor Fleming. The writ is returnable.

Advices from Alaska.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—A special from Port Townsend, Wash., says advices from Alaska state the people up there are much incensed because Congress has not taken notice of their desire for a proper Territorial government. The Alaskan newspaper in a recent issue, suggests in view of the injurious interest from appointive officers under successive administrations that the people assemble in convention, prepare a bill for a Territorial reform government, and demand its approval by Congress. If Congress refuses to pass it, unless the motto "Alaska for Alaskans," sinks their own judicial officers, and resist all processes emanating from officers whose tenure of office is under the organic act.

Indians Dissatisfied.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 16.—Acting Indian Commissioner Bell has telegram from Captain Pearly, acting agent at Pine Ridge, reporting the arrival of Bear Eagle's party, in his opinion they mean no mischief. They express discontent with the treatment at their agency. He has advised them to return and make an application for transfer. He says that discontent is manifested by all the visitors from Cheyenne River agency and asks that it be looked into.

Dishonest Mayors.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 16.—Mayor Wilson, who is charged with failing to account for large sums of the city's money, and ex-Mayor Ferguson, tonight questioned the jurisdiction of the select council committee. The committee then adopted resolutions requesting the council to have the city solicitor enter criminal information against both men.

The President Goes Hunting.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—The President left here this afternoon for Benjes, Md., where he will spend two or three days duck shooting. He is accompanied by ex-Senator Sewall of New Jersey.

Poisoned Whisky.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 16.—An American special from Milan, Tenn., says: Frank Gallrath, a farmer, invited several neighbors to a feast at his house the other night. The company drank freely from a jug of whisky and in a short time were taken violently ill. In spite of the exertions of a physician three of the men died. How the whisky was poisoned has not been learned.

A Vessel Ashore.

SELKIRK, Ont., Nov. 16.—The schooner "Montcalm" of Toledo, was driven on the rocks half a mile below Selkirk, on Lake Erie, where she now lies a total wreck. One of the crew came to shore, the others, five in number, are still on the wrecked vessel.

Fighting Editors Arrested.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 16.—H. V. Sevier, editor of the Telegram, and Benjamin Harrison, editor of the Standard, were arrested today by the sheriff, on a peace warrant, sworn out on information that they were about to fight a duel. Both men were starting out when seized.

Destroyed by Fire.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16.—The Pacific Drying Works, Spaulding's Carpet factory and three frame dwellings were destroyed by fire today. One man was burned to death in the carpet works, but it is believed all escaped from the dye works. Losses, $50,000.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Lisbon, Nov. 16.—The Republicans were badly defeated in yesterday's elections.

Belgrade, Nov. 16.—Ex-King Milan has signed a renunciation of all his legal and constitutional rights in Servia.

London, Nov. 16.—This evening Paris advices state that the Bourse has improved on repurchases.

London, Nov. 16.—The tone of the Stock Exchange today has been depressed. Little business was done and the greater portion of this consisted in tout transactions. Russian securities dropped one point, South American securities, however, are firmer.

London, Nov. 16.—At Ditchfield-with-Crofton, this morning, a woman murdered her three little girls by cutting their throats and then committed suicide by cutting her own throat.

Paris, Nov. 16.—General Charles Nicolas La Cretelle, grand officer of the Legion of Honor, is dead.

Paris, Nov. 16.—The trial opened at Bailigneles today of Mme. Thomas, an abortionist, and fifty-three women who had submitted to criminal operations at her hands. Mme. Thomas carried on her nefarious business for twenty-three years. A number of deaths were caused by her work.

Paris, Nov. 16.—The Chamber of Deputies, after a long debate today, approved the tariff of 25 francs on dried meats fixed by the Senate. The minister of commerce promised an effective surveillance over the imports at the expense of the importers.

Rome, Nov. 16.—The International Peace Congress today approved the proposition that intimacy and treaties be made permanent. The proposition to hold an international arbitration tribunal at Chicago in 1893 was postponed. A resolution was drafted inviting the European governments to adopt international disputes to arbitrators. The next congress will be held at Berne.

A SINGULAR OFFENSE.

An American Imprisoned in Chili Six Months for Crossing His Legs.

