SUNDAY SERVICES.

Mons Morris, Lenz, and President Cannon addressed the people at the Tabernacle.

Stake President Angus M. Cannon presided over the services in the Tabernacle, Sunday afternoon, November 1, 1896.

Choir sang the hymn:

How are Thy servants blest O Lord,
How sure is their defense.

Prayer was offered by Elder Arthur Winter.

Choir sang the hymn:

To couple souls who are one,
Far from the path of peace.

Elder Albert C. Morris who had recently returned from a mission in London was introduced to the congregation by the first speaker. He said that in acting as he had no particular desire to occupy such a position, but being called to it, he craved an interest in the faith and prayers of the brethren and sisters. He had lately been accorded the privilege of filling a mission to the Old World and while abroad had had many experiences which he now valued and appreciated most highly. He felt grieved in his heart to contemplate the condition of the youth of Zion when they entered the missionary field. They found themselves among a strange people and in a strange land, sent out to preach the Gospel—a work of which they often knew very little. The speaker felt that there was no excuse for such a condition of affairs as the young men of Zion had every opportunity to improve their minds with nothing in the Gospel of Christ. He knew that there existed too much carelessness on the minds of the youth of Zion. They would after the pleasures of the world to the great neglect of the work they had to do. Many who had been called upon to perform duties in the Church, very often had found themselves in a sad predicament. Elder Morris had enjoyed his efforts in the missionary field and his desire was to prove faithful and continue in the work to the end that his faith might be strengthened day by day. In closing he urged upon the young people of the Church the necessity of becoming acquainted with the principles of the Gospel, that they might assist in rolling on the work of God.

Elder Daniel J. Lenz, a recently returned missionary from Switzerland, was the next speaker. He said that in occupying a position the same as the one he then occupied he realized more than ever before in his life the importance of it. He realized that persons who in asking to speak in the Saints must have something of the Gospel and its principles before they should speak, belongingly to those present. The principle of obedience was the moving matter in all good government, and without it very little success could be achieved. The speaker had yielded questions to a call made in his two years ago and had gone forth to the mission field, his assignment being the republic of Switzerland. He had his headquarters in Geneva, the home of Calvin, the great reformer. There the latter had many followers, and it was with some difficulty that the Mormon Elders gained certain inroads among them. The Church, however, had some few members in that land, and the prospects were that a good work would be accomplished in the future. Preaching in that part of the country was generally done at the Reunion, where the Elders would be sached to gather around them some six or eight souls who would listen unto their teachings. Not a great deal of freedom was accorded Christian ministers in that part of the earth, and therefore they were not allowed to hold outdoor meetings. Elder Lenz also felt to exhort the young people of Zion to utilize their spare time in acquainting themselves with the principles of the Gospel, that the young men especially to get ready and qualify themselves for future responsibilities.

President George Q. Cannon next addressed the congregation. His remarks were mainly directed to the parents, calling unto their attention the great necessity of raising up their children in the fear and admonition of the Lord. This was a responsibility that rested upon the parents and a neglect of it would cause them to their condemnation in the sight of God. The youth of Zion should be filled and prepared for missionary work. Unless we do this we failed to perform what we should do. We should keep themselves free from the vice and wickedness of the world.

Sister Lizzie Thomas Edward and the choir sang the anthem:

When Thou comest to Thy temple.

Benediction was pronounced by Patriarch John Smith.

SUGGESTIONS FROM GROVER,

In Wayne County, for the Application of Moral and Physical Energy to Home Industry.

Grover, Wayne Co.,
Utah, Nov. 2, 1896.

To the Editors:

An editorial in your evening issue of October 29 last contains a reference to the necessity for the encouragement of our home industry interests. As this is a matter in which I feel the greatest concern, I feel impelled to address you on the subject. A casual visit to any of our settlements will reveal the fact that many of our budding youth are passing a large amount of their time in the most sedentary employment, which is another name for idleness; but they are doing this most unwillingly. As little boys they found some sort of a pastime in the sports and play-games of childhood, but now they desire to get settled, taking away, and taking the corner duties of life. I feel compassionately for the young people, for I realize how many of them feel. Childhood's days come and went, and with their outdoor pastimes and pleasures out as such succeeds year on the scene, a natural longing grew upon them—most emphatically manifesting the development of character. As children they found pastime that was to a measure defined to them as youths, and they now wait, looking askance at the elders or others to lead them.

