THE CARTER ARMY.

The Rio Grande Western Will Not Haul It for Love or Money.

TO START FROM MURRAY TO-DAY.

Hope That the Men Will Get a Chance Tomorrow to Steal a Ride Eastward.

About 200 men, partially half of them "hobos" or tramps, gathered on the vacant corner opposite the Metropolitan hotel on Third South street at 12 o'clock today in anticipation of the final report of the committee to make the committee's efforts to get the Rio Grande Western to haul the Carter wing of the army to Denver for nothing. There was considerable consolidation of the railway company for going back on its promise to take the army to Denver for $1,000, but generally the assemblage was peaceful.

At 12:30 the committee expected—L. Johnson and J. R. Meaks—had not arrived, but John Sparks here late night and the men crowded around him. He announced that up to the present the committee had been unsuccessful in its negotiations with the R. G. W., the officials of which had said they would not have the army for love or money. They would be made to a flat of $1,000 each (about 50 cents) and would not haul the men. Sparks further said the committee had consulted the ladies' general relief committee, who would wait on the railway again, and it was understood that tomorrow a train would come along so that the army at Murray could steal it, and thus get to the East. He also stated that the committee would report at 1 p. m. or as soon thereafter as possible.

At 12:45 "General" Carter arrived from Murray and Sparks, who had been commissioned for records by the "General" (colonel) army, came up and received the report. He mingled among the men, talking to them about their prospects, but little data was added to the report. The men came in the view of Murray as in good spirits and anxious to start the journey soon tonight.

Two men at Murray complain that they are very short of chow.

At half past one the afternoon street and people had scattered. The representatives of the "General" had meanwhile been busy, nearly a hundred names concerned. All of the committee which had been working with the railway officials had been in an adjoining room from that quarter. The railway officials had positively said that no more could stay there where they were located in order to keep down trouble. The men were called out at intervals to receive reports of progress from committee.

At 1:45 p. m. General Carter mounted an impromptu platform and began to address the crowd, which consistently cheered the speaker. He explained that he was working as hard for the men as he had worked for his own men, and therefore had prepared his speech which he would read.

The address, which was evidently prepared for the evening, was far before the reporter, but the "General" failed to forward the card below for that, and it arriving, so the News cannot accommodate him with giving it in full. He essayed pathos in some places and courage in others, became sonorous at times, and tried to be prophetic at other times, but was his address confined to the typewritten copy. He took occasion to call the Herald a liar, and of course named the pinkerton. He thanked the people of Salt Lake who had been generous, and gave the railroads, the Mayor and the Governor fits. In conclusion he gave the morning, in conclusion, as to the negotiations with the railroad, that the R. G. W. had offered to carry the army to Grand Junction for $500, to Denver for $1,000, to Kansas city for $1,500; the $1,000 offer had been accepted, and the Governor, Mayor and leading Democrats had gone to the railway officials, who went back on their agreement, and were thus guilty of "the most scurvy deed ever perpetrated on the people."

He was followed by a loud applause, but the speech of the latter overlooked nothing that was now on the orders.

WILL NOT WORK.

At the close of his speech, Carter announced that the army would quite work, as it was on its second journey. They would have started at 2 o'clock but for his being delayed in town. He said many of them were almost barefoot.

The campaign-plan tonight will be at Bingham Junction, four miles beyond Murray.

ON THE MOVE.

MURRAY, May 3.—The Carter army began breaking camp at 3 o'clock, and are now on the way to Bingham Junction.

Guide Class Club.

The "Guide Class Club" will hold its regular meeting on Friday, May 4th, at 3 p. m., at the Ladies' Institute College.

AMANDA DYER, President.

Guide Class Sociable.

The Guide Class sociable held in the Fourteenth ward society room last evening was a thorough success, both socially and financially, and great credit is due to Sister Sarah Dougall and their aids, who arranged the whole affair. The program was excellently rendered. The number in which the young ladies handled cowbells, always a delightful feature, was encored, and the ladies responded with a very pretty song. The original poem by Alice M. Smith was highly appreciated. The presence of President Woodruff and President Joseph F. Smith, and Elders Snow, Lyman and Grant, of the Quorum of the Apostles, repelled with several of the leading brethren, added much to the interest of the entertainment. President Woodruff and Smith expressed themselves as much pleased with the show in the school, and gave some very valuable instruction. The music of the evening which especially pleased President Woodruff was the violin solo of the evil child by instrumental from the very equipment writings.

President E. S. Taylor addressed the assembly and thanked the young Tabernacle and Branch for their hearty efforts to make the show a success.

The presentation of floral offerings to Brethren Snow and Thomas, and to President Nellie C. Taylor, and a similar offering to the medically United Emma Richards, with a very neat speech by Elder Minnie James, were an enjoyable feature, and the successful report furnished at the close was highly appreciated. Altogether the night was very pleasantly spent. E. G.

OGDEN.

OGDEN, UTAH, MAY 2, 1894.

BE FROZE TO DEATH.

The Body Found Near Dyke Junction is E. M. Vance.