The charges that are made against the Chilian government of deportation, etc., recall a story told by Colonel Thomas H. Nelson after his return from Chili, where he represented the government as minister under the administration of Abraham Lincoln. He said:

"On the day after my arrival at Santiago, the capital of Chili, I received a message from an American then in jail at that place, who desired to see me as early as convenient. I called at once, and found a man who looked not unlike Joe Jefferson when he made up as Rip Van Winkle. He said his name was Story, that he was a son of the late Associate Justice Story, of the supreme court of the United States, author of the 'Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States,' as well as a brother of W. W. Story, the sculptor and poet.

"He said he had been in that place six months, which was by no means inviting, and all of his efforts to find out why he was apprehended or to secure a hearing had been without avail. He desired my assistance. I called at once upon the minister of foreign affairs and requested some information as to the cause of Mr. Story's imprisonment.

"The minister had never heard of the case, but said as I was to be 'presented' tomorrow he would inquire into the case, and by the time I was installed as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary he would take up the case with me. Imagine my surprise on the day following to learn that my countryman had been charged with 'contempt of court,' and that his 'contempt' consisted of entering the supreme court and seating himself within the bar, when he had crossed his legs and looked directly at the judges.' I said: 'There could have been no contempt intended. It is an American characteristic.'

"When I entered the private room of President Lincoln to take my final leave previous to my departure for this city, my post of duty, I found the president in a chair tilted back, with the middle of his back on the edge of the seat of the chair and his legs tied. It seemed to me, in a double bowknot on the marble mantel. I assure you that, has been a great mistake made by some one.

"The case was brought to the attention of the court, explanations were made and apologies accepted. The chief justice of the court then entertained Mr. Story, who, by the way, was as able as well as a very accomplished gentleman. He lived and died in Santiago, having gone there for his health."—Indianapolis News.

How England Could Take Chicago.

Our lake frontier is a sobweb. No land defenses of such towns as Chicago, situated on the shore itself, could save them from bombardment. The best army could not protect Chicago against a modern or modern fleet. The shipping and commerce of the lakes is attractive. The goods afloat and ashore suffice to pay a huge war indemnity. They are all at the mercy of an English flotilla. Some people imagine that modern war has been humanized out of such measures as bombardment. But Paris was bombarded in 1870; so was Strasburg, and its beautiful cathedral spire was seriously injured. War has no esthetic maxims. The occupation of a seaport leaves no alternative but submission and the payment of a heavy ransom—or bombardment. In a town like Chicago this would be followed by fire, and we all remember the $200,000,000 lost in the fire of 1871.—Col. T. J. Dodge in Forum.

Decay in the Mammoth Cave.

Scavengers constitute a large part of the population of caverns. Carcinoroue beetles are plentiful, particularly in those places where parties take lunch. Such replacements of tourists accumulate in spots in the Mammoth cave necessarily by cart loads, but, though there is so much moisture, decomposition progresses so slowly that the offal is not offensive. The processes of decay seem to be accomplished chiefly by a new fungi. It is said that meat hung up in the mouth of one of these caverns remains fresh for a long time, and it is surmised that the bacteria which cause things to become putrid are probably rare in the underground atmosphere.—Washington Star.

When the Dutch Owned the Nutmegs.

At one time no one but a citizen of the Netherlands, officially licensed, could own a nutmeg plantation. But this policy could not long be enforced against the interests of commerce. The tree is now cultivated in India, Jamaica, Trinidad and Brazil. The nutmeg is liable to the attacks of a kind of beetle, hence a coating of lime is generally given to the nut, to protect it from the ravages of the insect. The tree bears fruit the whole year round, but the chief harvest time comes in November.—Foods and Beverages.

Wanted the Name of the Place.

A Third avenue train arrived at Chatham square, and the conductor shouted forth some unintelligible name—"Shakintosh" or something like that.

"Beg pardon," said a passenger to the conductor, "do you speak English?"

"Yass."

"Can you tell me, then, what place this is?"—Texas Siftings.

It is remarked of the Chesapeake and all American cruises that they bear long carriage with less harm than any that goes on other shores. Our cities, of course, as everybody knows, is the seine of months which are spoiled without the fit.

In Glasgow, Scotland, a company pays for the privilege of collecting the smoke from a number of blast furnaces. The smoke is passed through several miles of wrought iron tubing, and yields a profitable product of oil.