Educational facilities abound, almost to saturation in our larger towns—but it is of the smaller settlements that I would collect sympathy and help. Some place where school is held but for two terms in the year. How little real, lasting effect has the elevating influence of the school from upon the wonder, when it is effect by three-fifths of the year or almost enforced idleness—boundedly so to the case of those the young to help in raising work, and added to this when the knowledge imparted is of an abstract nature and hence difficult to retain? Our State has come to the front, in sustaining State duties, and we need every alive-minded resident, whether citizen or not, to get on to pushing to the front in helping to discharging the duties of citizenship and credit. Whatever may have been accomplished by our pioneer fathers will not suffice for us, or for the coming generation—except as it may serve for a foundation to build upon. The development of the race, the advancement of the people has whetted the energy—the benefit of the pioneer period and the coming generation are seeking to use for a re-edit of a like character. Are how they ask or it.

In one of our remote settlements in this county, in a quiet, modest farm house, a boy of some thirteen summers is endeavoring alone to study geometry and mechanical drawing and modeling with the aid of some unmistakable tools and with equally inappropriate material, the various farming implements that use wheels and buttings. Here is quite asserting his own right to be heard. In a similar way can be found with a strong predilection for artistic drawing and still again, a natural bent for carved work, and extended observation will substantiate these statements by bringing other gifts to light. The relief from laborious pioneer work undoubtedly has left to these proclivities to fight, and as time passes, the home influences of our remote settlements will still more increasing rate, make manifest that Utah possesses youth with intellectual light of no high an order as any in the world. Yes, and still older ones, for it must not be forgotten that for over fifty years that restless nerve-destroying spirit has been absent from our people, the spirit that has played such havoc in determining the destiny of the world. The struggles for place, the depressing anxiety and agony caused by the failures of the aspires of life. On the contrary there has been peace, quiet and comfort within our borders. The third and fourth generations are now coming fairly upon the scene with mental capacity as ample as any, and with intellectual gifts surpassed by none. With the investigation of subsequent upon rest how can their career no other than eminently satisfactory?

We have the advantage of building upon a solid foundation. We have cast the task before us of counteracting what may be termed intellectual warping, but free from prejudice, full of health, with sound minds in sound bodies, the labor of cultivating the talents of the youth of Utah is one of which education may well be proud, seeing that so large a percentage of solid permanent benefit must follow.

In conclusion, let us hope that the mental and physical energy so lately employed in political business may not altogether cease; but that it may be transferred to the question now before us, for the welfare of our very homes depends upon this matter.

HENRY UULLIE.

Thieves at Brody's.

The home of the Rev. J. Brody at 355 South West Temple street was entered by burglars early Saturday morning and between $10 and $20 taken from a sideboard in the dining room. The burglars made their entrance by a back window, from which they ripped a wire screen. It is thought they are people who were acquainted with where Mr. Brody kept his cash. They disturbed nothing else in their plunderings.

AN IMPORTANT DIFFERENCE.

To make it apparent to consumers, who think themselves oil, that they are not oil and with any disease, that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a cative condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company only, and sold by all druggists.

On receipt of ten cents each of stamps, a generous sample will be mailed of the most popular Catarrh and Hay Fever Cure (Ely's Cream Balm) sufficient to demonstrate its great merit. Full size 50c.

ELY BROTHERS,
56 Warren street, New York City.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never found for relief until Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Osburn, 43 Warren Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The druggist will tell you that no one is better qualified to judge of the merits of an article than the dealer, because he hears his opinion on the expiration of a full bottle. For this reason he wishes us to publish the results of other dealers about an article which he handles. Messrs. C. F. Sauer & Co., Richmond, Va., say: "We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than all others put together, and it always gives good satisfaction." Mr. J. F. Allen, Fox, Ore., says: "I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to be the best I have handled." Mr. W. H. Hinchcliffe, Columbia, Wash., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy sells well and is highly prized by all who use it."

Sore throat. Any ordinary case may be cured in one night by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm as directed with each bottle. This medicine is also famous for burns of the mouth, sprains and disappointed and muscular pains. For sale by Druggists.

Mrs. W. B. Meek, who resides at Cannonville, Utah, says her daughter was for several years troubled at times with severe cramps in the stomach, and would be in bed a day at a time. For these occasions she would call in a physician. Having read about Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy, she was induced to try it. She found that it always gave prompt relief. It was seldom necessary to give the second dose. "It has not only saved us lots of worry and time," she says, "but also doctor bills. It is my opinion that every family should have a bottle of this remedy in the house." For sale by Druggists.
