The claim of Hodge Davis for $10 alleged to be due for injury to the property by construction of a road through his property, was referred to the county attorney for an opinion as to whether the road in question is to be dedicated or not. The property belongs to Mr. Davis.

Petitions were received and referred to committees for Eighteenth Fifth Ward between Twelfth and Thirteenth South; from trustees of school district No. 2.

T. E. and J. C. Ellerbeck asked that Martin Gaine be prosecuted for compelling them to turn back on the road they occupied east in Mountain Dell, and take a new, longer road, claiming it have used the road for thirty years.

John D. Spencer's report for funds collected under his administration was received and referred to the auditor.

CONCERNING FRED FARMER.

He is Said to Be in Sonora, Mexico, in Good Health and Spirits.

A letter from J. T. McCarthy of Sonora, Mexico, to Mrs. Fred Farmer of Spokane, Wash., states that her husband, Fred Farmer, who so mysteriously disappeared some time ago and was thought to be dead, is still alive and is working for a bank in Sonora, under the name of William Smith. As McCarthy formerly lived in Nephi and knew Fred Farmer he evidently saw him on good positive that the missing man is where he is said to be.

Four Wise Men—Millspaugh One.

The American School Board Journal for October contains an illustrated biblical adaptation entitled The Four Wise Men From the Occident. These are W. H. Powell, James A. Foshay, F. E. Millspaugh, C. G. Pease, the school superintendents respectively of Washington, D. C., Los Angeles, Cal., Salt Lake City, Utah, and Omaha, Neb., making the National Educational association meeting in 1897 in Omaha. The picture shows the four eminent officials clad in early Oriental garb bearing presents to the infant Christ, who is shown lying in a manger and surrounded by Jewish worshipers. Dr. Millspaugh's contribution is made to wear in a most satisfactory manner as he stands in reverent attitude over a miniature representation of the Salt Lake Temple. May his confidence not be misplaced.

DOSEMUS IS CHIEF STANDARD BEARER.

Funny McMillan a Hard Fighting Close Competitor—Personnel of the Candidates.

The Republican city convention nominated the ticket at midnight last night by dinner hall long and arduous though enlivened throughout with several contests between competent candidates. The interest centered in the contest between Funny McMillan and Dosemus, in which A. F. Lucania and Henry G. McMillan were the principal contenders. This was the only nomination made before the convention began. Mr. Dosemus won on the third ballot. The complete ticket is as follows:

For Mayor—A. F. Dosemus.

N. E. A. Officers to Visit This City.

School Board Journal: The executive committee of the National Educational association meeting Washington, D. C., last month to learn what that city could offer in the way of receiving the N. E. A. next year. They were received by Col. Henry Ivins, President Thomas W. Smith, Colin Studds, Gen. Ellis Spear, Archibald Greenleaf, Mrs. Marion Baker, Mrs. Mary A. Spencer, Miss Anna Tolman Smith and Secretary of Navy Long and Salt Lake City will be visited during the present month. It is not likely that the committee will visit Los Angeles, where Mr. Foshay and these ladies met her and looked up the situation, although Mr. Greenleaf would like the honors of the executive committee to make the journey.

The N. E. A. president will visit Omaha early next, and will then, in all probability, be accompanied by the whole committee.

POLITICS AND RELIGION.

To the Editor:

In a Salt Lake City paper of Sunday last I read some modern lamentations and Jeremiah over the assumed misdeeds of teachers of morals advising their flocks to use good sense in their political duties and elect good, capable men to run their government.

The topic of the paper referred to it carried to its legitimate conclusion would make it wrong for a teacher of religion and good morals to give an alarm if he saw a fire start in a building where hundreds were at work unconscious of danger, to take his place as a person against the will of gamblers to cry out against the spread of pestilution, even though it might be endangering his own household, to utter a word against the growing danger of the saloon.

It is difficult to realize that the editor of a modern paper can be so far behind the age to which he lives and it is fully as difficult to understand how the public can support a paper that can attempt to betray itself and its God. The writer of the staff referred to fails to understand the American idea of life and government.

In an absolute monarchy king is all, people are nothing. In a republic people are all, and king is nothing. In our country every man has an equal share of government among the people and has the other citizens of the highest possible interest of the people.

There is not a church or sect in the world that does not claim to be the world's living of the people. Government cannot be dissociated from the moral interests of the people without blighting it, into the hands of the selfish, reckless and unnatural elements of society, and the moral teachers have failed to do their duty. Our future lives must be gained by what we do in our present lives, and no church can accomplish much good in this world that devotes its time to worshiping God in stated religious meetings while it gives the people full scope to all the secular affairs of life.

Among the preachers who have done most good to society and good government we will do well to study Lyman Beecher, Henry Ward Beecher in New York. Their pulpits were never too sacred to be used for the advancement of what, in their day, was called the good of the city, the state or the nation.

In Utah the clamor of years made reformers of the people, and the Edmunds law was passed to effect a reformatory change in society, and it was the work of the people for the people, and the ministers of the gospel, the school teachers, and government of city, state and nation.

Let the President Woodruff and his associates, who should be responsible, that so their time to look after the moral interests of a rapidly growing nation, or the people that are under the guidance of the priesthood, and other religious societies in the State, and to devote their energies to work the greater to promotion.

There are many good people who believe in the doctrine of peace on earth and good will to men in the Federal Bible, and that the world is to be saved without a complete control political corruption in the land. Fire could be much better fought out of the street and clear air than after it has gathered in the flames, and to devote time to work the greater to promotion.

There are many good people who believe in the doctrine of peace on earth and good will to men in the Federal Bible, and that the world is to be saved without a complete control political corruption in the land. Fire could be much better fought out of the street and clear air than after it has gathered in the flames, and to devote time to work the greater to promotion.

The best teachers of morals differ in the well-being of the city and the people. If one religious teacher advises his people to elect good men to office, and the others advise their people to elect bad men to office? All are bound together, all must suffer together from bad government, and all should work together to secure good government. If the teachers of morality refuse to aid other ones take up the work, their success must benefit all in the churches and out and therefore the more secured so close that he who runs may read. Efforts for good government are always in order and to that end the help of good citizens is always needed. On the other hand, efforts for bad government, that is, efforts to make robbery the chief aim of other are generally in control because the best citizens allow themselves to become disgusted with the filth of common politics and give government over to the rabble. If the citizens to broken up, then of all actions are so, with the greatest freedom, the most abject slaves.