SHEEP IN THE NORTHWEST.

The Winter Care Recommended by a South Dakota Farmer.

If we had brought sheep with us first come to Dakota instead of high priced machinery, there would have been but few mortgage sales; the population would have been greatly increased and given evidence of prosperity and contentment. It is well that the farmers are controlling to great an interest in sheep as they are at this time.

The farmers are beginning to realize that without irrigation the sheep industry promises far better results than any other industry.

Intensive will not interfere with the raising of sheep; thirty bushels of wheat per acre and fifty of corn, and the sheep industry will make Dakota a "land flowing with milk and honey."

It is not necessary to tell you, who have been long engaged in the business, how to take care of sheep, but to those who have had but little experience with them a few suggestions may be profitable.

Sheep should have a good barn, with a roof that will turn rain, with ventilation at the top. A straw or hay roof is a poor covering, as it lets in the snow and rain, making the ground damp, upon which the sheep are compelled to lie, which is not good for their health.

They should not be crowded, but have ample room, and a variety of food both soft and water. With such management a flock will go through the winter in good condition. Some persons have the impression that sheep will live and on the prairie winter if there be no snow upon the ground, without any other feed. Possibly they may live, but that is not all the flock master wants, his interest is in keeping the sheep in a thriving condition to obtain the best results. It is right to let the sheep you set in good weather, but in winter they should have a feed of good light hay or millet before they are turned out, or there will be some poor ewes in the spring, having lost little milk for their lambs. There is no economy in keeping old sheep, as they take much of your time, and eat the hoes of your hook. Sell them to the butcher—sell to your neighbor who wishes to engage in the business—for it is probable that when spring comes he will have as many sheep pets as he has sheep.

At lambing time the shepherd should be with his sheep, if he expects to realize the greatest profit from them.

With a love for the business and good management, any person should succeed in sheep raising in Dakota, as they are less liable to disease and will crow heavier fleeces than the sheep in the eastern states. Most all breeds of sheep are profitable, but in my opinion good mutton sheep, with their medium wool, for which there seems to be the greatest demand, would be the most profitable. It is to the people of the United States are not mutton eating people, and are not likely to be until they are furnished with a mutton breed of sheep. The Shropshire is a mutton sheep, furnishes mutton in weak and, will be a profitable breed to raise.—Address by C. A. Fowler.

Winter Henhouse.

A correspondent residing in Michigan sends to The Rural New Yorker the following diagram and description of a simple and effective poultry house for cold weather:

WINTER HENHOUSE.

I send a ground plan of a good winter henery now accommodating about seventy hens. The entire building rests on a stone wall built to the level of the ground. The shaded places in the outline represent doors, and the We are for windows. The laying room has roots on the floor around next to the wall. The roosting room has movable roosts, so that cleaning is a small job. All the floors are of matched lumber, and the entire building is lathed and plastered.

The floor of the feeding room is covered with fine sand and fine gravel, on which the morning mash of bran is thrown. There is a dustroom 8 by 10 feet, and the rest of the floor in the east wing is littered with straw and cut hay for dust baths, wheat, etc., are fed. The places marked C are chimneys, and a fire is kept in the feeding room in extremely cold weather. This building has been in use for three years and has given entire satisfaction.

An Uncertain Business.

Sword fishing is very uncertain. Sometimes half a dozen fish will be secured in a day or two and again a vessel will cruise about for a week without even seeing one. The fish are marketed whenever a face is obtained or it is necessary to make a port for ice or provisions.

The price which the fishermen receive is ridiculously small, ranging from 1 to 7 1-2 cents per pound. The latter sum is rarely reached, however. I have seen thousands of pounds sold at two cents when the demand was good and at a time when the retail price was eighteen cents a pound.—New York Telegram.

Catarrh
Is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the disease, and effects a permanent cure. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a remedy for catarrh when other preparations had failed.
Sufferer's Feeling.
"I will say I have been troubled for several years with that severe disagreeable disease, catarrh. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla with the very best results. It cured me of this continual dropping in my throat, and stopped my hacking. My son also helped his mother, who has taken it for rheumatism of a kind of both and kidney trouble." MRS. P. D.