Yesterday Coroner Allen went to where the remains of the dead man had been found the day before and had them conveyed to the city and taken to the city cemetery by Undertaker Lindquist. Papers were found on the body which proved the dead man to be E. M. Vance and a resident of Ogden. He was well dressed and apparently about thirty-five years of age, but could not otherwise be recognized as the body was the badly decomposed. The papers contained $35 in greenbacks as well as a note drawn at Idaho Falls, November 1, 1892, in favor of E. M. Vance and signed by M. C. Vance for $25.

The supposition of the coroner is that the man was traveling west and stopped over here with the intention of remaining a few days, and, as is often the case with men in his plight, took a run up the hill and when resuming the point where the body was found had sat down to rest and, come to death, as the coat was tightly buttoned about him, indicating that he had been cold. Near the body were found a five cent piece and a lead pencil.

Police Items.

Two colored women, Alice Adams and Ida Gassy, were before Justice Bagley yesterday and paid a fine of $5 each for being in color. Fred Gassy, who started, was fined $15 on the same charge, the charge preferred by Clara Taylor.

George Wicks was confined in jail two days for vagrancy and John Grant was remanded in jail for ten days for arraigning of the men of the "hot stuff" and getting drunk.

John Chipp was remanded to jail, where he will linger twenty days for being drunk. John very often makes trouble in Gardner's billiard and pool whisky with the Chinks.

Sales.

Lilian Blackwell, an Irish orphan girl, was yesterday, by order of Judge Minor, committed to the reform school.

All pool tables and chairs in the town now belonging thereto were yesterday seized for the town.

The town commenced work on the road in the canyon yesterday. Two thousand more will be expended on the road this month.

"The Bohemian Girl" will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House.

Wm. H. Rowe, a Salt Lake News writer, was in the Junction yesterday.

Rev. M. Parsons, of the Christian Church, and family arrived in Ogden yesterday from Nebraska.

Hon. Henry Waldmer will honor us in the court opera house on May 14.

About $2,000 will be expended by the Ogden Gas company in the future, since the Ogden river gas is unable and running a mile or two short.

General Superintendent Dinwoodey of the U. P. came up from Salt Lake last night.

A lecture will be given at South Ogden, on Sunday, May 6, by Prof. Stewart of the Utah University.

Superintendent Dinwoodey and Mr. Carter went East on a special this morning.

W. Williams and J. W. Jones were arrested for vagrancy last night.

LOGAN.

LOGAN, UTAH, MAY 2, 1894.

Conference and Council.

The semi-annual conference meeting commenced and finally wound up. Sixteen up to Elders H. H. Blair, Moses Thatcher, of the quorum of Apostles, Seymour B. Young and J. L. Rawlins, of the quorum of the Twelve, and President Wilford Woodruff, H. B. Pierce. The attendance was very large, each meeting being crowded. Interesting addresses were supplied to several thousand people, who listened to the congregation with an unmistakable and earnest manner that will lead to a marked acceptance of the words expressed. The sermons given by the men on Monday evening was nearly as well attended as the meetings were. The sermons were very able, and the people were very much gratified and edified. Elder Young's sermon was especially to Tithing, Law and morality, as to finally prove to God without a peer in the Territory, and the Salt Lake Tabernacle choir. The music in the Opera House orchestra was up to the metropolitan standard and has never made a greater impression. Any special reports Logan may "Go, my Pardner."

Notes and Personals.

The Romney schools at Richmond, Wellsville, Mendon, Hyde Park, Hewins, College and Cornish, will close last Friday, May 4, for the year. All the others are closed or almost so in Cache. The twenty per cent reduction of the tax for the last half-year was refunded to the people.

A runaway team while opening up the down from Wellsville a few weeks ago, made a sudden turn, and the buggy upset, an unlucky hole, and was broken quite a little. The horses were soon relieved from the harness and the buggy was righted, and the man escaped safely.

Frank Earl has loaned Johnson's glove and pedestrian grounds, and is engaged in extensive improvements. Among the attractions will be a bicycle tower of 100 feet. Base balls for horses and bicycles, base ball grounds, trotting and exercises, and a fine dancing hall will be furnished among the attractions offered the pleasure-loving public during the coming summer.

Logan's addition to the Utah National Sugar Beet Co. is now in full blast, and some unmeasurable results. Some one should lose the matter in hand.

ADDITIONAL TELEGRAPH.

The Bimetallic Conference.

LONDON, May 3.—At the morning session of the international bimetallic conference of the Monetary Union, Mr. Wm. H. Wilkerson read a paper on "the effects of the adoption of bimetallism, wage earners, merchants, bankers and investors of all grades, both gold and silver." Mr. Wilkerson's paper was highly appreciated by the delegates, and warmly urged the establishment of an international monetary league. The proposal was unanimously supported.

A PROFESSIONAL PANDOLER.

A pamphlet upon the silver question, just published by the Joseph McKenna, ex-minister of the National Bank of Ireland, is creating a sensation in financial circles and the executive conference. It is devoted to proving that Lord Liverpool's pamphlet in 1821 was simply a ruse, the object being to block the public out of 3d shillings to sixty pounds, thus enabling the new notes. It is added that Lord Liverpool made the dairy gain, not for himself, but for the treasury. Mr. Joseph McKenna argues Lord Liverpool of honorable statesmanship and attributes the fraud to stupidity. The pamphlet contends that when the
